Which past western would you like to see back in print and why is this? Which western writers working today would you recommend? I think Jory Sherman is as good a Western writer as any we have ever had. Do you work on more than one book at a time? I do a lot of books, but I do them serially. I enjoyed writing the Stagecoach series as Hank Mitchum. I wrote it as K. I had a treatment for the screen play and wrote from that treatment. The book came out before the miniseries. I would like to do Gunsmoke, I think. That was my favorite TV Western. What was it like being the host for three TV talk shows? I am more of a motivational speaker than I am an instructor. It has been a very successful project, but it is exhausting for me, and I am getting old. Now I prefer to work with writers by long distance. Other than westerns, what is your favourite genre to write in and why? I like historical novels. America, Germany, France, Japan, and England. How did your friendship with Bill Butterworth, better known as the best-selling military novelist W. I met Bill over fifty years ago when we were both at Ft. Paul was my editor for a while when I was writing for Book Creations. We worked well together and became close friends and decided to do these books together. Do you think paper produced books will ever be replaced with electronic books? What do you think of the western genre today and what do you think the future holds for the western? I think there will always be Westerns And we have some very good Western writers out there now. But I think the genre is in good hands. What is your favourite western movie and why? Shane is my favorite Western Finally what do you read for pleasure?
