

Chapter 1 : Alternate Generals III (, Paperback) | eBay

Alternate Generals II Alternate Generals, Baen, , is a collection of short alternate history stories, edited by Harry Turtledove and Roland J. Green. It includes Turtledove's own short story, " The Phantom Tolbukhin ".

Agent of Byzantium Imperial Byzantine special agent Basil Argyros is sent on various missions in a world where Muhammad became a Christian saint and consequently Islam never existed and the Byzantine Empire never fell. A Different Flesh A related set of short stories spanning the 17th to 20th centuries set in a universe where the ancestors of the Native Americans never crossed into the New World , only Homo erectus , who become known as "sims" to the colonists of English descent. A human interstellar survey team violates a directive to avoid interference with alien civilizations, with disastrous long-term consequences. Re-published in the collection 3xT. A World Of Difference In this alternative history story, the 4th planet of our solar system is larger and named Minerva instead of Mars. The Viking space probe of the s sends back one picture€"that of an alien creature swinging a stick€"before losing contact. The Confederate army is supplied with AKs by time traveling members of the Afrikaner Weerstandsbeweging from the year and win the Civil War in The Case of the Toxic Spell Dump EPA agent David Fisher battles displaced magical powers in a very creative sorcerous equivalent to lateth century Los Angeles. He follows the evidence to a toxic spell dump, where dangerous remnants of industrial sorcery are stored. At the end of the Miocene period, the Mediterranean Sea stays dry to the present day. The dry sea basin is a large canyon containing a national park, and a strongbrow who works as a park ranger must race to stop terrorists from letting in the Atlantic and flooding the area. Set in the year in a world where the American Revolution was peacefully avoided. The painting that symbolizes the union between North America and the United Kingdom is stolen by the terrorist group known as the Sons of Liberty , who want independence from the British Empire. Officers of the Royal American Mounted Police must find it before it is destroyed. Early Christians in the Greek city of Thessalonica deal with barbarian invaders on both physical and metaphysical levels the book was inspired by the Medieval Miracles of Saint Demetrius. Between the Rivers Taking place in a fantasy realm equivalent to ancient Mesopotamia , city-states ruled by different gods fight for dominance. Counting Up, Counting Down A short story collection. It describes a world where the philosopher Socrates aids the Athenian general Alcibiades in defeating the Sicilians and Spartans , allowing him to unite the city-states of ancient Greece and contemplate war on the Persian Empire about 80 or 90 years before it happened in our history. Uncle Alf , now readable on line: A novella included in the collections Alternate Generals volume 2 and Atlantis and other places. Ruled Britannia alternate history: In the Presence of Mine Enemies alternate history: Conan of Venarium An authorized prequel to Robert E. An acrobat becomes king of a small country. Although set in a fantasy world, it is analogous to the real world, this time in the Balkans, between the first and second Balkan War. Shqiperi is modeled on Albania , and the story itself is modeled on the story of Otto Witte. Historical retelling of the Battle of Fort Pillow. In , viewpoint character Pope Benedict XVI unnamed but recognizable is led by an eccentric priest to a secret bunker under the Vatican for a little-known initiation undertaken by each new pontiff since the days of Saint Peter. The Man with the Iron Heart Reinhard Heydrich survives an assassination attempt in Czechoslovakia by partisans and later goes on to lead an insurgent movement against the Allied occupation of Germany. Turtledove mixes information gleaned from authentic German documents and intentions with another historical transplant, in this case the Iraqi insurgency of transplanted to mids Germany. After the Downfall The story resembles the formula of Edgar Rice Burroughs and L. A limited edition hardcover containing eight stories, including six never before reprinted and one original story. Give Me Back My Legions! A historical novel detailing the events leading up to the Battle of the Teutoburg Forest , as well as the battle itself. Expanded from the short story of the same name, this alternative history deals with Joseph Stalin whose Americanized name is the title character having been born and raised in America. Roosevelt is ended by a fire at the New York State Executive Mansion , the Democratic Party has little choice but to nominate the upcoming Steele as their candidate for the Presidential election. The House of Daniel As the team travels to play against the home teams of various western American towns, the young man learns about the culture of the towns they visit, and has passing encounters with vampires, werewolves, zombies, and other magical beings. Through Darkest Europe Set in modern times where Islam developed science, technology and enlightenment while Western Europe remained a hotbed of Christian fundamentalism. The working title for the book was God Wills It. Web publishing[edit] Winter of Our Discontent: The Impeachment and Trial of John F. Kennedy , fragment of a novel, co-written with T. After John Kennedy survives the attack at Dealey Plaza unharmed, the resulting investigation sets events in motion that tear apart his administration. Zabel eventually published the final work as a solo project entitled Surrounded by Enemies: In , Ruth reminisces about what could have been with a skeptical H. Turtledove, Harry February 3, Retrieved January 28, The story is told from the perspective of U. Lee , acting commander of the Department of Texas, decides to defend U. Turtledove, Harry January 8, In , an elderly Jewish woman shares stories of her life with a group of eighth-graders.

