

Chapter 1 : Shooting of Tamir Rice - Wikipedia

Boy A is a compassionate and disturbing film that won numerous BAFTA awards for acting, directing, editing, and cinematography, though it started out as a made for TV movie. As Jack, Andrew Garfield turns in a superb performance, allowing his face to reveal his vulnerability and his changing moods to reveal the tightrope on which he is walking.

Shooting[edit] A photograph of Tamir Rice A caller, who was sitting in a nearby gazebo, reported that someone, possibly a juvenile, was pointing "a pistol" at random people in the Cudell Recreation Center. The caller twice said that the gun was "probably fake". The boy reached into his waistband, pulled out the gun and [Loehmann] fired two shots. These weapons are actual size replicas of real guns, designed to shoot non-lethal plastic pellets. Rice died the day after the shooting at MetroHealth Medical Center. The medical examiner clarified the cause of death as being a gunshot wound to the torso, with injuries to major vessels, intestines, and the pelvis. The video briefly shows Rice talking on a cellphone, and sitting at a picnic table in a gazebo. A patrol car moves at high speed across the park lawn and then stops abruptly by the gazebo. Rice reaches for his waist band before Loehmann jumps out of the car and immediately shoots Rice from a distance of less than 10 feet 3. Adrine in a judgement entry on the case "this court is still thunderstruck by how quickly this event turned deadly On the video the zone car containing Patrol Officers Loehmann and Garmback is still in the process of stopping when Rice is shot. Three minutes after that, paramedics arrived and took him to MetroHealth Medical Center. It also shows that police waited for four minutes before providing any first aid to Rice. Both officers were placed on paid administrative leave. Polak said that Loehmann was unable to follow "basic functions as instructed" and specifically cited a "dangerous loss of composure" that occurred in a weapons training exercise. The memo concluded, "Individually, these events would not be considered major situations, but when taken together they show a pattern of a lack of maturity, indiscretion and not following instructions, I do not believe time, nor training, will be able to change or correct these deficiencies. The woman had called the police to report a car blocking her driveway. They announced they were looking for additional witnesses to the shooting, including a man who was recorded walking with Rice in the park before the shooting. Their results would be presented to a grand jury for possible charges. It also reported that as of that time Frank Garmback, the officer who drove the police car, was not under criminal investigation. Because Ohio judges lack the legal authority to issue arrest warrants in such cases, his opinion was forwarded to city prosecutors and Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Timothy McGinty who, as of that date, had not yet come to a decision on whether to present the evidence to a grand jury. Loehmann and Garmback declined to be interviewed. Lamar Sims; both reports concluded that the shooting of Tamir Rice was reasonable under the circumstances. However, amid accusations from lawyers representing the Rice family that McGinty had deliberately chosen Crawford and Sims because of their "pro-police bias" in order to cover for Loehmann and Garmback, McGinty convened a grand jury to consider whether or not criminal charges should be brought against the officers. The eight-page complaint accused Loehmann and Garmback of acting "unreasonably, negligently [and] recklessly" and that "[h]ad the defendant officers properly approached Tamir and properly investigated his possession of the replica gun they would undoubtedly have determined However, on November 25, , a day after a grand jury decision to not indict the police officer who fatally shot Michael Brown , the Cleveland protests became more prominent. That day, about protesters marched from Public Square to the Cleveland Memorial Shoreway , causing the latter to be shut down temporarily. Please protest peacefully and responsibly.

Chapter 2 : Gun Quotes - BrainyQuote

HAMILTON, Ont. -- A gunman armed with a magnum killed a teenage girl and 4-year-old boy Friday, then wounded the boy's mother and a motorist to whom she fled for help. Police said the body of.

