If you are driving along the Big Sur coastline on Highway 1, then you will not miss Nepenthe. It is south of Pfeiffer Beach and the state park; there are signs as you approach it. There is parking in the small lot about halfway up the hill and overflow parking along the road if it is full.

Email 82 Shares Nepenthe is a fantastic restaurant located along the Big Sur coastline, and the staggering views and great food have been making it a staple of Highway 1 travel for decades. I finally got a chance to visit it a little while back, and I can say that it easily lives up to the hype with incredible coastal views and good food. Here is all the information. It is south of Pfeiffer Beach and the state park; there are signs as you approach it. There is parking in the small lot about halfway up the hill and overflow parking along the road if it is full. Nepenthe is a popular spot so expect it to be full on weekends. From the parking lot, you will see the Phoenix shop which sells all sorts of trinkets ranging from jewelry and art to toys and plants. I would recommend checking in first and then if there is a wait walk around the shop a little bit. The Restaurant Walking up to Nepenthe is along a shaded cement path with stairs. It is beautiful, and there are fun spots along the way like the old telephone booth. Getting to the top will give you the first look at the amazing view you have from this vantage point. I would recommend trying to get an outside seat along the long counter that overlooks the coast as these are the best spots for sure, but you may have to wait. The inside seating is great as well if you choose that. While you are waiting, there is a ping-pong table, and even a giant chess set to keep you entertained. Once we were seated and looked over the extensive menu, we decided on the following items. Ambrosiaburger – Served medium rare with their homemade ambrosiasauce and nothing else on a french roll. It lets the meat shine and makes for a great burger. I added cheese to mine and since Amie is a vegetarian I got her bacon as well. The ambrosia sauce tasted like a healthier thousand island to me. Side options are garden salad, bean salad or coleslaw. I like getting half coleslaw and half bean salad. The coleslaw is not a heavy mayo type slaw, and it feels like they are going healthier with it as well. The bean salad is kidney and garbanzo beans with a red wine sauce, and it is an excellent side to go with the burger. Triple berry pie with vanilla ice cream – Raspberry, Strawberry and Boysenberries warmed and served with an oat topping. Make sure you ask for ice cream added on, as you are going to want it. It is truly one of the best views you can have while enjoying a meal in California. Check it out and let me know what you think in the comments.

Chapter 3 : Big Sur Hotel | Post Ranch Inn - Reservations | California Central Coast Resorts

Big Sur is a rugged and mountainous section of the Central Coast of the U.S. state of California between Carmel Highlands and San Simeon, where the Santa Lucia Mountains rise abruptly from the Pacific Ocean.

Unable to penetrate the difficult terrain along the coast, they detoured inland through the San Antonio and Salinas Valleys before arriving at Monterey Bay, where they founded Monterey and named it the provincial capital. This was often shortened to el sur grande. Coast Survey in 1792, which renamed a point of land that looked like an island and was shaped like a trumpet, known to the Spanish as "Morro de la Trompa" and "Punta que Parece Isla", to Point Sur. The Big Sur coast has been called the "longest and most scenic stretch of undeveloped coastline in the [contiguous] United States. The beauty of the scenery along the narrow, two-lane road attracts enormous crowds during summer vacation periods and holiday weekends, and traffic is frequently slow. Most of the highway is extremely narrow, with tight curves, steep shoulders and blind turns. The route offers few or no passing lanes and, along some stretches, very few pullouts. The sides are occasionally so steep that the shoulders are virtually non-existent. The Big Sur Local Coastal Plan, approved by Monterey County Supervisors in 1972, states that the region is meant to be an experience that visitors transit through, not a destination. For that reason, development of all kinds is severely restricted. There are a large number of state and federal lands and parks, including McWay Falls at Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park, one of only two waterfalls on the Pacific Coast that plunge directly into the ocean. However, parking is very limited and usually unavailable on summer weekends and holidays. Depending on the season, visitors can view sea otters, sea lions, seals and migrating whales from the beach. The beach is barely visible from Highway 1. The road is being upgraded by the United States Forest Service during the fall of 2012 and is closed to the public. The parking lot at the beach only accommodates 60 vehicles and is usually full on summer and holiday weekends. During the summer, a shuttle operates from the US Forest Service headquarters to the beach. The wide sandy expanse offers views of a scenic arch rock offshore. It is popular with hikers and photographers for its views of nearby bluffs. A steep staircase leads down to the beach from the highway. Two beaches are surrounded by private land owned by the El Sur Ranch and are inaccessible to the public. The first is the beach at the mouth of the Little Sur River. Fences around the beaches are posted with "Private Property" and "No Trespassing" signs. The beach at the foot of McWay falls is not accessible from the shore. And to the south near the county line, Gamboa Point Beach is also closed to the public. Currently closed, hikers could use it to access many campsites in the back country, including Ventana Camp, Terrace Creek, Barlow Flats, Sykes, and Redwood camps. When open, it is accessible from the Big Sur Station. The trail, connecting trails, and the campsites along its route were closed during the Soberanes Fire in June 2017. They were damaged by the fire itself and further damaged by the heavy rains during the following winter. Reopening the trail will require an environmental assessment and perhaps re-routing the trail entirely. The trail is closed indefinitely. It follows a northeasterly route up the slopes of Mt. The trail is not maintained. Parking is available in the north at Cadillac Flat near the Ventana Inn. There are wide views in all directions for almost the entire hike. It is not open to vehicular traffic or bicycles. Some trails west of Highway 1 are open. Esalen hosted many figures of the nascent "New Age" and, in the 1950s, played an important role in popularizing Eastern philosophies, the "Human Potential Movement" and Gestalt therapy in the United States. Esalen is named after the Native Americans who congregated there at the natural hot springs possibly for thousands of years. The Hermitage in Big Sur was founded in 1924. The Hermitage rents a few simple rooms for visitors who would like to engage in silent meditation and contemplation. Normally all retreats are silent and undirected. The marathon was established in 1976 and attracts about 4,000 participants annually. The run through the redwoods was cancelled in 2017 due to the Soberanes Fire and in 2018 due to winter storms. On Sunday afternoon, they invited all the neighbors for a free, open performance. This became the first festival.

