History[ edit ] The Rover V8 began life as the Buick , an all-aluminium OHV pushrod engine introduced in for the US model year it was on their drawing boards in the late s. Based on sales volume and press reports, the engine was a success. Buick produced , cars with this engine in just three years. A comparable number of Oldsmobile engines were produced. The aluminium engine was relatively expensive to produce, however, and it suffered problems with oil and coolant sealing, as well as with radiator clogging from use of antifreeze incompatible with aluminium. In January Rover gave American operations head J. Bruce McWilliams permission to investigate the possible purchase of an American V8 engine for Rover cars. History relates that McWilliams first saw the Buick V8 at the works of Mercury Marine , where he was discussing the sale of Rover gas turbines and diesel engines to the company Mercury did indeed use the Land Rover 2. However, it is likely that McWilliams was aware of the Buick engine before this. In any case, McWilliams realised that the lightweight Buick V8 would be ideal for smaller British cars indeed, it weighed less than many straight-4 engines it would replace. McWilliams and William Martin-Hurst began an aggressive campaign to convince GM to sell the tooling, which they finally agreed to do in January The Rover V8 has long been a relatively common engine for kit car use in Britain, much as the Chevrolet small-block V8 is for American hot rod builders though many British hot rods have traditionally used four cylinder engines, like the Ford Pinto and Crossflow units. Traco in the USA were prominent builders of such engines. The engine is still cast now , in an improved version, by Coscast in Birmingham, UK. As well as appearing in Rover cars, the engine was sold by Rover to small car builders, and has appeared in a wide variety of vehicles. MG Rover used the 4. Although Land Rover has switched to the Jaguar AJ-V8 engine for new applications, they wanted production of the engine to continue, and they arranged for production to restart in Weston-super-Mare under MCT, an engineering and manufacturing company. MCT will continue limited production of the engine for the foreseeable future, supplying engines for aftermarket and replacement use. When the Rover Company was having engineering differences of opinion regarding the development of the Whittle turbine engine, the Wilks brothers did a deal with Rolls-Royce to swap technologies. From this a V8 variant was developed. Meteorites were built for vehicles, for marine use and as stationary power units: Racing[ edit ] As the aluminium block made this engine one of the lightest stock V8s built, it was an obvious choice for use in racing. Mickey Thompson entered a car powered by this engine in the Indianapolis From to there had not been a single stock-block car entered in this famous race. Rookie driver Dan Gurney qualified eighth and raced well for 92 laps before retiring with transmission problems. The Rover version of this engine was extensively developed and used for rallying, especially in Triumph TR8 sports cars. The Repco V8 was based on Oldsmobile block of the same era, which was very similar in appearance, size and material, but used 6 cylinderhead studs per cylinder. Hotstox use Rover V8 in their stock cars. The bore was It used a sand-cast block with pressed-in iron cylinder liners , and a new intake manifold with two HS6 type SU Carburettors. Sound clip of a 3. Homeowners insurance expenditures The average homeowners insurance premium rose by 3. The average renters insurance premium fell 1. Causes of homeowners insurance losses In , 5. Property damage, including theft, accounted for Changes in the percentage of each type of homeowners loss from one year to another are partially influenced by large fluctuations in the number and severity of weather-related events such as hurricanes and winter storms. There are two ways of looking at losses: Every state except Alaska, Arkansas, New York, North Carolina and Virginia has adopted an ISO mold limitation for homeowners insurance coverage, which allows insurers to exclude the coverage unless the condition results from a covered peril. Home inventories On average, over the past nine years about half of homeowners said they prepared an inventory of their possessions to help document losses for their insurers, according to polls conducted for the Insurance Information Institute I. Fifty-two percent of homeowners said they had an inventory in a June I. The survey showed that homeowners in the South were more likely to have a home inventory 57 percent , followed by homeowners in the Northeast and West 56 percent and 50 percent, respectively. Only 43 percent of homeowners in the Midwest said they had an inventory. Sinkhole claims In March an entire house fell into a huge sinkhole in a suburb of Tampa, Florida, garnering national attention. Although such large, sudden and destructive sinkholes are relatively rare, thousands of small sinkholes appear in the U. Most homeowners insurance policies exclude coverage for sinkhole damage. However, homeowners insurance companies in Florida and Tennessee are required to offer the coverage. In Florida catastrophic ground cover collapse is mandatory; comprehensive sinkhole coverage is optional. The basic and diluted earnings per share was The Group recorded a net loss of BD thousand for the fourth quarter of compared to net profit of BD thousand for the same period in Net loss that is attributable to the shareholders of the Group was BD thousand for the fourth quarter of compared to profit of BD thousand for the same period in Gross premiums recorded BD5. The basic and diluted losses per share for the fourth quarter was 8. Investment income increased to BD thousand compared to BD thousand for the same period last year. This performance was hit by the increase in competition and softer rates prevailing in the insurance market. Net earned premiums increased by 5. Net claims incurred in was higher than previous year. This is primarily attributable to a significant increase in the cost of motor spare parts and repairs coupled with an increase in number of claims. Also, the severe storm and flooding that hit Bahrain during the 1st quarter , impacted fire and property claims. As a prudential step, Bahrain National Insurance bni has significantly added to its reserves in apart from taking additional provisions on receivables. We are witnessing structural changes in the cost of motor repairs in the market and the Group is proactively reviewing ways to control claim cost while maintaining the quality and standards of service, our customers expect from us. Both our medical and life insurance businesses did very well, reporting higher gross premiums and controlled claims, resulting in a sharp increase in underwriting profits in Bahrain National Life bnl. Strong performances from associates and real estate assets also helped the Group partially offset the negative impact in underwriting. Almoayyed also added that the Group continues to maintain strong liquidity with cash and balances with banks of BD This resulted in a net profit for the Group of BD2. We are upgrading our IT core system in in order to improve the quality as well as increase the efficiency with which we provide services to our customers.
