October 15, Place of Birth: Jainulabdeen Father and Ashiamma Mother Spouse: Professor, Author, Scientist Place of Death: Shillong, Meghalaya, India Awards: He was closely associated with the military missile development efforts and civilian space programme of India. He was laid to rest with full state-honours and his funeral was attended by thousands of people including national-level dignitaries. His mother, Ashiamma, was a housewife and his father, Jainulabdeen, was an imam of a local mosque and a boat owner. He was the youngest in the family with four elder brothers and a sister. Though, the family was not financially affluent yet all the children were raised in an atmosphere that was full of love and compassion. He was an average student during his school, but possessed a strong desire to learn and was very hard working. He loved mathematics and spent hours studying the subject. He wanted to become a fighter pilot but his dream could not be fulfilled as here were only eight positions available in the IAF and he secured the ninth place. The success of these nuclear tests made Kalam a national hero and his popularity went skyrocketing. As a technical visionary, he made several recommendations in the fields of technological innovations, agriculture, and nuclear energy to make India a developed nation by He became the 11th President of India on July 25, and served the position till July 25, Out of the 21 mercy petitions, he acted only on one mercy plea. He was the recipient of Veer Savarkar Award. He also received honorary doctorate from 40 universities. While climbing a flight of stairs, he expressed some discomfort, but made his way to the auditorium. Only five minutes into the lecture, around 6: He was kept in the intensive care unit but lacked signs of life. Numerous dignitaries and masses paid homage to him at his residence at 10 Rajaji Marg. His body was displayed at Rameswaram in front of a bus station to allow people to pay their last respect to the departed soul. APJ Abdul Kalam and the Youth Destiny was seen being benevolent when death beseeched Kalam while he was doing what he wanted to do throughout his life – sharing knowledge. Kalam took the final gasp doing what he loved most, and amongst those whom he loved the most – the youth. His life became a paradigm for the youth of the country. He became a role model and inspiration for the younger generation due to his humble nature, simple and easy going personality, and his ability to connect with young minds. He owned no property, TV, fridge, car, AC, but owned approximately 2, books, six shirts, a pair of shoes, a wristwatch, four trousers and three suits. He never accepted any gifts from anyone, except books. He never charged any fee for the lectures that he delivered within or outside the country. His love for technology is no secret and he kept an eye on all the latest developments primarily through radio. He was a vegetarian and was always happy with what he was served. He was a pious soul and particular about his morning prayer, which he never missed. He was never seen wearing his religion on his sleeves nor was he seen playing up his humble origins. He never wrote his will. However, whatever was left behind was to be given to his elder brother and to grandchildren. Kalam always called his elder brother before going or returning from a significant assignment.

Kalam continues to inspire people through his quotes and books, which are sold and quoted by millions. He dedicated whole life to the nation. Born in the south, Galvanized in the west, lead India from the north and left the US from the east. Abdul Kalam leads a simple life, even he never owned a television. He had a habit of rising at 6: He left no will and few personal possession include books, veena, some clothing and a CD player. The entire nation, from Kashmir to Kanyakumari irrespective of language, religion and political affiliation united to mourn for this man.
