So you have a list of books you need to buy for college. It tends to be easier if you can search multiple sites at once, and this is the easiest way to do it. This should be able to find most of your books. Unfortunately, not every book ever published is going to be on the internet. You can download ebooks via irc. The easiest way to search is on a search engine, like this one: Load the client and then type: A few seconds later a searchbot will offer you a file, so accept the download. That will send you a. I searched for Lian Hearn and got a list of files. After seconds you get a prompt asking you to accept or decline the file. You know how to do the rest. There are private torrent trackers that require either registration or an invite from someone else already on the site in order to join. However, you still have many options. You can rent it from Chegg, get it used from Biblio. Chegg is a site where you can rent or buy used textbooks and also read some of the online. The rented version normally comes in a. These are probably both DRM-Protected. This will allow you to remove the DRM on all azw4 and mobi files while removing your account name from the metadata. Then you can drag the. At this point, you have no use for the DRMed copy of the book, so you can return it if you wish, and essentially get the book for free, or you can do whatever else you want with the book. If all else fails, or you need some kind of online access code, your only choice is to buy the physical copy of the book or the online key. Some good places to do so are Library Genesis and any subreddit in This Multireddit. Hopefully this will help you find most of your textbooks that you need for your classes and allow you to study without having to give even more money to the publishers who are trying to take advantage of our situation.