Chapter 2 : Alternative History | FANDOM powered by Wikia

Of the other alternate history short stories, I thought "A Hard Day for Mother", "Billy Mitchell's Overt Act", and "Craft of War" all had particular merit. Several of the others were somewhat "forgettable".

Home Page Dec 27, note: March 1, Note: I read Alternate Generals earlier this year and have prepared some commentary for each story including plot summaries, so spoilers, ho! AG has a cover from another alternate history Romans in tanks, no story in this anthology has both. But, it does have 16 stories, most are actually Alternate History. According to William Sanders, Turtledove was quite active in preparing the anthology. This story looks like historical fantasy the Roman is placed under an effective curse or secret history. Elizabeth Moon - "Tradition": He does not avoid action unlike Tourbridge of OTL. Julius Caesar on the eve of the Ides of March - different fate, possibly the same final result. Lee at the Crimean War. There appears to have been no American Revolution, but there was still a French Revolution which was suppressed earlier than on OTL and a conflict with Russia in the mid s and with fighting in the Crimea no less. Lois Tilton - "The Craft of War": A dialogue between Alcibiades and Socrates in an Athens conquered by Xerxes circa. In this time line, Xerxes had a military advisor and a most effective one from the far east "Sontseus" was how Socrates rendered the name. The fellow also wrote a book in Chinese, which nobody in the Persian Empire could read - I suspect that it would had been a big hit back in China ;. As a side note, there is a goodly amount of scholarship which holds that The Art of War was written somewhat later than what is claimed by the legend attached to it. I have read a brief summary of this and I noticed that one proposed author, a Sun Pin, appears to be a contemporary of Alexander the Great. So this suggests a parallel what-if: Jody Lynn Nye - "Queen of the Amazons": I am puzzled by the implication that Damascus had been a Crusader possession. Is this an implied PoD? At least the 2nd Crusade ends up capturing Damascus rather than being completely useless. Harry Turtledove - "The Phantom Tolbukhin": If fact, the initial impression is deliberately misleading. On the other hand, Nikita Khrushchev is a supporting character, what more can one ask? President Eisenhower is at his home at Gettysburg recovering from a stroke which appears to be the PoD. So is this Alternate History? Bill Fawcett - "The Last Crusader": William Sanders had a few pointed comments about the paragraph below. I also added a sentence at the end. A word to the wise, Mr. Sanders does not believe in being gentle when correcting idiots. This is presented as a series of excerpts from newspaper columns, speeches, interviews and books. He trains the crews for low-level bombing, not high attitude, and, using a rather creative interpretation of his orders from General Short, institutes a program of long range reconaissance flights around the Hawaiian Islands, especially to the northwest of Oahu. On the evening of December 5th, one comes back with a report of seeing a bunch of ships including aircraft carriers. General Mitchell, again without telling General Short, organizes a mass strike of all the Bs that could get into the air which was only 12 , takes off well before dawn, and finds the Japanese task force in the process of refueling. I was somewhat surprised upon finding a list of all the ships in that task force to discover that there were seven oilers with the Japanese task force I had thought that they would have been too slow. The subsequent war in the Pacific follows a slightly different path and the post-war actions in the Asia is even more noticeably different. Janet Berliner - "A Case for Justice": Jan Smuts in the twilight of his life, lost in the sea of his memories. Forstchen - "A Hard Day for Mother": On July 2, he finds himself the commander of a Confederate Army regiment attacking Little Round Top guess what Union unit is defending? In addition, I consider the epilogue of the story to be a cheat. David Weber - "The Captain from Kirkbean": Even though a son of a gardener, he had been a midshipman at Quiberon Bay his father had saved the life of a relative of the Captain of a 3rd rate Ship of the Line and, in his mid 30s, was a Captain of a 74 himself I would like to know how he got promoted without any family connections whatsoever - perhaps the Admiral who had done so had been his first Captain. By chance, a French dispatch falls into his hands, and he organizes a scratch squadron he happened to be the senior Captain on hand to sail to Chesapeake Bay which he reaches before De Grasse did with his much larger French fleet. A desparate battle by a badly outnumbered force ensues, which allows Captain Paul to deliver his signature line "Surrender? I have not yet begun to fight! Admiral Nelson faces what is to be his last battle, at the Cape of Trafalgar. Basically, he defects to the French in the early s because of his career has floundered but ravings about other officers getting promotions because of connections are silly because he still got his big promotion to post-captain - the only one that really mattered in c. Furthermore, the Battle of the Nile still occurs offstage with roughly the same forces, starting positions, and final result as in OTL. This is also silly even though it inspires Napoleon to give Nelson unlimited authority to build a fleet that could win , the Nelson of OTL ignored the tactical book there and got an extraordinary result perhaps even an unique result. Admiral Collingwood at Trafalgar is using a double column attack this is also silly, who other than Nelson would ignore the tactical book to that extreme? And get away with it? Thomsen - "Bloodstained Ground": Sam discovers that the hero of Little Big Horn Cynical story of politics and the press would fit in well with the Hearst-Pulitzer paper wars in the late s. In the first part, Werner Moelders becomes in essence the Luftwaffe airplane production chief at the end of He makes all the right decisions and has the authority to implement them. By the way, I remember reading or at least looking at a military history article that had capsule descriptions many Luftwaffe aces and commanders. Well, I did what I should have done while writing the original post - use Google to find any online material. In the second part, it is the spring of when he takes over command of the air units in France. There is no Operation Overlord I would have thought that the amount of fighter aircraft that the Americans and British could put over France would still swamp the forces on hand and that MEs would still very vulnerable when landing. Come August and there is still no invasion and the Soviets are still far away from the gates of Berlin. But, it is August and the warranty of the Third Reich expires. A B bomber block comes in high over central Germany and a new sun rises