Their daughter Josie was three and their son Clem three months old. They wanted to record the moments when their children were made aware of gender stereotypes; when they were directed towards a view of the world in which girls and boys inhabit separate, rigid spheres of pink and blue – the first sphere passive, pretty and gentle, the second aggressive, active and strong. One of these boys then chose a flashing torch, in pink, for himself, to which the stallholder responded: At the time Grabrucker was keeping the diary, these stereotypes were under attack, and seemed likely to weaken in future or even sputter out entirely. Second-wave feminists of the 60s and 70s had analysed gender roles and kickstarted a trend for non-sexist parenting, built on a determination to bring up children free to embrace what interested them – be it maths, construction and cars for girls, or fashion, dolls and cookery for boys. In the years since, there has been obvious progress towards gender equality in the adult world. Many more women have moved into the workplace and public life, many men have taken on a greater share of domestic chores, and gay and transgender people have fought strongly, often successfully, for greater rights and visibility. Yet when it comes to the world of children – the toys they play with and the clothes they wear – stereotypes have never been so defined, or rigidly enforced. Pink and blue have triumphed in the toy market, and there are often serious social penalties for children who breach the divide. The rise of highly gendered toys is a result of capitalism, but it also suggests a deep, subconscious unease with the advances of the past few decades. Over the past few years, people across the world have begun questioning this culture. Instead, Marianne hid the cartons. When Lowther asked what was the matter, the answer was: Alamy Lowther is part of the campaign Let Toys Be Toys , which began towards the end of as the result of a thread on parenting website Mumsnet about the explicit gendering of toys. In the space of a year the campaign has convinced 12 major retailers , including Boots, Toys R Us and Marks and Spencer, to remove "girls" and "boys" signage on toy displays. Lowther says she hopes the shops will start categorising products by subject and interest rather than gender. This asks publishers to stop labelling books as specifically for boys and girls because, as Pullman has said: Let the readers decide for themselves. When I speak to Hughes, she has just launched a new online petition to stop gender stereotypes being marketed to kids more broadly. Her awareness of the issue deepened when her son Harper, now four and a half, was born. But stereotypes still abound. The boys have two options: A woman behind me on the escalator says to her daughter, "I think this might be the girlie floor. The Barbie display features construction sets for a ballet studio, a fashion boutique, an ice-cream cart and a luxury mansion. Next to it is the Disney Princess stand. Dispatches from the Front Lines of the New Girlie-Girl Culture, she noted that there were 26, Disney Princess products on the market, and that the franchise was the largest in the world for girls aged two to six – all dreaming of their future prince. The range epitomises the heightened fantasy femininity sold to girls today. In fact, the connection of blue with boys and pink with girls is relatively recent, as fashion historian Jo B Paoletti notes in her book Pink and Blue: Telling the Boys from the Girls in America. The rules often had nothing to do with gender. There were lots and lots of little brown-eyed boys who got pink presents for their first birthday. At the height of the trend the mids , Sears catalogues" – mainstream shopping catalogues in the US – "carried no pink clothing for toddlers, and only a few pink items for babies. In the Argos catalogue for , primary colours, particularly red and yellow, adorn the toy pages – most of the bikes are red, as is the packaging for a Spirograph. The toy typewriter is yellow. One obvious reason for the triumph of pink and blue is that segmenting the toy market brings greater profits by making it harder for parents to pass down items between siblings of a different sex. Elizabeth Sweet , a researcher at the University of California, Davis, who has analysed the changing shape of the toy market, says the growth of marketing generally has also been influential. In the US, regulations around TV advertising to children were stripped away in So you have the Transformers movies, the My Little Pony movies, and these entertainment lines were often developed according to gender, right? Toymakers have certainly exploited that. When they are between the ages "of about three and five-ish €” give or take, depending on the child”, says Paoletti, “they understand what gender is, and what their gender identity is. They really do think that a little girl who gets her hair cut is now a boy, and a boy who wears a dress is now a girl, which is a very, very scary thing. Before this technology, parents tended to buy neutral colours when preparing for the birth of a child. Alamy But that has certainly been the case. In the US, in the last few months, there have been two separate stories of boys being bullied for their love of My Little Pony. In March, for instance, it was reported that nine-year-old Grayson Bruce had been told not to bring his My Little Pony bag to school in North Carolina because it was a trigger for the bullying he was experiencing, which has included punching, pushing and name-calling. His school has since reversed that decision. Earlier this month, the mother of year-old Michael Morones, also of North Carolina, spoke about his recent suicide attempt, which has left him in a persistent vegetative state. The reasons for self-harm are always complicated, but Morones had experienced problems with bullying. Chi Onwurah , MP for Newcastle upon Tyne Central, called a parliamentary debate on gender-specific toy marketing earlier this year after one of her constituents, a woman scientist, wrote to her about the products for little girls she saw each day on the way to work: Onwurah worked for decades in the engineering sector herself, and believes the limiting of children by gender stereotypes is a serious economic issue. There are thousands of jobs going unfilled, and in addition a lot of our engineers are in their 50s and retiring in the next five years. At the same time we have the lowest proportion in Europe of women who are professional engineers.

