Monrovia, California, Ships to: MAS manufactured and sold these grip testers in the s and s â€” they were very popular in stores, bars, and penny arcades. The machine operates on 1c. Begin by pushing in on the reset lever up near the coin slot to restore the counter to zero. If you advance the needle far enough a bell goes off to alert everyone around how strong you are! The machine has listings on the label to indicate how much of a grip you should have based on age. There are different listings for Men and Women. The outside case has been repainted with a red base. The label inside has been replaced and is an exact reproduction of the original. The top head has black wrinkle finish. The wooden base is in excellent condition â€” having a fine finish and patina â€” with a recent coat of wax applied for both good looks and protection. The grip is smooth and rather easy â€” making it simple to squeeze the handle and make the bell ring. Included with the sale are the original stiffer springs that can easily be re-installed if the new owner wants a more challenging game play. Ready for a mancave or gameroom â€” this is a fun addition to any coin-op collection. I can arrange delivery in the greater Southern California or Central Valley for a negotiable fee. Please ask any and all questions prior to placing a bid â€” the unit is sold as-is. Review my recent feedback for similar vintage coin op machines â€” It is overwhelmingly positive. Have a look at my other auctions â€” there are several nice examples of other coin op and mechanical music machines now and in the coming weeks. Vintage Penny Arcade grip strength tester coin-op machine - YouTube Video will open in a new window [isdntekvideo] Condition: Older restoration to this 1c grip tester. Machine is in fine working condition and has locking back door with newer lock and 2 keys. Sale includes original stiff springs that can easily be re-installed if desired. Journal Staff Writer I Bowers miningjournal. Both men are descendants of Michigamme founder George Block, who built the first commercial business on Main Street in Michigamme. George Block "miner, entrepreneur and purveyor of wines and liquors" built a saloon on Main Street in Michigamme in 1880. The establishment was the first completed building in a town built around the mining and lumber trades. The Michigamme Museum now stands on the very spot where George Block did business. Block, who was a native of Alsace, France, emigrated to America in 1848 and settled on the Lake Superior shoreline in Ontonagon with 30 cents to his name. He worked for 10 years as a miner, moving to Marquette County and finally Michigamme, where he built his saloon. Block descendent Randy Melvin returned the game, along with a turn-of-the-century steamer chest and spittoon, to the Michigamme Museum on Friday. A worker begins to unload the trade stimulator. Journal photo by Lisa Bowers The rare cast iron machine, which is painted with an intricate marbled pattern, is years old, and just as it did then, if you insert a nickel, the reels still spin. It has come back home to stimulate minds as they see it. What the family is hoping is that this will do good for the future and for the community, that it will inspire young people who visit here to read about history or engineering and just entrepreneurship and do all the wonderful things that museums are intended to do. Moore "also a Block descendent" has been a volunteer and advocate of the Michigamme Museum since it opened its doors in 1970. The building that once stood where the museum stands holds an intimate family connection for both men. When he was a child, Moore said he and his family lived above the saloon. Then they built the Community Building there. So, we are going to build a pole barn and we are going to put a false front on it. We have been finally making progress after a lot of years.
