History[edit] Modern conjectural depiction of the lost western section of the Tabula Peutingeriana , showing a representation of the Pillars of Hercules Columne Ercole. According to Greek mythology adopted by the Etruscans and Romans, when Hercules had to perform twelve labours , one of them the tenth was to fetch the Cattle of Geryon of the far West and bring them to Eurystheus ; this marked the westward extent of his travels. A lost passage of Pindar quoted by Strabo was the earliest traceable reference in this context: Renaissance tradition says the pillars bore the warning Ne plus ultra also Non plus ultra, "nothing further beyond" , serving as a warning to sailors and navigators to go no further. According to some Roman sources, [4] while on his way to the garden of the Hesperides on the island of Erytheia , Hercules had to cross the mountain that was once Atlas. Instead of climbing the great mountain, Hercules used his superhuman strength to smash through it. These two mountains taken together have since then been known as the Pillars of Hercules, though other natural features have been associated with the name. In some versions, Heracles instead built the two to hold the sky away from the earth, liberating Atlas from his damnation. Strabo notes [9] that the two bronze pillars within the temple, each eight cubits high, were widely proclaimed to be the true Pillars of Hercules by many who had visited the place and had sacrificed to Heracles there. But Strabo believes the account to be fraudulent, in part noting that the inscriptions on those pillars mentioned nothing about Heracles, speaking only of the expenses incurred by the Phoenicians in their making. The columns of the Melqart temple at Tyre were also of religious significance. The Pillars in Syriac geography[edit] Syriac scholars were aware of the Pillars through their efforts to translate Greek scientific works into their language as well as into Arabic. Ulysses justifies endangering his sailors by the fact that his goal is to gain knowledge of the unknown. After five months of navigation in the ocean, Ulysses sights the mountain of Purgatory but encounters a whirlwind from it that sinks his ship and all on it for their daring to approach Purgatory while alive, by their strength and wits alone. Pillars as a portal[edit] The columns as depicted in the Spanish coat of arms. It was an idea of the Italian humanist Luigi Marliano. This was modified from the phrase Nec plus ultra, Nothing more beyond after the discovery of the Americas , which laid to rest the idea of the Pillars of Hercules as the westernmost extremity of the inhabitable world which had prevailed since Antiquity. The motto along the base says Multi pertransibunt et augebitur scientia "Many will pass through and knowledge will be the greater". The image was based on the use of the pillars in Spanish and Habsburg propaganda. In architecture[edit] On the Spanish coast at Los Barrios are Torres de Hercules which are twin towers that were inspired by the Pillars of Hercules. These towers were the tallest in Andalusia until Cajasol Tower was completed in Seville in In the world[edit].

It is unlucky to see your face in a mirror by candlelight. A mirror should be covered during a thunderstorm because it attracts lightning. If a mirror in the house falls and breaks by itself, someone in the house will die soon. It also cures many diseases, is an antidote to poison and brings good luck and fertility. A girl standing under a mistletoe cannot refuse to be kissed by anyone who claims the privilege. MOTH A white moth inside the house or trying to enter the house means death. NOSE If your nose itches, someone is coming to see you. ONION An onion cut in half and placed under the bed of a sick person will draw off fever and poisons. A wish will come true if you make it while burning onions. OWL It is bad luck to see an owl in the sunlight. PENCIL If you use the same pencil to take a test that you used for studying for the test, the pencil will remember the answers. A rainbow in the West that gleams, Rain tomorrow falls in streams. RED A red ribbon should be placed on a child who has been sick to keep the illness from returning. ROBIN A wish made upon seeing the first robin in spring will come true - but only if you complete the wish before the robin flies away. SALT Bad luck will follow the spilling of salt unless a pinch is thrown over the left shoulder into the face of the devil waiting there. Put salt on the doorstep of a new house and no evil can enter. Salty soup is a sign that the cook is in love. The seventh son of a seventh son has magic powers, according to Irish folklore, but is a vampire in Romanian legend. SHOES Do not place shoes upon a table, for this will bring bad luck for the day, cause trouble with your mate and you might even lose your job as a result. Your soul may escape otherwise. The devil can enter your body when you sneeze. Having someone say, "God bless you," drives the devil away. If you sneeze on a Monday, you sneeze for danger; Sneeze on a Tuesday, kiss a stranger; Sneeze on a Wednesday, sneeze for a letter; Sneeze on a Thursday, something better; Sneeze on a Friday, sneeze for sorrow; Sneeze on a Saturday, see your sweetheart tomorrow. Sneeze on a Sunday, and the devil will have domination over you all week.
