We only recommend products and services that we love and think you will too. General Style Tips Throughout Spain the locals really care about their personal appearance, and Barcelona is no different. On the whole they dress smartly and make an effort when they go out in public. Jeans are very popular here - but make sure they are smart and clean. They are worn year-round by all ages, the older generations preferring blue or black denim whilst coloured jeans are currently in fashion with youngsters. Church is still an integral part of Spanish life, and smart attire will be the norm if attending a service. Wearing shorts or being scantily dressed will not be appreciated, and a dress code is in place at the Barcelona Cathedral, even if you are just looking round your knees and shoulders should be covered. Spring and autumn are cooler and dressing in layers will help you cope with the temperature changes. Make sure you take comfy footwear for daytime, and smart flats would be more in keeping than trainers - try Hotter shoes, for total comfort along with style. At the weekends the locals enjoy time with family and friends in the many parks. If you have time in your schedule, grab a picnic and relax away from the hustle and bustle. Or take a stroll down La Rambla with its many artists, street stalls and amusements. Why not try the Lindsay Phillips Switch Flops range - using interchangeable shoe and flip-flop bases with snap-on decorations, you can change your look from day to evening in an instant whilst still packing light. Our advice would be to save your shorts and sarong for the beach; wearing them elsewhere will label you as a tourist and skimpy or tight fitting clothes may result in unwanted attention. If you are going to Barcelona for business then pack your work clothes - Spanish women wear dresses or skirts. Clothing Tips for Men Our advice would be to save your shorts for the beach; wearing them elsewhere will label you as a tourist. At the very least make sure you cover your shoulders and thighs if visiting any churches or the Cathedral. Drink plenty of water if you are out sightseeing. The locals will opt for warm clothes, even if you find the temperatures hot for the time of year. Winter December, January, February - The weather can be cold, so opt for warmer layers. Rain showers are more likely in spring and winter, so you may like to pack a small travel umbrella and light raincoat. If you tend to buy bottled water, consider carrying a Go! Filtered Water Bottle - fill up from any source and get clean, safe drinking water without wasting plastic bottles. Look after your mobile phone with a phone bunjee - it protects against loss, theft and damage; especially useful at crowded tourist attractions. To use electrical gadgets you may need a travel adapter plug, and also a step down voltage converter if your devices are not designed for European voltage V. You can use packing cubes to compress the volume too. Avoid paying unexpected baggage fees - use an accurate luggage scale to ensure you keep within the weight allowance. Leather goods and shoes are great buys in Spain, as are wine, sherry and olive oil - but you will need to pack these liquids in checked-in luggage unless you buy at the airport duty-free. What to Wear and When To Wear It Page Content Good example of typical Spanish style in Barcelona This page will give you an outline of the Barcelona clothes to wear and not to wear if you want to blend in more with the locals and not appear as an obvious tourist. There are clear advantages to following the general local clothing trends here in Barcelona, namely improved safety not as easy to single you out as a tourist as well as giving a valid reason to do a little shopping. We also cover the types of clothes to wear that are appropriate for the climate here. What this article is not about This page is not about giving you a rundown on fashion trends or about stereotyping how the Catalan and Spanish dress. Barcelona is a cosmopolitan city with many influences from around Europe. In addition people from different age groups wear different types and styles of clothes. The seasons also play an important part in determining the types and colours of clothes worn. How to blend in Catalunya is forward thinking when it comes to clothes and design and there are a whole variety of different clothes and styles worn here. However it is fair to say that modesty is generally valued here and Catalans tend to dress conservatively. Middle age and the older generation generally tend to wear clothing with muted and conservative colours. The younger generation tend to wear semi-casual clothes like jeans and a T shirts and comfortable shoes or sandals during summer. The Catalans care about their personal appearance and image. They wear a wide variety of types of clothes however generally they do not wear overly casual clothes. The Catalans like to look good in a conservative way. They are keen on designer clothes but even more important to them is quality and fitting. It is not hard to find Catalan clothes of good quality at a reasonable price, which is also good news for visitors. With clothes there are no definitive rules. We have stated that generally the Catalans are conservative however there are also exceptions to this e. Custo Barcelona and Desigual are famous brands here in Barcelona and are noted for their vibrant colours. Fabric type is important The material type is particularly important especially the weight of the fabric. The clothes feel light and cool to wear and have the added benefit of protecting your skin from the sun. Clothes for the seasons During summer months lighter colours tend to be worn primarily to keep the clothing cool. Winter months tend to favour more autumnal-type colours. If you have jeans from countries with colder yearly temperatures for example most of Northern USA, Canada and Northern Europe you will be able to wear these in the winter months November - March. However the jeans fabric from these cooler countries will be much too heavy and uncomfortable to wear during the summer months. The aim is for you to feel comfortable in your clothing yet protected from the strong sun. You will be surprised how much a light-weight cotton fabric can keep you cool and comfortable even in hot sun. If necessary invest in a few light weight tops and bottoms here in Barcelona. Winter December, January, February - These months are cooler so you can wear your heavy weight denims during this time. It is also recommended to bring some warmer clothes and a jacket. It does not rain too much here in Barcelona however there are rainy days particularly during these months and the month of April. Therefore it is worth bringing a light-weight waterproof jacket and an umbrella. Spring March, April, May, it is beginning to warm up a little however there still are cooler days especially during March. In August particularly it can be very humid. You will need light-weight fabric clothing that is preferably light in colour during the day. During the evening you can wear darker coloured clothing if you want. Autumn September, October and November The weather can be pleasant and sunny during this