Rwanda Historically, the Commonwealth was an evolutionary outgrowth of the British Empire. The traditional British policy of allowing considerable self-government in its colonies led to the existence by the 19th century of several dependent states that were populated to a significant degree by Europeans accustomed to forms of parliamentary rule and that possessed large measures of sovereignty. In India and Pakistan became members of the Commonwealth, the first with chiefly non-European populations. In Burma Myanmar became independent and rejected membership. That declaration was the first to drop the adjective British, and thereafter the official name of the organization became the Commonwealth of Nations, or simply the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth was also beset by other difficulties, some members opting to withdraw from the organization, as did Ireland , South Africa , and Pakistan , though both South Africa and Pakistan eventually rejoined the former in and the latter in Commonwealth membership grew dramatically in the second half of the 20th century as former dependencies attained sovereignty. Most of the dependent states granted independence chose Commonwealth membership, and the organization has even grown to include Mozambique joined , which was the first country granted entry that was never part of the British Empire or under the control of any member. The Commonwealth differs from other international bodies. It has no formal constitution or bylaws. The members have no legal or formal obligation to one another; they are held together by shared traditions, institutions, and experiences as well as by economic self-interest. Commonwealth action is based upon consultation between members, which is conducted through correspondence and through conversations in meetings. Each member country sends an emissary, called a high commissioner, to the capitals of the other members. A Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting is held every two years. This declaration was echoed at the meeting in Harare , Zimbabwe , in , when leaders further committed the organization to human rights and democracy. Britain has huge overseas investments, both government and private, in the Commonwealth. When Britain joined the European Economic Community later succeeded by the European Union [EU] in , the trade privileges of member countries began to be reduced. Now Commonwealth members have trade agreements with the EU. Many of the exports of Commonwealth countries go to other member countries. In the Commonwealth Africa Investment Fund was established to increase investment in that continent. There are also significant educational links between members, as many British teachers travel overseas and many students from Commonwealth members study in Britain. Other cultural links include the Commonwealth Games , a sporting competition held every four years. In addition to independent members, the Commonwealth also comprises dependent territories, which are formally governed by the United Kingdom, Australia , or New Zealand. Most of the older dependencies are colonies. The United Kingdom has followed a policy of leading the dependencies toward self-government by creating territorial governments in them. These governments comprise a lawmaking body often called the legislative council ; an executive body called the executive council , which with the governor is the executive authority; and an independent judiciary. At first government posts are appointive, but an increasing elected element is introduced, as constitutions are altered, until elected officials are made wholly responsible for local affairs. After a colony achieves internal self-government, its legislature may apply to the British Parliament for complete independence. It then decides whether to remain in the Commonwealth. Correspondence Institutions in the Commonwealth, ; Education in the Commonwealth. El-Bushra, J. This survey provides basic information on the use of correspondence education by university, government, and other non-profit organizations within the British Commonwealth countries.

This applies both to online and traditional brick and mortar programs offered by out-of-state institutions. Does this apply only to distance education students or more generally: Maintaining a location physical building in the state that is used for instructional activity: Maintaining a location physical building in the state that is used ONLY for non-instructional activity administration, recruitment, etc. Housing ONLY computer servers or other equipment at a physical location in the state: Maintaining an in-state address or phone number, regardless of use: What if the agent is only recruiting students in the state on an occasional basis i. It would depend on the nature of the services and to the extent the institution is conducting business in the Commonwealth. Please see the answer to 4a. Requiring a student to take a proctored exam at a location or with an entity in the state prescribed by the institution: Requiring a student to take a proctored exam with an entity in the state chosen by the student but approved by the institution: Advertising in local media sources that are largely viewed by residents of the state: Systematic and targeted advertising may trigger the need for approval. The determination in regards to advertising and the need for approval depends to a great deal on how Massachusetts consumers are affected e. Is the institution trying to reach into another jurisdiction? What is the specific degree of interactivity? Institutions should contact Department staff for more information. Any answers on the need to be approved would be specific to the actual situation and would be formulated after a staff review of the actual in place constellation of facts at the time of such review. Please note that institutions must not advertise programs subject to Board approval prior to receiving Board approval. This would be considered false advertising and subject to criminal charges and fines. Advertising in national media sources that can be accessed by residents of the state: Yes Please see the response above. What about adjunct faculty: Employing mentors, tutors, or preceptors in the state to aid students, who are residents of the state, on an individual basis: Employing mentors, tutors or preceptors in the state to aid students may likely indicate that the institution is operating courses or degree requirements within the state. Please see 4a 5b1 for more information. Combinations - Of the activities or conditions listed above that alone would not constitute a physical presence, are there any that, if combined, would create a physical presence: Description " Please provide a short description of the application process to obtain state authorization. If available, please provide web links to the specific references to all applicable state laws, regulations, manuals, forms, or other pertinent documents: Independent institutions must submit an application to the Board of Higher Education. Processing Time " Generally, how long does it take to approve applications assuming that the agency has received all required information from the institution? Please provide a typical range if appropriate: The typical application process can take from 9 month to a year or more. Duration " What is the authorization duration: There is no time limitation. An authorization is valid as long an institution remains in compliance with regulations or ceases to operate. Maintenance " What does an institution need to do to maintain authorization: Reporting " What kinds of information or data must an institution report to your agency as a condition for continued authorization? How frequently is this reported or updated? Is this information published or shared publicly: Any institution under the purview of the Board must respond to inquiries on an as needed basis. With limited exception, all documents made or received by the DHE are public records and subject to disclosure upon request. Loss of Status " Can an institution lose its authorized status? An investigation of an institution will be carried out when facts are brought to the attention of the Board suggesting a reasonable probability of non-compliance with CMR 2. When an investigation is undertaken to inquire into probable noncompliance with standards, the Board will require the institution to provide specific information pertinent to the specific concern. The Board may require the institution to provide some or all of the information described in CMR 2.
