Chapter 1 : The Best Answers to Tough Interview Questions

Questions and Answers from Chegg At Chegg we understand how frustrating it can be when you're stuck on homework questions, and we're here to help. Our extensive question and answer board features hundreds of experts waiting to provide answers to your questions, no matter what the subject.

Ever since I was a teenager, I tinkered with computers. It was my hobby, my passion, and my way of learning. Like most kids I enjoyed computer games. When my folks gave me a computer as a reward for making honor roll my sophomore year, I mastered DOS, Windows, and WordPerfect within six months. I then went on to teach myself programming basics. By the time I graduated high school, I knew I wanted to study programming. From that point on, everything fell into place. My life revolved around computing. By my junior year at Syracuse, I decided I wanted to work for a major software manufacturer. That is why I had an internship last summer at FastTrack Software. I now want to work for a major player so I can be at the forefront of breaking trends and new technology. When my college roommate told me about his start in your department, I hounded him until he helped me get a referral, which brought me here today. I am prepared to answer any questions you may have about my education and experience. The interviewee is able to say a lot within 60 seconds by staying focused. The message is clear: He stays on message and concludes by leaving the door open for additional questions about his education and experience. Unfortunately some candidates get off on the wrong foot by rambling on for several minutes about their childhood, family, hobbies, travels, and interests. Repeat Key Accomplishment Statements Throughout the interview you will be asked numerous questions about your attitude and ability to do the job. Whenever possible, talk about your accomplishments in terms of what you did and the results of your actions for employers. Give examples of your effectiveness, which should include specific skills and statistics. Where do you see yourself five years from now? This open-ended question is one of the most difficult and stressful ones job seekers face. Employers ostensibly ask this question because they are looking for people who know what they want to do and who are focused on specific professional goals. If you lack goals, you will have difficulty answering this question. Be sure you arrive at the interview with a clear vision of what you want to do today, tomorrow and five years from now. Your answer should be employer-centered. For example, "In five years I hope to be working with an employer in an increasingly responsible position, that enables me to utilize my talents and work closely with my colleagues in solving important problems. I see myself taking on new and exciting challenges in an enjoyable environment and hopefully this will be with your company. Such responses indicate a lack of long-term interest since you do not plan to be around for long. Give an example of a goal you both set and achieved. Ideally, this should be a professional goal; such as improved time management skills, achieved new performance targets, or learned a new skill. A personal example can also be appropriate if it reinforces your pattern of accomplishments. For example, if you take a great deal of initiative and quickly move into leadership positions, you might use a personal example relating to your recent community work: Talk about results of achieving your goal. This indicates you set realistic goals and that you can focus on outcomes. Select an example that has interesting outcomes related to your efforts. The example should showcase your skills and abilities. For example, "From our discussion of the problem with the southwest accounts, I think we should look into the possibility of consolidating them the LA office. However, I think we need to do a thorough cost-benefit analysis of this region before making such a move. We may find the Phoenix office to be more beneficial. Your response should sound sensible and innovative. We all have weaknesses. What are some of your major weaknesses? This is not the time to confess all your problems nor to confidently say you have no weaknesses. The best way to handle this question is to mention personal weaknesses that are outside the job or a professional weakness that you have already improved upon. For example, "I have a real weakness for chocolate that tends to go right to my waist! I am working on this by delegating more. Show that you are generally decisive but mention that there are situations that give you time to pause or you are learning how to better make decisions. For example, "I sometimes have difficulty choosing between two equally good ideas. Focus on something outside your work or something that happened on the job that you later fixed. Do not admit to any personal quality that might hamper job performance, such as procrastination, laziness or lack of concentration. Choose something that will not reflect badly on your ability to perform in the given position, such as one that took place early in your career. I felt awful and thought I would be fired. I was determined to get the account back and did after six months. This is not the time to become extremely self-centered and arrogant. Keep in mind that employers are often looking for team players rather than Lone Rangers. Also, use this question as an opportunity to inquire about an appropriate "fit for success" with this company. For example, "Many years ago I learned an important lesson from Bob Nelson, who was my first supervisor and really became my most important mentor. Set high goals, be honest, never say no, and work with people who share your passion for doing their best. I am very self motivated, determined and honest. I really love what I do and I try to surround myself with people who share similar passions. I thrive on this type of environment. Am I likely to find this environment with your company? Can you tell me a little more about the characteristics of successful people at your company? What do you see as some of the key success factors for this position? Why should we hire you rather than someone else? Focus on what strengths you bring to the table. These should be consistent with the four things most employers are looking for in candidates during the job interview: Remember, they are looking for chemistry between you and them. Be prepared to summarize in 60 seconds why you are the best candidate for the job. Also, let the employer know you want the job and you will enjoy working with them. A lack of interest in the job may indicate a lack of enthusiasm for the job and them. How do you spend your free time? This question may have several purposes. The interviewer may be just curious about your personal life without getting into illegal questions. He may also want to know how well rounded you are in your personal and professional lives. Focus on some of the standard hobbies or activities that most people engage in: If you are operating a home-based business as a sideline, you may not want to reveal your entrepreneurial spirit-it may indicate you are planning to leave and go solo as soon as the business starts doing well. Why do you want to work in this industry? Tell a story about how you first became interested in this type of work. Make your passions for you work a theme that you allude to continually throughout the interview. Demonstrate natural interest in the industry or career field by describing publications or trade associations that are compatible with your goal. And I have a number of friends who are analysts. What expectations or projects do you have for the business that would enable you to grow without necessarily advancing? What excites you about the business? This may sound obvious, but too many candidates make this mistake, unwittingly demonstrating a real lack of interest in their current field or industry. Needless to say, such a gaffe will immediately eliminate you from further consideration. I also hope to develop my management skills, perhaps by managing a small staff. Avoid mentioning specific time frames or job titles. I was too interested in business to work at a university, but I believe that teaching is somehow in my blood. Now I look forward to training the new hires. Describe your first encounter or a recent encounter with the company or its products and services. What would be particularly motivating to you about working there as opposed to working the same type of job in a different company? The recruiter will look for evidence of genuine interest and more than just surface research on the company. Describe how your interest has grown from personal dealings with the company representatives. Think creatively in preparing for job interviews. What can they tell you? Two of the customers I spoke with explained why they continued to buy from you year after year. Your distribution operation is phenomenal.

