Chapter 2 : 40 Different Types Of Braids For Hairstyle Junkies and Gurus

24 Practice Hairstyles and Braiding by Anthony B. Colletti, June , Keystone Pubns edition, Paperback in English.

You can never get bored of the braid styles and they go well with every dress at almost every age. Braided hairstyles have attained popularity in the present times. You might remember your mom putting your hair in braids to keep you looking great. Kids usually feel tired to sit still for a long period of time, but once braid is done, they look very beautiful. The case is similar for adults. Girls with braided hairstyles look neat and tidy. Braids can be used even in the blend of other formal hairstyles and with the daily hairdos. There can be creative hairstyles made with braids and accessories like pearls, ribbons, beads etc. Your main focus should be to know the right breed for your hair, color and appearance. Girls are conscious about their appearance and always thinking about choosing the best hairstyle to look impressive. Making braided hairstyles It is not a magic trick to make your own braids. It is quite easy and requires no extra time. You can end up your fears of braiding your hair and it only requires practice and patience to learn the right way to do it neatly. There are many videos available online to see different braided hairstyles and you can check them to make the right hairdo. Single braid is very easy and it requires no extra effort. You need to detangle your hair perfectly to make the first move. Usually, hairbrush is used for the same. You can designate your hair into three equal sections approximately and begin the crossing of right section over the one in the center area. Simply, repeat these steps with the left section. You can do it till the desired length, and finally, tie the end of the braid to make it secured. These braids are techniques for braiding that involve crocheting synthetic hair extensions to the natural hair for a latch look. It is majorly associated with the African American community. Crochet hair looped underneath the cornrows with the crochet needle hooked structure and there are knots made to make them look amazing. You need to learn cornrowing your hair as it will help you in making crochet braids. This gives a naturally beautiful look to the girls and requires about hours for the weavers to do it. Some people even make these braids with the Bobby pin, if they lose the crochet needle. Box Braids It is not a new trend, but looks amazing despite of its old trending. Women of all ethnicity wear this hairstyle and it is amazing. It is a hair protective style and shields hair from extreme weather conditions. It certainly promotes hair length and has low maintenance and convenient nature. In warm weather countries, box braids are chosen for their weather resistant nature. Avoid choosing these braids, if you have a fine hair texture. This braid is the best for thick hair as there will be too many braids created from the hair, which are thick for styling. It requires about 8 hours to do this hairdo depends on braid size and the stylist expertise. It is essential to take care of the real hair and keep them healthy and hydrated. There should be conditional spray and daily moisturizer applied on the hair to keep them lubricated. Synthetic hair can dehydrate the natural hair and makes them dry and brittle. You can reduce the breakage of hair by keeping well lubricated braids. Cornrows braids Cornrow or cane-row braids are mostly followed by the men and women in the Caribbean region. It is the old typical African hair style of hair grooming. The hairs are braided too closely to the scalp from the underhand, upward motion for producing a raised row. These are formed in straight lines in general , but also in complicated geometric designs. These braids are easy to maintain and the rows can be left for days. There is regular oiling of scalp and hair wash required to keep the scalp ready. Cornrow hairstyles are sometimes adorned with cowrie shells or beads. Small or large braids can be chosen and it depends on the creativity of the hair stylist to do it. There are simply to complicated hairdos done by the experts and it requires a lot of time to do small braids of the whole hair. Tips for Perfect Braiding of your Own Hair Use some water for damping your hair and separate the sections with the tail comb to have beautiful sectioning. In case of tough hair, you can use some hair gel or finishing paste for better styling. Just use a very small amount of these products for avoiding your hair to become sticky. There are invisible hair ties available in the market for fixing the tails before braiding. You can use them for quality work. Check DIY videos on YouTube and other sources for getting step-by-step instructions for braiding your own hair. Braids are fun to do, but you require patience and practice them regularly for a better outlook. For the complicated braids, choose a salon or expert doing it in the best way. You can have the best of beauty and simplicity, integrated through these braids. It will certainly make you feel great from inside. Braided pony tail hairstyles.

Chapter 3 : 40 Pretty Fun And Funky Braids Hairstyles For Kids

Braided hair is extremely flexible for styling. Every year stylists create new and trendy hairstyles, but African braids stay always popular. Cornrow braid hairstyle is a perfect way to style black hair.

