

Chapter 1 : Better Homes and Gardens Customer Service - Reviews - Complaints

From Better Homes and Gardens, ideas and improvement projects for your home and garden plus recipes and entertaining ideas.

First, I counted all my dowels and was short 1. Went to hardware store to purchase dowels. Started working on it again and noticed a wavy line on 2 of the pieces which could be felt with your finger and definitely could be seen when the light hit it- defect in surface. One corner edge was starting to peel up. And after putting in the dowels the particle board was starting to crumble. When the wick ends, the glass shatters, the wax leaks, and burns whatever surface it is on. Thankfully I was nearby when I heard the glass shatter. The flame was above the rim, the wax was leaking out of the glass and it began to burn my accent table. I will not recommend this product nor purchase from this company again. March 19, I found out that two subscriptions were debited from my account. One is Martha Stewart Living. I got their information from this - <http://> I hope this helps others. March 12, I have noticed that the advertisements from BHG for recipes, etc. It will redirect the person on the site to other types of advertisements and usually hooks your consumer information for tracking and other nefarious reasons. I tried looking for a way to contact BHG to complaint other than by phone to the magazine but to no avail. Having been infested with adware that often is truly malware I avoid sites with this kind of misleading information designed to drop the viewer into other places than the one your click was intended to activate. So, I am blocking BHG anything. Sick and tired of these fishing expedition companies that use the name that use to be synonymous with good products to bother and harass consumers. BHG is no longer a good name to trust in my opinion. Their sites are just booby traps. The last two available. Upon unpacking the sets, I discovered that on the red handled display dinner spoon, were several chips. I assumed that I could return it to the company for an exchange. I have washed these two towels about 5 times and they never get absorbent. I will never buy this product again When coming out of the dryer they looked like they had been balled up for months!! I just stick to the sheets!!! Of course after being washed, Walmart will not take them back! I am also going to contact Better Homes and Gardens because I want my money back! I was ripped off. I hope ConsumerAffairs can do something!! I learned after I used them they were also polyester. They were So very thin and did not feel good against your skin.
