

Chapter 1 : Be Confident in Your Calling | BJU Press

Be Confident In Your Calling Nathan B Thomas Be Confident In Your Calling is a wonderful book that will be great for those who want to work in Ministry, and for those who just simply question their calling in life.

Fact is, some people simply will not hire you without talking to you first, either on the phone or via Skype. Basically, they want to get a feel for your minds out of the gutter, please. That you know the subject, can write about it in an informed manner, and have your own insightful comments to add. Sadly not, mon petit pois. But fortunately, there are a few things you can do to up your on-the-phone game. And by talk, I of course mean type. I almost never talk to my clients on the phone, simply because I make a good case for email. Even so, there will inevitably be a few who want to have a natter. But suck it up, sunshine, because this is something you need to learn to do. They are NOT negotiable. If people want to hire you, they need to pay your rates. Ashley Ambirge wrote a fantastic post about this. Jot down a few notes before you begin But do NOT follow a script. Strike a power pose This is my power pose. This probably sounds like a stupid idea, right? Hands on hips, legs up on the desk, leaning forward with your hands on the table “ whatever your chosen pose is, it should make you BIGGER. Even just sitting up straight will make a huge difference. Acting more confident will make you feel more confident. Amy Cuddy talks about this in her fantastic TED talk. In fact, you should avoid rambling at all costs. Get your client to do the talking instead by asking them questions. Let silence reign This is probably the hardest to do. Your prospect will feel that creeping uneasiness too, and eventually they will start talking again. Sometimes I do this just for fun, because I like to watch people squirm. Intentionally speak slowly This is hard to do, too, actually. Oh who am I kidding? Making a conscious effort to speak slowly will help stop you rambling nervously. Practice La la la. One of the most common things my students ask me is how to get good at copywriting, or how to get good at writing with personality, or what they need to do to write better. Same thing goes for talking on the phone. Record them and listen back to them. Do you speak too quickly, or jump to fill any pauses? Knowing the problem is half the battle. Have a beer Am I kidding? The most important thing to remember Talking over the phone is a common phobia, especially among writers, who are often shy, retiring types. It could be the gig that springboards your business to new heights. And you might just land a better blogging gig, too.

Chapter 2 : Be Confident in Your Calling | Nathan D. Thomas | | NetGalley

Confidence in Your Calling This year I've felt a bit wobbly in my calling. I've kept right on doing what it is I've known for sure in the past I was to give my time and energy to, but sometimes it feels as if I were to pull one little string of uncertainty, the whole structure of my life might unravel.

This book will be a great addition to any Christian Library, illustrated with bible verses, that speak of growing closer to God, and with Chapters dealing with both how beautiful and how hard prayer can be, the book helps you to grow in Christ in a very real way if you allow it too. Added to your Bible devotions this book would be an excellent addition to that as well. Nathan B Thomas reminds us in this book that if we base our calling on anyone or anything else but Christ it will most certainly fail. Be Confident In Your Calling, reminds us to look to Christ for our callings, and of course it reminds us to be confident in our calling. For anyone wanting to grow closer to Christ this book will be a great addition Filled with encouragement, word study leads, insightful quotes, questions, and personal reflections, this book serves as a good elementary basis for Bible study. While I did not agree with every point the author shared, I thought his content was reasonably solid. The introduction and back cover of the book were very promising A very simple book with very simple truths, Be Confident in Your Calling shares a relevant message at a time when people need to be introduced or reintroduced to the Bible. The introduction and back cover of the book were very promising, but I must say that the flow of the book was a bit slow to me at times. There was also some dryness of communication in certain spots. The author repeated himself a lot. Initially, I understood that to mean that he wanted to express the importance of a point, but after a while, I could have done without it. The opinion I have expressed is my own. I was not required to write a positive review. I found it very encouraging and highly recommend it. I liked the simplicity of the message. The author, Nathan Thomas, writes with warmth and a helpful spirit. I thought the ideas presented were excellent. Learning that the Lord has a certain calling for each of us can be a real encouragement to a Christian going through a negative time in their life. I found that throughout the book the author always pointed to Christ as the answer by showing that He is our guide through life. I would recommend the book to any Christian discouraged in their current work situation or unsure of what step to take next in their walk with the Lord. I would like to thank the publisher for the copy of this book I enjoyed reading. I gave an honest review based on my opinion of what I read.

Chapter 3 : 6 Bible verses about Confidence, God's Calling

It is worth your time to seriously role play what you plan to say to your prospects and get feedback from your peers or mentors. Role play in a realistic way - i.e. call the other person from your desk to theirs.

There are some things that I know for sure: Am I really doing what God wants me to do? That question encapsulates all the others that pop and fizz inside I think we all do this to some degree. What are the things we look to for our confidence instead of looking to the Lord? We look to others for a sense of confidence in our calling. This is so dangerous for so many reasons, but primary among them is that all of us looking each to the other creates a homogenous church. We start believing that we must fit into a mold or our calling is not valid. We have a fear of being different or misunderstood or even judged. Our fear of people is far greater than our fear of the Lord. We look to our circumstances. We live by sight rather than by faith. We look to those who are confident in their calling. It would be easier to be them and to have their calling. As a result, we believe either God is unfair or we are inadequate for God to use us, or some combination of the two. This is what I myself do. For we are to God the fragrance of Christ among those who are being saved and among those who are perishing And who is sufficient for these things? Instead he says this: Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think of anything as being from ourselves, but our sufficiency is from God, who also made us sufficient as ministers God leads us in triumph. He takes us where He wants us to go. God diffuses a beautiful fragrance through us as we go. God makes us sufficient for where He takes us. He makes us into bold ministers. I think our calling is mostly about enjoying and conveying the triumph and the beauty than it is some wacky formula. Talk about a confidence booster. Share this post on:

Chapter 4 : Be Confident In Your Calling by Nathan D. Thomas

"The Birth of Your Destiny" It Is Time To Give Your Life To Your Dreams by Victoria Boyson $ Book: We are excited to announce the recent release of Victoria Boyson's new book, The Birth of Your Destiny.