It can protect your hair against harsh environmental elements. Hair braiding can give you space for your creativity. Most black women are sporting braids since they are gifted with strong black hair which can hold braids well. The best way is to let a professional from an African hair braiding salon do it so as to avoid any mistakes. It actually originates way back in BC in Egypt. Every region and tribe in Africa have its own distinct style of hair braiding. It can also be a symbol for their age group, social status, marital status, religion, power, wealth, and community. There are some hair treatments and intricate patterns that are intended for certain ceremonial events such as rites of passage, weddings, social ceremonies, and others. Aside from its deep cultural significance, it can also be a fashion statement. From an early age, the girls in the tribes wear hair braids. It is usually done by their elder female relatives, either, their grandmothers, mothers, aunts, sisters or cousins. They should observe how it is done so that they can learn. They can practice it on their peers or on girls who are younger than them until they can become an expert. It is done as a social duty with no rewards at all. When braiding, villagers will apply palm oil or shea butter or argan oil on the hair. Hair braiding is a time-consuming task sometimes it can take a day or two. Some villages are practicing informal reciprocity. This means that if someone braids your hair then you must return the favor by braiding hers. As time progressed, hair-braiding was turned over to the professionals. Over the years, a lot of braiding salons have spread in the urban areas of the United States. Since hair braiding takes some time to finish, it gives women the chance to socialize. In Africa, hair braiding is considered as a symbol of friendship, intimacy, and confidence. In salons, braiders and customers usually talk and laugh together. The custom of braiding was lost for a while during the slave trade. However, it was revived by the immigrants who come from Mali, Togo, Guinea, and others. The descendants of these immigrants are encouraged to wear hair braids in order to continue this African tradition. Importance of Hair In African culture, there is a belief that a woman who has thick hair can bear several children. She can have many riches and farms. Members of the tribe are not permitted to have loose hair because it is a sign of mess, dirt, and mourning. They are allowed to let their hair loose only during death ceremonies. An individual who has a well-groomed hair is considered healthy and well mannered. Women are encouraged to wear hair braids. It can also help them in attracting a partner. Braids can keep their hair away during fire dances. Hair Characteristics The hair composition of each individual varies according to sex, age, color, and origin. The hair protects the head from the heat of the sun, coldness, injuries, and others. The healthiness of your hair will greatly depend on the foods that you eat. The length of your hair will depend on the DNA of your body. Nowadays, there are a lot of products that can help in the overall well-being of your hair. Types of Hair Braiding Country plaits are usually worn by women. It consists of hair braids that are laid on the scalp. Each hair section is braided by weaving one over the other. It seems that the hair is cut close to the scalp. Cornrows are much the same with country Plaits. It is laid flat on your scalp and follows the shape of your head. The only difference is the process of braiding. In cornrows, the hair is woven under one another. As a result, it would look like a raised braid. Both cornrows and country Plaits can be accomplished in different lengths. Of course, the thinner ones will produce more braids and time-consuming too. Cornrow braids are very ancient. It started way back in B. It has a variety of styles including intricate curves, spirals and linear. In order to look tidy, African men and women slaves wore braids. In the s, cornrow braiding was on the rise. Cicely Tyson and Stevie Wonder sported this style. It became a famous celebrity style and worn by other celebrities such as basketball star Allen Iverson. In single braids, a small section of hair is braided out up to the very end. It can be done in different lengths. Again, thinner braids will result in more braids, time-consuming, and costly as well. If you are searching for a new look then we have put together a collection of the different styles of African hair braiding. You gotta love this! African Hair Braiding Styles and Examples 1. Chapter 4 : 70 Best Black Braided Hairstyles That Turn Heads in 40 Different Types Of Braids. Whether you're looking for a trendy new way to wear your hair, or an easy style that will keep your strands in place all day, braided hairstyles are the most versatile way to make your hair goals a reality.