Chapter 3 : List of attacks related to secondary schools - Wikipedia

A Girl & A Gun is a club by women shooters for women shooters. Through our network of caring and qualified instructors, events, clinics, and training opportunities, we offer women the ability to improve their marksmanship and make new friends.

Witnesses say it soon became a gun battle between the shooter and police. Congressman Joe Barton, who manages the team, was there with his year-old son, Jack, who took cover under a nearby SUV. Congressman Rodney Davis was taking batting practice when the attack began. Witnesses say the gunman approached a fence along the third-base line -- but never got on the field. Republican Whip Steve Scalise , standing on second base, was shot first. Other lawmakers took cover in the first-base dugout. After the attack was over, Sen. Jeff Flake and others ran to his aid. He had been shot in the hip," Flake said. Gunman was frustrated over political direction of U. Four people were wounded by gunfire and two sustained other injuries, authorities said. Congressman Williams, who injured his ankle during the shooting, says without them, it could have been a massacre. Reuters "There could have easily been 25 or more deaths today," Williams said. But he says he believes he encountered the gunman as he was leaving. They were still trying to process what happened and how to move on. We represent great people every day," he said. In all, four people were shot by the assailant. Scalise is in critical condition after surgery. Lobbyist Matt Mica is also in critical condition, shot in the chest. Griner, shot in the ankle, is in good condition, and Barth, shot in the leg, is also in good condition. Members of the House have decided they will not give into fear. The game will be played as scheduled Thursday.

Chapter 4 : Give a Boy a Gun by Todd Strasser

PICTURED: Maryland high school gunman, 17, killed during 'exchange of fire' with deputy who confronted him less than ONE minute after he shot boy, 14 and girl, 16, he 'had a prior relationship with'.

Weekly astrology column over urgent topics. Seeing Guns in Your Sleep: What It Means To Dream About Guns The word gun is listed in just about every dream dictionary imaginable because of how prevalent they are in the media and culture. The gun as a dream symbol is just as powerful. We see guns everywhere now, in movies, in TV, and sometimes in the streets. We even have to hear about them in lots of popular music. Guns have taken over the list of top fears, higher than snakes and almost as high as public speaking. With this in mind, it is hard to imagine the meaning of dream regarding guns as anything other than powerful. Correctly, it seems that a conventional dream interpretation for a dream about guns is very powerful indeed. When a gun enters your dream, the first thing you imagine is probably danger. Well, that is probably a good thing, since the gun symbolizes danger in dreams just as it does in waking life. The gun as an emotional symbol is also host to many other dream interpretations. Some say that guns symbolize anger and aggression, or fear and cowardice. Some even say that they symbolize death. These are all true, the only stipulation being that it all depends on who is holding the gun in these dreams. If you do see a gun, there is a good chance that you are really worried about something in your life. There are many different dream symbols that represent worry or fear, but the gun is one of the most urgent ones. If you are dreaming of guns, then you may be considering something very serious and important happening within the next few days that is of a very threatening nature. Gun dreams should be dealt with in some way immediately. If you are dreaming about loading a gun, this is your subconscious way of warning yourself not to get too carried away with your angry emotions, it could lead to violence. If you dream that you are using a gun to shoot someone, then it denotes your aggression and anger, and at the same time indicates that you are feeling particularly angry towards one specific person, if the person in the dream is identifiable. And if you are attempting to shoot someone and the gun jams, fails to fire, or misfires, this indicates feelings of aggression as well as feelings of powerlessness. No matter what is happening in your dream, as soon as a gun is pulled, or even seen, the atmosphere of the dream becomes dark, and the gun is the focal point. When you see a gun in your dreams, make sure to find out why it happened as soon as possible.