Or would we deem Him arrogant and conceited or even possessed by the devil as many of the Jewish people did then? They welcomed the healing and deliverance He brought them. They embraced His wisdom. They enjoyed the blessing of the miracles He performed. When He referred to Himself as the Light of the world see John 8: When He promised them eternal life through His Life see John 6: But to them, Jesus was just a man. Hindsight is always much clearer. But today if a young man in his early thirties showed up at our churches making extraordinary claims about himself, we would probably show Him the door. Jesus knew who He was, and He knew the authority that God had given Him. He understood what His mission was on earth. He was confident in His calling. He was, indeed, the Light of the world God has chosen to show Himself to the world through us. And, until His return, we are the representation of Christ on earth. What an incredible calling! If we are to truly represent Christ, we must first know Him and then walk in the authority He walked in. He knew who He was, and He lived accordingly. So, if we are to represent Him properly, we must do the same. If we truly know God and receive Him as our Father, then we will trust Him to fulfill His word through us. We will show the world the power of God through the authority we have received in Jesus Christ see Matthew We must be different from the world! If we are to display His power and Glory on this earth, then we must strive to live as He lived. We should live as though we are strangers in this world - it is not our home. Our home is with our heavenly Father. We are His children, and we must choose to govern our lives by His standards. We are truly not of this world - we are not of this earthly kingdom. We are a part of the kingdom of heaven, and we must be different from the world if we are to allow His light to shine through us in this world. Indeed, it is not our righteousness that will light the world, but it is the love of God shed abroad in our hearts. But our light will not shine as bright if we are in bondage to the same sins that plague the world. If we know who we are, and the importance of the function we play in the kingdom of God, we will not allow ourselves to become entangled in the things that hold this world in bondage. We are the righteousness of God through Christ Jesus see 2 Cor. What an awesome responsibility. God has entrusted us with the responsibility of bringing His salvation to the world. Every prayer we pray, every word we speak, and every decision we make in life should be made with the reality of the call that is on our life. God is looking for those who will pick up the call and make it their life. He is looking for those who will lose their life, but find His life in the process. Man or woman, rich or poor, slave or free, Jew or Gentile, it does not matter see Gal. Will you accept this calling? Will you let it change your life? Will you give Him your life, your choices, your fears and even your failings? If you give up your life - the plans that you have made for yourself - and live only for the Lamb of God, then you will surely find life see Matt. Only then can we walk as He walked and in the authority He walked in. You will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover because you will know that it was for this purpose you were born. You are a gift to the world, sent to fulfill His promised Word. Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles, and let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us" Heb. The great crowd of witnesses is in heaven waiting for you to rise and take up the mantle of the gospel of peace. They are even now praying for God to raise up men and women who will shine the light of Jesus Christ on a lost and dying world. The light of Jesus shining richly through you is the hope of heaven see Col. God does not live in a house made by human hands, but He has built His home in us. We are the dwelling place of God - the showcase for His glory - we are His holy place. In the temple that Solomon built there were many places for the people to come and worship. Those who would enter His holy place must first purify themselves or they would die because of the presence of His glory. If we are to be His dwelling place see 1 Cor. We can be purified by the blood of the Lamb and live our lives as vessels who are set a part for sacred purposes. We are not to function as the world does, but we must conduct ourselves as Christ would - not out of pride, but in humility as an act of love and worship to our Lord. We have the same decisions to make as the world does, but we must make these choices in the light of the calling on our life - in the light of our God given destiny. Even if we are not yet walking fully in our destiny, it does not matter - we need to live now as though we were. We, as the house of the Lord, are to live our lives as unto the Lord. Some might argue that it is not possible to live pure lives, but we must realize that there is no shame in failure if our goal is to live for Him. God is looking for a place to rest - a place where His Spirit can dwell. He wants that place to be in you. He wants His glory to dwell in you and to radiate from you. Will you prepare a place for Him? Will you give Him your heart and let Him make it His home? Will you give Him your life and let His light shine through you? You are the light of the world - the salt of the earth - a city set on a hill see Matt. If you do not live for Him, then the earth has lost its light and heaven has lost its hope. Live for Him and in Him and through Him. If you do, you will light the world!

Chapter 5 : Be Confident in Your Calling | BJU Press Homeschool

NetGalley is a site where book reviewers and other professional readers can read books before they are published, in e-galley or digital galley form. Members register for free and can request review copies or be invited to review by the publisher.

Chapter 6 : 10 Secrets To Sounding Confident

Obstacles Are Being Removed & His Light Will Shine Through You - Prophetic Word October/November - Duration: Caity Hunt 2, views.

Chapter 7 : Be Confident in Your Calling! - Victoria Boyson

I want you to be confident in your Call to Action. Directly ask them to do what you recommended. As an example, let's say you put together a business case for a promotion for a member of your team.

Chapter 8 : Grace Covers Me: Confidence in Your Calling

The last thing I want to share about confidence in your calling is what happens when you start to step into your calling. Things will begin to gain momentum, your calling becomes clearer and people's lives will begin to be transformed as you step into the fullness of your potential.

Chapter 9 : 11 Ways to Boost Your Confidence on the Phone to Prospective Clients | Be a Freelance Blogger

Calling, The Goals Of Lordship, Of Jesus Christ Fellowship Loyalty Fellowship Of Holy Spirit Participation, In Christ Fellowship With Christ God is faithful, through whom you were called into fellowship with His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.