Pin it Prev1 of 70 Next Braids are an easy and so pleasant way to forget about hair styling for months, give your hair some rest and protect it from harsh environmental factors. Besides, with the awesome hairstyles listed below you will attract attention, admiring glances and sincere smiles. Braided hairstyles make space for creativity. There are many interesting braiding techniques to make every head unique. Besides, you can experiment with highlights, natural or curly texture, clips, patterns, shapes, etc. Your hair, that you might have been complaining of before, is created for braids. So why not to use this idea to your advantage? African hair braiding is very versatile: Once you pick a desired braiding style, thickness and have your hair braided, you may shape your braids into gorgeous hairstyles both for every day and special events. No wonder, every year world-famous designers experiment with braids at fashion shows. Popular Trends in Black Braided Hairstyles Fashion shows are always inspiring, yet when it comes to clothes, we need to wait at least till March to begin to bring some new fresh ideas into life. As for hairstyles, things are much easier here: These are some trends for inspiration: These are loose, messy and inspired by Boho chic. The braid that starts from mid-shaft is not noticeable in the front and looks sloppy in the back. Braided bun updos are always an extra charge of elegance to ennoble even the simplest outfit. These long 3 dimensional braids, ideal for long thick hair, look very interesting, unhackneyed and worth a try. Criss-Cross Goddess Braids Source Chunky cornrow braids, referred to as goddess braids, are perfect for days when you want to give your hair a break or when you are going on a beach vacation and would rather not worry about styling your strands every morning. Dynamic Side-Swept Cornrows Braided looks are so popular amongst African Americans because of how they protect the hair. Once the hair is in the braid, it is free of heat and manipulation for weeks on end. Asymmetrical Goddess Braids Mix plaits of different sizes into braid hairstyles to create texture and dimension. Combining chunky and thin braids is unexpected. The unique parts keep the hairdo fresh and fun. Add beads or gold cuffs for the final touch of personalization. Long Chunky Black Braids Chunky box braids are totally in style. With alternating thin braids, the hairdo feels very hot. What makes extensions so priceless is how you can experiment with volume and length. Feed-in Braids The benefit of the feed-in method is that it makes cornrow hairstyles look more natural and less bulky by creating a narrow and flat point at the hairline. This also creates less tension and protects the edges. This method of braiding can be done at any African hair braiding salon. Braided Ponytail As wonderful as braids can be to create interesting protective styles, braiding hair can sometimes feel heavy when it comes to hairstyles with individual plaits. Cornrows Enclosed by Headband Braid Have fun with your protective styles like this halo braid. To make a hairstyle like this last, make sure to wrap your hair with a satin scarf every night or use a bonnet. Curly Mohawk with Flat Twisted Sides Instead of shaving your tresses for a mohawk, experiment with different braid styles. You get to keep your length, and still show off your edgy side. To refresh the curls in the AM, go to bed the night before with your ends in two-strand twists. When you take them out, your hair will fall into that luscious mane. Thin Black Box Braids with Burgundy Highlights Not everyone likes dying their hair because the bleach can be very damaging to African-American tresses. Pick colored extensions for a bright pop, just like highlights mixed into your real hair. It adds an extra element of fun, as you can see in the picture. Box Braids and Cornrows Mohawk Make the mohawk yours with braids, braids and more braids. Braid the top of the style together so it creates a pompadour. Then, let the rest hang loose. You will get some major height out of this coif. This is a refined take on the classic punk-inspired hairstyle. Keep your look fresh with a half-updo that features a nice height on top. This style can be completed in a time crunch for a sexy look that lasts throughout wherever the day may take you. Snake Braids Long and curvy braids are not your typical cornrows, but the idea is pretty much the same. Try the snake braids if you want a fresh take on the hair braided closely to the scalp. Add golden beads for extra bling! Chunky Mohawk Braids Mohawk braids are an easy way to try the shaved style without committing to actually cutting your hair. Also the possibilities are endless when it comes to styling the long