Chapter 5 : U.S. News | Latest National News, Videos & Photos - ABC News - ABC News

A teen pupil, Ashley, told local media the injured boy was the gunman and the weapon accidentally went off injuring two others "It's heartbreaking.

I have rounded up OVER 50 awesome crafts, diys and games to do play and make with toy cars! There is so much car goodness all in one post! Lego race track 5. Pool noodle track 7. You have to make it festive. They have little sport drinks that are perfect for kids. Lots of fun colors! Just cut off the wrapper and add your own printables [â€] best lego presents! November 23, By Kimbo This post contains affiliate links. When anyone asks what he wants for his birthday I say.. All views and opinions are my own and no other compensation was provided. He was such a good sport when we moved. The girls were so sad to leave their rooms, friends, school, house. But he was such a trooper. I bribed [â€] Tool chest makeover. I came across this tool chestâ€it was uuugly. May 14, By Kimbo cardboard week continuesâ€with a little lego love.. Anywaysâ€I was in charge of the treatâ€and I had every intention of throwing a box of fruit roll ups at the kidsâ€”but I then I saw these cuties and the idea came! Just [â€] a secret messageâ€with invisible.. May 6, By Kimbo my son was super excited to try this invisible ink with lemon juice recipe out!

Chapter 6 : About a Boy () - IMDb

However, a rude boy keeps throwing sand balls at her. She get's so mad at the boys behavior that she whips out a nerf gun. When she's about to win the battle, her brother that she dueled in the.

Students recall terrifying shooting incident at Texas school year-old boy opened fire with semi-automatic handgun in cafeteria at Italy High School. A recent breakup may have pushed a student with a history of aggressive actions to shoot and seriously injure a year-old girl in the cafeteria of their Texas high school on Monday, officials said. Multiple students and a parent told FOX4 News the year-old suspected gunman at Italy High School was in a relationship with the victim, but the pair had recently broken up. The students and parent told FOX4 the teenager was very upset about the breakup. The judge ordered the year-old to remain in juvenile detention on the grounds that he is a danger to himself and others and does not have adequate supervision. He will undergo a psychological evaluation before his next detention hearing on Feb. Law enforcement personnel gather outside the high school in Italy, Texas, following an active shooter incident. Officials have not yet announced if the case will remain in juvenile court, or whether prosecutors will charge him as an adult. Joe Fitzgerald told the Associated Press officials would inquire about any dating history involving the two as part of the investigation. Fitzgerald also said officials know where the handgun used in the shooting was obtained, but declined to publicly reveal that information. The year-old girl who was wounded in the gunfire is in "good spirits," Italy Independent School District Superintendent Lee Joffre said Tuesday after making a visit at a Dallas hospital. While officials have not officially released the name of the girl, an off-duty Dallas firefighter is being credited with helping to save her life. Authorities believe a breakup may have motivated a shooting at the high school in Italy, Texas. Charles Hyles told FOX4 News his kids go to the high school, and when he heard what happened Monday he ran inside the school to help. Fellow students said the shooter had a violent history, and one parent told FOX4 she had complained to school administrators after the same boy threw scissors at her daughter in anger. Then last year, the boy got angry during a class and threw a pair of scissors at her friend and later threw a computer against a wall, she said. He says that the district "adheres to regulations established by the Texas Education Agency. In his statement Tuesday to parents and the community , Joffre said he understands they have "many questions and concerns. Travis Fedschun is a reporter for FoxNews. Follow him on Twitter travfed Trending in US.

