Chapter 1 : WHKMLA : History of E.I.C. India

Excerpt from A Calendar of the Court Minutes Etc; Of the East India Company, The period covered by the present volume commences just before the calling of the Short Parliament and ends (in the middle of the Civil War) with the death of Pym and the southward march of the Scottish troops to aid the forces of the English Parliament.

Family ties[ edit ] There was a family of Fotherbys in Grimsby , Lincolnshire. Robert Fotherby may have belonged to this Grimsby stock. Whaling voyages to Spitsbergen Svalbard , â€”[ edit ] [ edit ] Fotherby was among the crew of seven ships sent by the Muscovy Company to Greenland Spitsbergen in May The only notable occurrence Fotherby spoke of in his journal was that he ascended a glacier in Josephbukta , a bay on the western side of Recherche Fjord. The glacier in question was probably Renardbreen Fox glacier. He named the former Maudlin Sound, the latter Trinity Harbor. Several times in July and August, Fotherby, along with William Baffin , pilot of the Thomasine, using two shallops, explored the northern coast of Spitsbergen. They explored and named Raudfjorden Red-cliff Sound its modern name is merely a corruption of this earlier namesake. Fotherby named the cape separating its two southern branches Point Deceit now called Narreneset , its Norwegian equivalent , and its eastern entrance Point Welcome which modern maps have misplaced further east. The large, open bay to the east he named Broad bay Breibogen , its Norwegian equivalent , and its shore Red Beach. Climbing atop a high hill along the eastern shore of Woodfjorden in early August, Fotherby and Baffin saw a long, wide bay Wijdefjorden and a point to the northeast Verlegenuken. It had Laurence Prestwood, as well as two or three other names, engraved on it. It bore the date 17 August Walking along its western shore, Fotherby and Baffin traveled almost a league further, where, from a point of land jutting into the fjord, they were able to see the end of Wijdefjorden several leagues to the south. The ice would not allow them to explore further, so they made their way back to their ship, which was anchored in the southern harbor of Fairhaven Smeerenburgfjorden. They attempted to sail the ship around the northern coast of Spitsbergen, but could only reach the mouth of Wijdefjorden before being forced to turn back because of the ice. The Thomasine left the latitude of Spitsbergen in early September and arrived back in England early the next month. The island may have been discovered the year before by the Dutchman Fopp Gerritsz. Three years later he was said to be "confirmed in his place and salary. In July , he is mentioned as one of the men chosen as officers of the Company: In October the Company learned of his death, and on 16th of the same month he was buried. His son died three years later. Arctic Exploration and Development, c. De eerste Nederlandse tochten ter walvisvaart , p. Hart says it occurred in The first two indexes are clearly mistaken, as the text above shows. References[ edit ] Conway, W. At the University Press.