section of your hair – you can cornrow it as shown, wear individual African braids, twists, or more. Chunky Mohawk Braid with Cornrows Chunky braids are a stylish pick for black hair. Thicker braids are also easier to undo once your hairstyle has run its course. But while you are rocking it, there are many ways to change up the mohawk. Wear it braided down the back or try styling it into a retro-inspired bouffant up top. You can wear the hair down or up in a ponytail. You really have as many styling options as the imagination allows. Mix highlights into your crochet braids with colored kanekalon hair for a bleach-free splash of color. Ghana Braids Bun Braids all over your head might be fun, but sometimes you want something simpler and classier, like this low braided bun with two plaits and a curved part. Cornrows with High Twisted Bun Updos are comfortable and cute. So why not opt for a classy black braided hairstyle like the one pictured? You will have an effortlessly chic look ready to go for work everyday. Ghana braids are beautifully thick, which will give you a full, statement-making bun. It is sleek and sophisticated; perfect for a night out and a day at the office, alike. Fancy Twisted Updo Something about wearing your hair up lends itself to a refined look and feel. This flat-twisted style uses texture to make the updo more unique and unexpected. The style is good for women with natural hair that want something protective and polished. Half Cornrows Half Individual Braids Braided hairstyles for black women are very creative and versatile. Mixing cornrows and loose box braids is just one way to show this. The different types of braids are complemented with wooden beads at the ends for a boho touch. The subtle swirling of the plaits is mesmerizing and makes this so much more than your average bun. It is a gorgeous hairstyle for those looking for something bold. Updo with Thin Wavy Feed-Ins If chunky braids are too overwhelming for you, there is nothing wrong in sticking to thinner plaits. Twist the ends together if you feel like you are missing out on volume. Have fun with it though and ask your stylist make a unique design with your parts. Braids with Curves One of the best things about wearing braids is the ability to create designs without shaving them into your hair or using color. This can be done with just the parts or by manipulating the actual braid. Pick something that matches your personal style; it can be something simple and beautiful like the slightly curved braids shown or you can go all out with a more intricate look. Alternating thick and thin asymmetrical Ghana braids will only make your hairstyle even cooler. This trend is eye-catching and keeps the thicker braids from being too overpowering. The thinner plaits bring balance to the style. Upside Down Braids to Bun For something super sleek and bold, go with upright braids. Have the cornrows lead into either a ponytail or a bun. You can wear the ends down for a casual look or up in a bun when you need something a little dressier. Braided Hairstyle with Jumbo French Braid A French braid goes from being sweet to sassy the larger it gets – and this style brings a heavy dose of the latter. Try a jumbo braid for an upcoming weekend out; this is a surefire conversation starter! A gorgeous magenta hue is an exciting way to bring an extra touch of femininity to your hairstyle. Play around with different braid sizes and voluminous twists for irresistible texture. Triangle Box Braids African-American braided hairstyles are a chance to be creative. Take this geometric, triangular design for instance. Bold Triangle Parted Box Braids Braided hairstyles are quite common among modern women, especially traditional looks like box braids. One of the easiest ways to make a standard style seem fresh and new is by changing the size of the braids and experimenting with parting. Braided Bun For a long time, large braided updos were reserved for older women on the go. But everything old is new again, and now younger women are embracing the style with flair. The micro braids accent the jumbo cornrows for a fun twist on the classic. Long Braids for Black Hair Even if you are adding hair for length, chunky black braids are not ideal for those with short natural hair because they can slip out or cause too much tension. A good way to combat this is to feed small tight cornrows into larger ones for a similar, but more secure, effect. Purple Highlights in Black Braids Outside of the extra length and thickness, adding hair also gives the ability to experiment with color.