Chapter 7 : The fightback against gendered toys | Life and style | The Guardian

Its a romance where a girl is living in a student house next to this rich boy and he has a party one night and a drunk person gets in a bulldozer and accidently destroys her house in court the rich boys dad said she had to live with him and the boys grandad owns a vineyard and the girls dad is a con artist.

The duo meets at the apartment complex where they both reside, and stumble upon each other again at the host club where Masamune works. Because of this, Masamune temporarily dismisses her from the team after TGC for fear of her having the same experience as Haruki. Hotaru defeats Masamune In chapter 17 of the manga, Masamune dreams of Hotaru as a girl and wakes up flustered. It is shown in further chapters that he briefly imagines her to be more feminine and cute, but denies it because he still believes she is a boy. On several occasions in the manga, it is implied that Masamune is developing a crush on her. He tries to sabotage her first survival game, where she plays as a team for the first time in a practice match against Grey Hound, by leaving her to deal with her opponents alone while they played against three members of the opposing team. He did that with the intention of hoping Hotaru quit the team and would never play again. His relationship with Hotaru begins to grow from here on; she is alone on one side of the field against all the members of the opposing team while believing that Tooru would come to help her. She continues calling out to him and stands up for him when the opposing team slanders him for "Fight with me and save Matsun. When Masamune dismisses Hotaru after TGC, Tooru steps in and takes a stand for her, making it the first time he had talked back to Masamune. He grows to acknowledge Hotaru as an important member of the team but does not directly state that she is a friend of his. In episode 2, he is blushing which hints that he is developing feelings for Hotaru. He greeted her warmly, giving her the impression that he was a very kind and friendly person. Since then, Hotaru is completely disgusted with his actions and ultimately regrets ever believing he was a nice guy. Although Kanae is strongly against it, she decides that it is better for Hotaru to do what makes her happy. In the scene when Kanae challenges Hotaru to a running match to convey the encouraging words Hotaru spoke to her and the volleyball team, a long time, Hotaru finally understands what she is trying to imply. This act causes Kanae to blush, hinting that she might possess romantic feelings for her best friend, despite knowing her gender. Flustered, Kanae sprints 50 m in only a few seconds, astounding the crowd around her. This act of her again implies that she might have a crush on Tachibana Hotaru. The two continue to engage in combat and Hotaru is winning, but accidentally forgets to take off the safety lock of her gun while trying to finish him. In later chapters, the two have appeared to become close to each other. Edit Haruki defeats Hotaru Hotaru calls him HaruHaruki - even before they officially met - which disturbs him at first. Hotaru thinks that while he can be annoying and stupid at times, he has good intentions. This stopped after he made Hotaru do chores for him for an entire day. Haruki finds out He tries to move on from his loss after Hotaru gets him to meet his twin after a long separation. Being the only member who knows her secret, Haruki shows concern over the other members of their team finding out her true gender. There have also been hints in the manga that Haruki may have a crush on her. They ask Hotaru if she knows the stranger. Hotaru replies that Kane is a parent and leaves them shocked as well as confused because the gender of the parent is not specified. Hotaru mentions that she fought against her mother in order to convince her mother that she was capable of staying in Japan instead of going to America. Hence, she states to Masamune, Yukimura, and Hosokawa that she is intimidated by her own daughter due to her bloodlust. Masamune and Yukimura beg for Kane to leave Hotaru to them to which she comically beats them up for beating up Hosokawa too.

Chapter 8 : How the congressional shooting unfolded - CBS News

The year-old girl and 5-year-old boy were walking on the block of Hope Street and Grange Avenue near the One & Olney Shopping Center around p.m. when gunfire rang out Makiya Williams.

Chapter 9 : Boy A () - IMDb

DOWNLOAD PDF A BOY, A GIRL AND A GUNMAN

Achieving the simple goal of hitting a target with a foam-ball gun can be extremely satisfying for an active little boy, and it helps develop hand-eye coordination to boot.