Chapter 3 : Alternate Generals II by Harry Turtledove

When it comes to alternate history there are unlimited possibilities of what could and couldn't happen. So I find it very annoying when Nelson instead of fighting on the side of the British fights on the side of the French.

Chapter 4 : Alternate Generals II by Harry Turtledove - WebScription Ebook

The highlight of Alternate Generals is the underappreciated, underpublished William Sanders. In "Billy Mitchell's Overt Act," Mitchell survives to see the start of World War II in Europe and is able to make his notions of the use of the air corps into reality when he is assigned to Pearl Harbor.

Chapter 5 : Alternate Generals | Turtledove | FANDOM powered by Wikia

Alternate Generals II (Baen,) is a collection of short alternate history stories, edited by Harry Turtledove. It includes Turtledove's own short story, " Uncle Alf ". Contents: Edit.

Chapter 6 : Alternate Generals | Awards | LibraryThing

Alternate Generals II is, as the name suggests, the second volume of the Harry Turtledove edited alternate history series. While the majority of the stories in the anthology are well written and well-thought out, the book does suffer from one of the problems which plagued its predecessor of not providing the casual reader with some of the background information which would permit a greater.

Chapter 7 : Harry Turtledove - Wikipedia

alternate history southern strategy science fiction alternate generals turtledove patton american custer george volume collection interest south authors battle horizon lack Top customer reviews There was a problem filtering reviews right now.

DOWNLOAD PDF ALTERNATE GENERALS

Chapter 8 : Alternate Generals by Harry Turtledove

Alternate Generals Roland Green Martin Harry Greenberg Harry Turtledove LEADERSHIP MAKES ALL THE DIFFERENCE At Gaugemela the Macedonians had Alexander and the Persians had "Darius. Result: world conquest.

Chapter 9 : Alternate Generals by Harry Turtledove,Roland Green,Martin H. Greenberg - WebScription Ebo

Abyssian apparently has a lore reason for the fully female general cast, and the generals are very different, what with one being a child. But I hate both Vanar designs, and seems a huge waste not to make a buff frost berzerker, or a sly frost wizard or some shit.