

Chapter 1 : Alfred Campbell, the Young Pilgrim

TH a Writer of the following Tour has endeavored to present, in a form acceptable to Youth, the leading facts, and most interesting descriptions of the places spoken of, as given by approved authors; for which purpose she has diligently read all the latest and best publications.

The Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants was founded in to perpetuate the memory of our Pilgrim ancestors and to maintain and defend the principles of civil and religious liberty set forth in the Mayflower Compact. Membership is open to all who can prove lineal descent from one of the Mayflower passengers. This website is a resource for current members and anyone else interested in learning more about the Pilgrims, the Mayflower, and early New England history. Here you can explore all our society has to offer—learn how to apply for membership and scholarships; see and RSVP to our upcoming events; read our publications; find links for further research; and purchase items in our store. Scroll around, pull down some menus, click on a few links and read all about the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Upcoming Activities There are no up-coming events Scholarly Journals Accepted for Mayflower Research It is sometimes possible to utilize published sources or problem-solving articles without consulting the original sources yourself. The purpose of scholarly journals is to analyze difficult problems, review the evidence, and present a solid conclusion and publish source material to a wider audience. The key to this in the modern i. Below is a list of journals deemed of high quality that can be used in your effort to document your Mayflower lineage. This is not an exclusive list, but the ones more commonly seen. The ones noted with " " have consolidated name indexes in some form. If the article you require is not in your local library or linked on FindMyPast, you can obtain a copy by contacting the Allen County Public Library. The only officially sanctioned source for approved lineages published is the Mayflower Families Through Five Generations "silver" books and the associated Mayflower Families in Process "pink" pamphlets. Older applications from family members that used secondary sources or any of the Mayflower Index books will need to be redocumented for any new application for membership. General Mayflower History Readers wishing a better general understanding on the passengers, culture, time, history, and genealogy should consult any of the following in print books: University Press of New England, Jeremy Dupertuis Bangs, see numerous articles in the New England Ancestors magazine for various aspects of Pilgrim life, especially before their arrival in Plymouth Boston: New England Historic Genealogical Society, n. The table is arranged in alphabetical order for quick access with a brief account of each passenger. To understand more about the date this list was created, see our research article. The list contains all the latest data on each of the Mayflower passengers. Each entry usually includes the parentage if known , birth, death, and marriage s. It is noted whether the men had signed the Compact and whether the passenger left any known descendants beyond their children. This is meant to be a quick reference guide and authority of the facts presented. It is the culmination of all the scholarship since the re-discovery of the Bradford manuscript history published first in It is this manuscript that is the basis for who is ultimately a passenger or not. There is no other source to corroborate it. Bradford calls several single young men hired seamen, cooper, etc. He treats them as "passengers" possibly because the Company hired them. There are other men who are the officers and crew of the ship. Few of these men are known and are not considered passengers even though they, too, had to stay in Plymouth Colony the first winter where half of them met their death as did the passengers. For this reason, the General Society of Mayflower Descendants does not recognize for membership anyone who descends from any officer or crew. The goal will be to gather all documents created by each passenger and those that reference them along with all known articles or books published on them. If you should have any additional material not reflected here, please email the office so we may update our information.