It is recommended that you uninstall your current Antivirus before initiating the upgrade. If you have a subscription that has not expired, contact the developer to find out about Windows 10 support. Most Antivirus utilities should be upgraded by the time Windows 10 launches. If your subscription is still active, then you should be entitled to a compatible update for Windows. Can I choose a different language during the upgrade? Cross language upgrades are not supported, the free upgrade will be installed in your local language. In fact, you should uninstall any language packs before upgrading. Not just any phone. Windows 10 will be available to existing smartphones running Windows Phone 8. Is there a list of supported phones? How will I get the update on my phone? Do Windows Phone devices qualify for this free upgrade? We are working with Windows Phone 8. Yes, you will need to activate Windows. What are some of the new improvements in Windows 10? You can also use it to control applications such as the Music Player, prepare an email message or track a package. Task View for managing applications using multiple desktops. Modern apps can now be windowed and behave just like desktop apps. Notification Center for centralized management of notifications and quick access to PC settings. Providing the power of Office on devices with touch support. Users can edit, prepare documents, spreadsheets and presentations with full document fidelity regardless of device. Continuum Mode - if you own a 2 in 1 form factor that works both as a laptop and tablet, you can easily let Windows 10 decide the best environment for you. Once detached into Tablet mode for instance, you can work in a more touch optimized user interface. Music and playlist integration in OneDrive. Unified messaging using Skype Integration Windows Hello and Passport for personalized authentication without the use of passwords. Device Guard for protecting devices against malicious applications. Watching DVDs requires separate playback software Windows 7 desktop gadgets will be removed as part of installing Windows. Windows 10 Home users will have updates from Windows Update automatically available. Windows 10 Pro and Windows 10 Enterprise users will have the ability to defer updates. Solitaire, Minesweeper, and Hearts Games that come pre-installed on Windows 7 will be removed as part of installing the Windows 10 upgrade. If you have Windows Live Essentials installed on your system, the OneDrive application is removed and replaced with the inbox version of OneDrive. Persons who need to use Media Center should consider carefully before upgrading from their previous version of Windows. The Windows 10 upgrade will automatically remove any installations of Media Center. So what are the alternatives if I need Media Center? Your best option is to continue running your existing version of Windows with Media Center. Windows 7 editions that include Media Center will continue to be supported until January. Windows 8 Pro with Media Center will continue to be supported until January. All three are open source and free. Is Windows Live Mail versions , , compatible with Windows 10? What will happen to them if I upgrade to Windows 10? You can review the following as a possible work around if you need to. Please note, Hyper-V does not include a Windows license, you will need to provide and install your own. Is Windows Media Player still available in Windows 10? Windows 10 replaces your previous version of Windows by moving it to the Windows. Windows 10 becomes the default operating system. Can I uninstall Windows 10 if I do not like it or something goes wrong? What happens to the recovery partition used by my previous version of Windows? That is why it is strongly advised you backup before upgrading. Suppose I need to go back to Windows 8 or Windows 7? Will upgrading from Windows 7 or later preserve my personal files, applications and settings? Windows 10 setup will keep, upgrade, replace and might require that you install new drivers through Windows Update or from the manufacturers website. Installing drivers through Windows Update Windows Update is the premier starting point to resolve most common driver issues you might experience immediately after installing Windows. Immediately, Windows Update will detect your system configuration and download all the appropriate drivers for your system. As you can see in the above screenshot, my Intel HD Graphics was installed automatically. I did not even have to

