She was lying there, limp, her face drained of color. And why did she smell so good after being away for such a short period of time? Moreover, it was different from her usual fragrance. Bai Xiangxiu could feel him drawing closer and closer, and it was quickly inching towards a dangerous kind of distance. Given that she was prone on the bed, she had no place to run to, but her expression became a bit awkward. She was already this in this state, what was he drawing so close for? The Three Days of Inebriation was still in her! Should she mention it to him? Long Heng frowned, inwardly blaming her for disrupting the mood. Therefore, he misunderstood her words to be the ones from a woman who cared deeply about her looks. However, before he had a chance to do anything else, he received a report that Duan Yunying had come back was currently receiving treatment for heavy injuries. Because someone had told him about Duan Yunying beforehand, Long Heng frowned at hearing this. As for that woman with him— Just as Long Heng was pondering about that woman, she appeared in front of him, dropping to her knees in front of him with an audible thunk. It will be difficult for him to survive. Yet, a cold hand gripped her chin, nearly hauling her upright. The slightly blue eyes blinked back at him, full of a watery mist that invited pity from others. Long Heng however, laughed coldly before flinging her to the ground. If he did, then she could leave that man and never have to see him again. Or, she could use the male lead to kill that man, that perverted master from her past life. She hated her master in this life. Only this man could hack through all the brambles. If he met a god, he could slay a god. If he met a demon, he could slaughter them. He was truly a rare hegemon. That was why she thought so highly of him. In terms of emotions, she was only a little bit envious of Lin Qianzi, since every woman wished for a man like this. Your Highness, it hurts— ah! She was indeed beautiful, but only when she was spritely and full of life. That passionate woman was now lying on the ground, sobbing gently. No matter how one looked at the scene, something was definitely odd. It was as if an exquisite painting had been hung in the latrines, which instantly devalued it. His woman was still lying on the bed in pain, and he was already in a rush to have someone fetch the imperial doctor from the capital. What time did he have to waste with her? A servant rushed over and she raised a weak hand to let them help her, leaning on them as she walked off, complaining loudly all the while. The other man was the one that needed an eye kept on him, but the important one was the woman. He felt that sending her away was the right thing to do. It would be wrong to not help them along. Her face looked so pale, and turned visibly nervous upon seeing him. But, this was likely because he knew about her dirty deeds. Miss Lin likes to jest. He would need a reason to make his explanations to the emperor and dowager empress. Otherwise, it would be a violation of the imperial order. That will indeed be difficult to explain! In order to avenge you, I will personally kill that thief and bring his head to your grave. What do you think, Miss Lin? So much so, that she completely forgot everything she wanted to say.