time but it is becoming cooler - especially in November. We have produced a day-by-day weather report for each month of the year in Barcelona. It may be a good idea to take a look through this record so you get a better idea of the temperatures and weather conditions during the year. This should make it easier for you to know what types of clothes are suitable for your visit. Do wear light-weighted fabrics during the months of May - September. The church is still an integral part of Spanish life and wearing shorts or being scantily dressed whilst visiting a church will not be appreciated. If visiting Barcelona Cathedral men should wear long trousers and women should have a shawl or a full top covering their shoulders. Do dress up a bit if you are going out for a nice supper. Avoid wearing casual shorts in the city, save them for the beach, wearing them elsewhere will generally label you as a tourist. A skirt or loose-fitting light weight fabric trousers are more suitable since they will protect you from the sun. We have had some tourists write in saying they have seen people wearing shorts in the city. This is true - but the majority of the people they have seen are mostly also just tourists. Locals also wear shorts mainly the elder generation however these shorts are generally conservative and normally of the longer type. Do take the time to have a look around the shops and see the types of clothes that are on sale. There is a wide variety of shops here and you will quickly see the styles and fabrics that are popular in the city. If you try on some clothes from shops in Barcelona you will notice that the fabrics are much lighter weight than most Northern European clothes and much more comfortable and suitable for the climate here. Do not wear a bumbag. In the city however Catalan women tend to be more conservative. Typical summer clothes worn by the locals in Barcelona Do choose fitted styled clothes. The Catalans dress well and their clothes fit well and look sophisticated. In the Winter people tend to look quite smart all the time, in fitted jackets, boots and darker or autumnal colours. Do not wear bright, garish coloured clothing. You will notice that as a general rule the Catalans prefer muted, autumnal colours, like green, yellow ochre and burgundy. However it is true to say that there are also shops for the younger generation that are full of brighter clothes. Whichever way you choose to go also remember that the Catalans are big on outfit coordination, clashing colours and mismatched styles are a definite no. Do wear denims but remember that in the summer you will need extra light weight denim. Denims are popular here in every style and worn throughout the year. Do not forget about your shoes, the Catalans love shoes, and a pair of shabby shoes can let down a whole outfit. In summer leather sandals are also popular. Business Clothes If you are coming to Barcelona for business then bring your work clothes. But again your suit fabric weight is an important factor. Women should wear dresses or skirts for business and a conservative cotton blouse. As a general guideline, the more casual your clothes are shorts, vests, flip flops the more you are likely to stand out as a tourist. Barcelona is a vibrant multi-cultural city with a good variety of clothes and styles. Nowadays you can find every styled clothing here from dread locked hippies, trendy denim clad teenagers to smart, conservative dressers. The aim of this article however is to assist you in not appearing like an obvious tourist. It is also to ensure you are comfortable and wear appropriate clothing for the climate. This may mean purchasing a few items of clothes locally which have the correct light weight fabric suitable for the climate here. I hope these Barcelona clothes tips and dress code will help you feel more relaxed on your visit to Barcelona.

They have several different treatments that are meant to address different issues so take a look at their site beforehand to see what is best for you. You have a long list of sights to see, places to eat and shops to check out; why waste your time in a nail salon? Housing a spa, gym, pool, etc. Nothing says summer quite like they do, and lucky for you, Barcelona is the perfect spot to get an authentic pair. Locals, tourists and celebrities alike flock to La Manual Alpargatera for a handmade pair of espadrilles. Head in to choose from a variety of colors, patterns and styles to find the perfect pair for you. The shop is something to behold with shoes lining the walls from top to bottom. Boqueria Market Boqueria Market is one of the most famous food markets in the world, and with good reason. Just be warned, it can get pretty crowded so watch your bag while shopping! La Central With a few locations in the city, La Central is the perfect stop for bookstore lovers. Stocked with beautiful, unique books and an amazing selection of art and design coffee table books, this store will leave you wishing you had a bit more wiggle room in your baggage allowance. Barcelona is an arts city through and through, and what could be a better keepsake from your trip than an amazing design book? The Eixample location also features a great, quiet cafe upstairs. The cafe is a fantastic spot for an affordable sandwich or pastry. Though prices are low, the ingredients are incredible high quality, locally sourced and changed seasonally. Can Paixano La Xampanyeria Cheap eats and cheap cava champagne? This fun, boisterous spot is a favorite for both tourists and locals. We guarantee, it will be one of the most memorable experiences you have in the city! Order a few small plates to share with your party and a glass of wine for best results. The food is fresh, and the staff is more than willing to help you navigate the menu. Try to get a seat at the bar for a good view of their incredibly talented chefs. Hoping to avoid their lines? Get there early to beat the crowds. Bodega Across the street from Bodega is Tickets, one of the most renowned and difficult reservations in all of Barcelona. Opt for the tasting menu if you have a bit extra to spend, and want to try a little of everything. A variety of delicious yet relaxed dinner and drink options make it an easy option for just about any hour. Catalan cuisine is featured here, and there are phenomenal specials that change daily. And after dinner, head upstairs to the rooftop bar for great city views. If Sauc is beyond your budget, La Plassohla is its counterpart: Head over on a weekday to enjoy their special lunch menu. Widely considered one of the best wine bars in the world, Monvinic boasts a mind-boggling selection of wines along with a host of knowledgeable sommeliers. The spot is easy to access, and impeccably designed and furnished. Even casual wine drinkers will appreciate the passion and dedication put into this establishment. A great, low-pressure read: Grab a table outdoors in George Orwell Square, settle in with a drink, and enjoy the prime people watching. Luckily, the interior is equally intriguing. Head over after a long day at the beach, scope out an outdoor table, and have a drink while enjoying some of the most beautiful views in Barcelona.