In your answer focus on your ability to make repeated attempts to get to your objective, to stay with the task until it is completed and to make a plan to overcome obstacles that arise along the way.

Products Interview Questions and Answers As soon as you sit down with an employer you can expect the interview questions to start rolling in. When answering job interview questions , you need to be prepared for the easy ones as well as the unexpected. Interviews questions are designed to make you feel uncomfortable. You will often be asked questions that seem straightforward to answer. Here is a list of common interview questions and what the interviewer is looking for by asking them. Why do you want to leave your job? This question can be answered in several ways but do your best to keep your answer short. Avoid being dishonest with this question, for what ever reason, your interviewer may spot it and believe there is something you are not saying. There is no right answer to this question, only wrong ones. The point here is to convey to the interviewer that you are not leaving because you are mad, tired, bored, overworked, underpaid, or job hopping, just that you are leaving your job on because. As much as I enjoy the relationships I have, it is time for me to move to a more progressive organization with more opportunities and new challenges. Can you work under pressure? Do you work well under pressure? This is more of a follow-up from the previous question and I doubt both questions will be directly asked to you, but both have slightly different answers. Saying no to this question may be an honest answer, but it is also a negative one. The interviewer will probably ask for an example, so be prepared with a situation or academic scenario from a previous interview. What can you do for us that no one else can? This is a pretty open ended question and may or may not get asked directly, but some variation of it may come up. There is no right or wrong answer. The interviewer wants to see what you believe are your best strengths and that you can differentiate yourself from everyone else. Describe your role and how you have contributed to the company and projects on past jobs. I am motivated, disciplined and focused and am willing to do whatever it takes to get the job done. Tell me about yourself? The way you answer this question will set the tone for the rest of the interview. Again, this is an open ended question, but really what the interviewer wants to hear is about your recent work experience. Your answer tells the interviewer where your mind is. If you start telling him that you are a Cleveland Browns fan, then you are way off base with what he wants to hear and you have just made your first mistake. These are the things an interviewer really wants to hear. I truly enjoy working with the people in this business as well as the challenges. In my last job, the good relationships I formed with my customers resulted in me holding the highest customer retention rate of everyone else in my department. Why do you want to work here? Lack of preparation for this question could very well cost you the job. One of the most important things is to be honest, otherwise it will show. Ask yourself the question first, why do you want to work there? If your answer is that you just need a job and paycheck, then dig little deeper. Do you admire this company? Do you like their products? The key here is what is important to you about this company. Why should I hire you? This is your chance to restate the skills you possess that are most relevant to the position and to summarize your other qualities that make you the perfect person for the job. Outline your answer before you go in, so that you can answer clearly, concisely, and with confidence. It should reflect your professional background as it relates to current needs and problems of the position. Review the job description and tell how you are the right person for the job by matching up your skill set with each bullet point of the job description. Be sure that the interviewer is clear about the fact that you want this job. What were some of the things you did not like about your last job? This is a fair question and is sure to come up in almost every interview. A short answer is all that is expected. One option is to tell the interviewer that in your current position, training and advancement opportunities are limited. Be careful of how you answer this question. We all have something we did not like about our last job; it could be the people, culture, your boss, internal politics, the drive, etc. Be sure to keep your answer short and positive; no need to prattle on here because you are interviewing for a new job and are not here to spend time focusing on what you did not like about your last job. If you work for a small company and are interviewing with a large corporation you could explain that: Each of these questions is answered in even greater detail in my guide with many more questions and answers.

