

Chapter 1 : Prose Fiction - English Language & Literature - Research Guides at Queen's University

Excerpt from Catalogue of the English Prose Fiction: Including Translations and Juvenile Fiction, in the Mercantile Library Association, of Baltimore, to October, The present list of Fiction is put forth to supply a want that has long been felt.

Bring fact-checked results to the top of your browser search. Other 7th- and 8th-century prose, similarly practical in character, includes more laws, wills, and charters. According to Cuthbert, who was a monk at Jarrow, Bede at the time of his death had just finished a translation of the Gospel of St. John, though this does not survive. Two medical tracts, Herbarium and Medicina de quadrupedibus, very likely date from the 8th century. Augustine of Hippo, and the first 50 Psalms. His Pastoral Care is a fairly literal translation, but his Boethius is extensively restructured and revised to make explicit the Christian message that medieval commentators saw in that work. He revised the Soliloquies even more radically, departing from his source to draw from Gregory and St. Jerome, as well as from other works by Augustine. Both of these works are much abridged; the Bede translation follows its source slavishly, but the translator of Orosius added many details of northern European geography and also accounts of the voyages of Ohthere the Norwegian and Wulfstan the Dane. These accounts, in addition to their geographical interest, show that friendly commerce between England and Scandinavia was possible even during the Danish wars. Its earliest annals beginning in the reign of Julius Caesar are laconic, except the entry for, which records in detail a feud between the West Saxon king Cynewulf and the would-be usurper Cyneheard. The entries covering the Danish wars of the late 9th century are much fuller, and those running from the reign of Ethelred II to the Norman Conquest in which the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle exists in several versions contain many passages of excellent writing. The early 10th century is not notable for literary production, but some of the homilies in the Vercelli Book and the Blickling Manuscript in the Scheide Library, Princeton University may belong to that period. Late 10th- and 11th-century prose The prose literature of the mid- to late 10th century is associated with the Benedictine Reform, a movement that sought to impose order and discipline on a monastic establishment that was thought to have grown lax. Aethelwold, bishop of Winchester and one of the leaders of the reform, translated the Rule of St. Benedict. But the greatest and most prolific writer of this period was his pupil Aelfric, a monk at Cerne and later abbot of Eynsham, whose works include three cycles of 40 homilies each Catholic Homilies, 2 vol. His Latin Colloquy, supplied with an Old English version by an anonymous glossarist, gives a fascinating glimpse into the Anglo-Saxon monastic classroom. Aelfric wrote with lucidity and astonishing beauty, using the rhetorical devices of Latin literature frequently but without ostentation; his later alliterative prose, which loosely imitates the rhythms of Old English poetry, influenced writers long after the Norman Conquest. To judge from the number of extant manuscripts, these two writers were enormously popular. Byrhtferth of Ramsey wrote several Latin works and the Enchiridion, a textbook on the calendar, notable for its ornate style. The works of the Benedictine Reform were written during a few remarkable decades around the turn of the millennium. By the end of this period, English had been established as a literary language with a polish and versatility unequalled among European vernaculars.

Chapter 2 : Catalog Record: The Imaginary voyage in prose fiction : a | Hathi Trust Digital Library

All the English prose fiction in the library on January 1, Since the issue of the last Catalogue in , new titles have been added and are inserted in this edition; while the titles of books worn out and discarded have been removed.

English Renaissance Prose Fiction, An Annotated Bibliography of Criticism. F4 H37 Letellier, Robert Ignatius. The English Novel, F4 L46 Beasley, Jerry C. A Guide to Information Sources. F5B42 Begins with lists of general and historical sources; entries for 29 fiction writers list resources including works, letters, biographies, and critical studies. An Annotated Bibliography and Guide to Topics. F4 H33 Begins with an extensive index of subjects, themes, and critical issues in eighteenth-century fiction, with each entry in the index listing relevant works in the bibliographies. Each entry in the bibliographies which list critical studies of eighteenth-century backgrounds, of the eighteenth-century novel in general, and of major and minor novelists cites the relevant headings in the index in lieu of fuller annotation. The Eighteenth Century Gothic Novel: F5M3 Spector, Robert Donald. H67S66 Advice on critical sources in the form of a bibliographic essay. Guide to the Gothic: G66F7 Ford, George Harry, ed. A Second Guide to Research. V5 Nagel, James and Gwen L. Bibliography of American Fiction, F4 B46 Selective bibliographies of primary and secondary sources for writers. Kemp, Sandra et al. K39 "[S]urveys fiction in English, published principally but not exclusively in Great Britain and Ireland between 1 January and 31 December Includes articles on themes and sub-genres as well as on authors. E35 A "preliminary" list of 20, critical notices of works of American fiction. The Twentieth-Century English Novel: An Annotated Bibliography of General Criticism. F4 C35 Rice, Thomas Jackson. General Bibliography and Individual Authors: F4R5 The general bibliography lists standard secondary sources, with separate lists for sub-genres including short story, crime fiction, political and religious fiction, science fiction, utopian fiction, and fantasy. The entries for 35 authors list primary and secondary sources. A Bibliography of Modern British Novelists. F4S72 A list of books, dissertations, and periodical articles on 25 well-known 20th-century British novelists. Adelman, Irving and Rita Dworkin. F4 A34 Selected listing of criticism through V55 Biographical data, brief critical essay, and bibliographies of primary and secondary sources for each of over writers. Schlager, Neil and Josh Lauer, eds. C69 Updated version of the volume cited above; since these volumes focus on living writers, see the earlier editions for entries concerning recently deceased writers. The 1st and 2nd editions are in the general stacks PR P In two main sections. The first includes essays on postmodern genres, the second essays on authors and critics of postmodern fiction. Specific Sub-Genres Albert, Walter. Detective and Mystery Fiction: An International Bibliography of Secondary Sources. D5 B37 A guide to crime and detective fiction. The Encyclopedia of Science Fiction: An Illustrated A to Z.

Chapter 3 : Full text of "Catalogue of English Prose Fiction "

*Catalogue of English Prose Fiction, Including Juveniles and Translations [Brooklyn Public Library] on calendrierdelascience.com *FREE* shipping on qualifying offers. This book was originally published prior to , and represents a reproduction of an important historical work.*

Chapter 4 : Catalogue of English Prose Fiction

Catalogue of English Prose Fiction and Books for the Young in the Lower Hall of the Public Library of the City of Boston by Boston Public Library Catalogue of James Hammond's Circulating Library, Thames Street, Newport, R.

Chapter 5 : Download [PDF] neighbor jackwood by paul creyton pseud

Book digitized by Google from the library of Harvard University and uploaded to the Internet Archive by user tpb.

DOWNLOAD PDF CATALOGUE OF ENGLISH PROSE FICTION.

Chapter 6 : Book the quiet miss godolphin and a chance child pdf free download

Catalogue of the English Prose Fiction: Including Translations and Juvenile Fiction, in the Mercantile Library Association, of Baltimore, to October, by Library Association Mercantile Library Association (Baltimor (Baltimor (Creator) starting at.

Chapter 7 : Catalogue of the English Prose Fiction

Search the history of over billion web pages on the Internet.

Chapter 8 : prose fiction | Definition of prose fiction in English by Oxford Dictionaries

Catalogue of English prose fiction, in the Mercantile Library of the City of New York, to July, Published by the association.

Chapter 9 : EL Novel Ideas: Reading Prose Fiction - Catalogue of Courses

Read "Catalogue of English Prose Fiction and Juvenile Books in the Chicago Public Library" by Chicago Public Library with Rakuten Kobo.