The thinner and thicker cornrows are pulled straight back from the hairline and then blended with extensions to style some chunky twisted Mohawk buns. Adorable Cornrows and a Bun This simple braided hairstyle is something that many moms can do at home—no designer braids needed. If you work with thicker cornrows, this will go by faster and not hurt your fingers as much! Plus, you can get young children used to sitting through braiding before bringing them to a professional or trying something more complicated. Top Knot with Cornrows We love kids braids that provide a chance to have fun with hair accessories like ballies and beads. This hairstyle was done to perfection. Be sure to keep the hair conditioned and encourage your daughter to sleep with a headscarf so it stays smooth as long as possible. Natural Dutch Braid Style 12 For a natural hairstyle that looks great on little girls, try dutch pigtail braids. This modern kids hair style provides some nice elevation that you can enhance if you do not braid too tightly or add extensions. These pigtails feature accent braids above the ears for a unique touch. Crisscross Mohawk with Beads Looking for a showstopper? These mohawk braids with beads are nothing short of amazing—and the crisscross design is incredible too. Choosing clear beads is a really great idea because they will go with any outfit. Adding in more beads than usual gives off an ombre effect. Short Box Braids for Kids The most important thing when it comes to hairstyles for black girls is to switch things up. The fun is in trying something new. So if your little girl has been wearing updo styles for a while, why not try some clinking box braids? This beaded look lets her add all her favorite colors to her hair. Cute Floral Crown For a soft and pretty occasion look, try a loose crown braid. Part the hair into a side part and start braiding on the thicker side, pulling in new strands from the middle of the hair and keeping the braid low on the hairline. Instead, pull at it to perfect it at the end. Heart Braid with Curled Ponytail This adorable style would be perfect for a special day. Two symmetrical curved braids create a lovely heart. You can make it double if you like and add some curls to the pony of braid it too. All you have to do is to section hair off into three parts. Start at the bottom and braid up. Using clear elastics as you go up each step will make this style a lot easier to achieve. Adorable Bun Hairstyle for Girls Braids with buns are a great updo for girls of all ages. Little girls look especially adorable with side buns and high buns, so why not to blend them into one? Create a dutch accent braid working from one temple towards the crown where your bun will be, then finish the braid to the end. After you create the bun, simply wrap the braid around it. Perfect Heidi Braids with Flowers This adorable hairstyle is similar to the crown braid, but it wraps around the back in a U shape instead of going all the way around the head. To copy this style, part the hair for dutch pigtail braids and braid them all the way down, then cross the braids at the nape and pin up hiding the ends. This princess style is truly amazing. The height and silhouette of the updo are very beautiful, and the cornrow designs give it some playful, youthful appeal. Curvy Cornrows with Beaded Ends Little girls like to duplicate things they see on other kids. But we should teach them individuality at this age. Luckily, the variety of hairstyles for African hair is truly impressive. Not only it shows a fun design of hair braided close to the skin, it also offers to use plenty of beads which are merrily clinking with her every step and move! Heart-Shaped Braids and Cornrows for Little Black Girls Fancy braided designs and abundance of hair accessories are entirely the hairstyling territory of little girls. Angled Cornrow Braid Styles for Kids The style in this photo also uses extensions, braided into cornrows, which are finished with twists. The diagonal part of this hairstyle and the angled braided pattern are the main wow factors of the look. One pigtail is thus sitting higher than the other. Cute Braided Hairstyle for Black Girls Black braided hairstyles with extensions are not only for adults. These creative V-shaped braided furrows blend into lovely twists that you can easily pull into a high pony. If your little fashionista already has her taste and wants to look chic, she will probably like this stunning braided Mohawk with circular braids. Curly Mohawk Braided Hairstyle for Girls Cornrows on the sides and extended twisted section in the middle create a fun Mohawk for a little girl. The style is neat, comparatively easy and absolutely adult-like. Spreading Cornrows into Twists These spreading cornrows are adorable, so are the twist braids with curly ends. Your girl can wear them loose or gathered into a high pony – always beautiful and neat-looking with this hairstyle. These thicker purple cornrows look cool on the contrast with darker roots. Chunky cornrows are faster and easier to braid and that means you can switch hairstyles oftener. Skinny Braids for Kids with Extensions Cornrows for black girls are a great idea to add length to natural hair. Further you can style quick buns and ponytails. All you need to do is to choose the size and design of cornrows. Curly Braided Pony for Girls A side pony maybe not the most creative hairstyle that you can imagine, but does it matter as long as it looks so pretty? Get the lovely spirally curls at the ends of the braids and wrap the pony base with one braid to hide the elastic. Fun Braid Styles for Girls Box braids are a worthy alternative to cornrows. You can get them really long, use colorful strands and switch styles in a matter of minutes. These may include freely-hanging side-parted braids, half up bun, low or high pony, top knot or fishtail, to name a few. More freedom in different kinds of hairstyles is a big plus. Diagonal Braids with Beaded Ends This cutie looks so stylish! Very tight and rather thick diagonal braids with accurate partings and perfect edges look pretty inspiring, eh? Beads for the ends are a nice solution to finish the braids. Thick braids are a good choice if your girl prefers to wear them hanging. Creative Designs of Braids for Kids Three thin braids can become a base for a braided headband with strands going through it like through a waterfall braid. This is an excellent hairstyle for a girl with long thin straight hair. Chunky Lacy Double Braid The most inventive two braids hairstyles blend two different kinds of braids into one style.