Chapter 8 : Answers - The Most Trusted Place for Answering Life's Questions

Is there an option or work around to block updates or hardware drivers that might cause problems? Yes, Microsoft has released a KB update (KB) that will let users block or hide Windows or driver updates.

This is for changing the flow of your survey when you are using multiple question blocks. This is only necessary when doing advanced surveys that require a special type of skip logic, branching, data processing, or block randomization. For more detailed instructions, please see Survey Flow [edit] Print Survey This prints out the survey which can be helpful when proofing. However, the print preview and printout will not appear exactly as it does to respondents. Please note that when you run through the entire survey in Preview mode, your test responses will be recorded in the results. Before collecting your real survey responses, you will want to delete the test responses. It has to be live in order for Qualtrics to generate a link that you can send to your respondents. The green box with the check mark means that it is active. The default question type is Multiple Choice. A menu appears to the right of your question. To change the question type, click the green box in the menu to the right. To edit the text of the question, click on the text: For more advanced options, select the link to Rich Text Editor. The Move Question option in the menu can also be used to move a selected question by clicking on any desired location. Questions in the trash are visible at the bottom of the screen until the trash is emptied. Restoring the question will return it to its original location. Select the library from which you want to take questions. Select the survey from which you want to take questions. Highlight the desired question or group of questions from the left-hand panel. Add the questions to your survey blue button at bottom of right panel. If at any time you wish to exit out of a pop-up window, simply click on an area outside of the window and the pop-up will disappear. New questions are added immediately before or after others with no page break in between [edit] Default question type The default question type is Multiple Choice. You can easily change your question type by clicking the green box to the right of your screen. This will give you a menu with the different question options that are available. See detailed Question Types for answer options. For example, for a multiple choice question as shown , the options are the following: Single answer one response allowed Multiple answer multiple responses allowed Drop down list one response allowed Select box one response allowed Multiple select box multiple responses allowed [edit] Editing a question The menu that appears to the right of your question is for editing the selected question. To select a question for editing, click on it it should be highlighted in light blue. If you change the question type, the text and scale points will be retained. See advanced options section for more information on Piping Graphics or a movie clip can be added Special characters, tables, and web links can be added You can upload a file for respondents to download [edit] Edit the content of the scale choices To edit the content of the scale choices, you can do any of the following: Click on the text itself: The choice should disappear. Click on the text of the statement. An arrow will appear to the right of the statement. Click on it and choose the red button next to "Remove Choice". Respondents will get a warning if they try to skip it, and the survey will not advance until an answer is provided. The Move Question link can also be used to move a selected question by clicking on the desired location. A blue preview of the location will follow your mouse cursor until you click to place the question. Questions can be moved from one survey block to another unless that question has skip logic or the carry forward feature associated with it. Any skip logic or carry forwards associated with a moved question may be invalidated by the move. Questions in the trash will still be visible at the bottom of the screen unless the trash is emptied. Page breaks are required for certain advanced features to work A page break is needed immediately after a question that uses Skip Logic A page break is needed between questions when items from one question are carried over to another question A page break is needed between questions when the piping feature is used Creating a page break between blocks is not necessary. It will be added automatically The back button can be used to move to previous pages if that feature is activated [edit] Survey Blocks All simple surveys will be contained in a default block. Complex surveys with multiple paths will require several blocks.

Blocks essentially are separate surveys within one survey. You can branch the survey to different blocks of the survey using the survey flow. Each block is automatically separated by page breaks. With this enabled, you can move back and forth within the survey to try out each condition. Without the back button, you will have to enter and re-enter the survey to see each condition. This will allow you to progress through the entire survey without selecting a choice. The preview survey feature will result in faux responses being recorded to the data file. They will be labeled and can be deleted. Each time you make a change, that change is saved once you select something else. When you make a change to a question, it is done. Qualtrics times out after a certain period of inactivity! We suggest that you make edits on a copy of your survey if you would like the option to revert back an original copy of the survey.
