History[ edit ] CareSource was founded in Dayton, Ohio by a group of concerned community leaders with the goal of expanding health care for underserved populations. Led by Pamela Morris, the company dealt with several regulatory hurdles from to from the Ohio Department of Insurance. It overcame these hurdles when U. The plan in Columbus kept its previous name, MedPlan. By that number exceeded , In , desiring to support surrounding non-profits, CareSource established the CareSource Foundation. The Foundation collaborates with non-profits who share in the mission of serving the underserved. It has awarded a total of grants to non-profit organizations so far. In this same year when the economy was down in Dayton, Ohio and major employers like National Cash Register , General Motors , and Delphi closed or left town. In employment in the area remained weak, but CareSource saw business growth and became the only Medicaid Managed Care provider to offer services in all 88 counties in Ohio. The project was the largest urban building development in Ohio at the time. This partnership worked to serve dual-eligible populations, or individuals who qualify for both Medicare and Medicaid in Ohio. They entered the Health Insurance Exchange and created a product which allowed the company to enter the commercial insurance market. CareSource used this opportunity to create a plan which assimilates both Medicaid and Medicare into one CareSource health plan. The company then served more than 1 million consumers in Ohio and Kentucky. Through a partnership with Fuyao Glass America , the company was able to set up interviews for 40 members for full-time employment with the manufacturing company. Karin VanZant, the cofounder and executive director of Think Tank, was hired to oversee the program. According to the Dayton Business Journal, this new approach informed the way CareSource began to see its members. The growth in membership was matched by growth in the number of employees. This resulted in the need for additional office space near the company headquarters in Dayton. A lease was signed for some employees to move into space on two floors of the Kettering Tower in downtown Dayton to make room for a total of 2, employees in the city. The new building would provide space for employees and create a campus-like environment in the urban core. Headquartered in Dayton, Ohio, CareSource has a workforce of 4, employees. CareSource understands the challenges consumers face navigating the health system and works to put health care in reach for those it serves.