Outstanding Tour of Big Sur & California Coast We had a wonderful trip through Big Sur, Carmel and the area communities. Our tour guide, Dave Engelberg of Central Coast Tours (calendrierdelascience.com) did a terrific job, pointing out the breathtaking views along the California Coast.

For guests who want to get even closer to the trees, the resort, which underwent a renovation in , offers new glamping accommodations: Visit Spa Alila for relaxation and rejuvenation through massage, energy work, bodywork, skin care, and astrology readings. Soak in the Japanese hot baths, swim in two heated outdoor pools, explore the property on daily guided hikes, or visit the Glass House Gallery to view work by local artists. At the Sur House restaurant, ingredients from the nearby farms and sea are the stars—along with dramatic views. The highway traffic noise disappears, the filtered sunlight takes on the quality of stained glass, and the earthy smell of the forest is enough to cleanse your mind of digital and other distractions. This quiet altar of wisdom and irreverence serves as a bookstore and art hub focused on promoting the works of author Henry Miller, who lived in Big Sur between and The library hosts events throughout the year, but especially from May to October, including concerts, lectures, and book signings. At breakfast, lunch, and dinner, perfectly seasoned dishes emerge from the wood-fired oven. Big Sur Bakery is also a community hub, where locals drop by to have a scone and a cup of coffee, and catch up with friends. Go early for freshly baked pastries. Visitors can view the foot McWay Falls as it plummets from a granite cliff to the sandy cove below from the half-mile Waterfall Overlook Trail, which is easily accessible from the entrance gate of Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park. The falls, creek, and canyon are named after Christopher McWay, an early settler and farmer, but the park itself is named after a legendary early pioneer who had a ranch in McWay Canyon with her husband. For a different view, turn to Ewoldsen Trail, a two-mile loop that crosses streams and winds through redwood trees. At its highest elevation gain, the views make any effort more than worthwhile. Perched high above the Pacific and in the shadow of the Santa Lucia Mountains, Nepenthe offers miles-long views of the coast. Enjoy it all from a seat on the laid-back patio, or inside the main building, designed by a student of Frank Lloyd Wright and made of native materials to blend with the landscape. The Sushi Bar at Treebones Before glamping was a phenomenon, there was Treebones Resort , its yurts set on redwood platforms with views of the Pacific Ocean. The Sushi Bar at Treebones Resort is the local go-to spot for sushi. The two-seating nightly omakase experience offers an elaborate tasting menu, served against the backdrop of a spectacular sunset over the ocean, visible through the windows behind the chef. The sushi chef thoroughly guides you through the dishes. While the freshest catch is always the star of the menu which can include scallops with black garlic and yellowtail nigiri , even vegan diners will have plenty to enjoy with sushi options that highlight produce from the on-site organic garden. Only open from March through November, the Sushi Bar offers same-day reservations for off-property guests; with very limited seating, you need to be fast on the phone dial. Even better, since overnight guests receive first priority when they book their yurt, your odds of dining here improve if you stay over, too. Post Ranch Inn Described by devotees as the most luxurious, one-of-a-kind lodging experience in all of California, the Post Ranch Inn was purpose-built to blend in with the Santa Lucia Mountains. Opened in , and designed by famed Big Sur architect Mickey Muennig, the modern dwellings here resemble sophisticated tree houses—“at one with the earth, sky, and water. Each of the 39 buildings is built from recycled redwood and paneled glass, and each was designed with complete seclusion in mind. Or if you get your inspiration from the mountains, book the Peak House, which faces the top of the ridge. The Post Ranch Spa offers soothing body and facial treatments, private yoga and meditation practices, and even shaman healing sessions, while two pools on the cliffs have views that blend sea and sky. This is the place to go off the grid, commune with loved ones or reconnect with yourself , and enjoy total privacy. And those climbs along the coast are much easier when you have a watt assist. Big Sur Adventures offers a trio of e-bike tours for all levels of riders: One of the best choices for intermediate riders is the Old Coast Road route, a dirt road that follows the original wagon trail into Big Sur. Trips include four to 12 people and typically last three to four hours. Sure, in a car, you can roll down the windows to smell the sea, but
