

Chapter 1 : The Skinny On Choosing The Best Hotels | Kenpad

The following accommodations are scattered all over the Kathmandu Valley, including places outside the city. calendrierdelascience.com of the best options are in and around calendrierdelascience.com's a touristy area, but it's a convenient place to base yourself: it's close to tour offices, shops, restaurants, nightlife, and several other points of interest.

You have reserved your plane tickets. Do you know how to find the right hotel at the best price? Start at the following article. These tips will ensure you in your search for the perfect hotel. Prior to booking a hotel, refer to TripAdvisor and similar online travel review sites. This can help you choose which hotel to stay at. Prior to making reservations, research hotels on sites like TripAdvisor. These will give you some information from people that have stayed at that certain hotel. Use websites like Orbitz or Expedia for great deal. Consider taking advantage of room service if you want a late-night snack with your special someone. You can use it to store your tablet and other expensive items to keep them secure. Take advantage of the safe you have in your room, especially if you have electronics with you. Check in on the organizations you are a member with. Some offer big discounts on hotels to their members. People frequently forget these discounts are available, which may be for 10 percent or more off of your stay. It can add up to equal a free hotel night! There are several things to think about when booking a hotel. Amenities like a swimming pool, free local calls, complimentary breakfast, a gym and pool and a convenient restaurant are also important considerations. Try locating a tip that offers as much of your wish list as possible. These websites can help you quickly find great deals. They display the average rates of hotels so that you can see if the deal you are getting is good. In addition, these tools can help you determine the best time to go on vacation and the things that you can do there. Take advantage of online when searching tools. These websites will help you to find great deals quickly. Check your hotel room ahead of unpacking. Is your room clean and free from mildew free? If you find obvious problems, report it immediately to have it fixed as soon as possible. Check your room when you arrive. Is the room clean? Do you see any mold or mildew? Are all bathroom fixtures in proper working order? Is the room adequately stocked with towels and linens? If you see that there are problems with your room, let the people at the front desk know right away so they can get things taken care of. Or, they can move you to another room. Be sure to look at your room before unpacking your suitcase. Is it free of mildew and mold while being clean? Do a quick check to ensure that the shower, sink and toilet are all in proper working order. Plan your trip in advance as you can to ensure best rates. Many locations offer the best discounts if you are willing to book a month or two ahead of time. You might even be able to save 50 percent off at some very exclusive hotels. Book massages as far ahead of time as possible to guarantee you get the perfect couples massage for you and your significant other. The best massage therapists are well-known at resorts, so get in while you can. You should always start planning any serious trip months or weeks ahead of time. This will help you book early and get the best prices. A lot of hotel locations offer discounts for reservations a month or more in advance. You can expect savings up to fifty percent if you book months in advance. If you are a daily runner, be sure to bring your running clothes and shoes. Free Stays Book your appointment as far ahead of time as possible to guarantee you get the perfect couples massage for you and your significant other. Usually, the best massage therapists are booked well in advance at top resorts. If you plan early, you will have the best experience possible. Book massages as early as possible. It is wise to look into loyalty program if you travel frequently. They provide benefits for those who regularly stay at a hotel. You will be able to earn stuff like a free upgrade, free stays, and even free stays when you get enough points. If you often stay at a certain type of hotel, look into their membership programs for frequent guests. These hotel programs give you rack up points. These points can quickly add up to many perks such as a free night, tickets to shows, free nights at the hotel, and much more. For members of AAA, hotels offer discounts that are exclusive to members. It may surprise you that AAA gives hotel discounts, but most of them do. You can save five percent or more on certain hotels. This is a savings that can really add up over several nights. Be sure to consult AAA to help you make excellent plans for your entire vacation. AAA members actually receive hotel discounts at specific hotel chains! You can save more than five percent on hotels all over the country. There are a lot of eco-friendly hotels around. Some new buildings are built in a way that they get certified as green. A travel agent can help you find hotels that are environmentally friendly. Join a membership program if you frequently stay there on business trips. These programs allow you to collect points can be applied toward further travels. Go for a run when you wake up in the morning. Even if your route takes you through the street of a city, at least you will get a glimpse of the area you are visiting. If you want to keep your regular running routine, pack your GPS and running clothes. When you wake up in the morning, throw on your gear and head out for a morning jog. One of the most important things when planning a vacation is your hotel. A bad hotel can spoil any trip. Use the advice you have read here to find a great hotel room without paying too much for the privilege.

Chapter 2 : Choosing your accommodation | Accommodation Office | University of Bristol

Some tips on choosing accommodation. Finding a suitable accommodation is a crucial part of your trip, and it can have an enormous impact on your spending if not chosen correctly.

To ensure that you find the right vacation stay for you, here are 8 things to consider when choosing accommodations for your next trip!

Your Destination Are you traveling domestically or internationally? What is the geography like—urban, coastal, mountainous? Your destination will play a large role in where you choose to stay. If an area is notorious for its higher crime rates, a well-established hotel may be a better option than a shared hostel dorm or home rental. If the area is widely regarded as safe and hospitable, then renting a room in an apartment with a local host will be a more immersive, authentic experience.

Your Budget The budget will likely play the largest role in influencing where you want to stay during a vacation. Consider the total amount of money you are able and willing to spend during your travels. How much of that money do you feel comfortable allocating toward lodging? How much of your money will it require for you to feel safe, comfortable, and content? If you have a lower budget, opt for hostels or a rented room in an apartment or home. If your budget is larger, perhaps you can afford a luxurious hotel experience or an entire home rental.

Your Desire for Convenience When you travel, how important to you is convenience? Different accommodations come with different amenities and services. Hotels offer amenities like in-room dining, laundry, toiletry access, medical help, WiFi, airport transfers, and access to concierges, who can facilitate booking and reservation processes. Apartment or home rentals might not guarantee WiFi, but they often include gestures from the host like homemade cake, wine, or a book of recommendations, in addition to basics like towels and linen.

Your Travel Companions Your travel companions—or lack thereof—can have a big effect on where you will want to stay. If solo travel is your thing, you might find it more affordable to stay in a shared dorm at a hostel rather than reserve a hotel room. If you crave company but still want privacy, renting a room in an apartment is a fantastic alternative.

Your Activities Take some time to map out your vacation activities. Do you plan on sightseeing all day, exploring the outdoors, or taking a day trip? Maybe you enjoy relaxing with a book or sipping your morning cup of coffee with a view. If you plan to read by the pool and lounge on the beach during your vacation, perhaps you want accommodations where you can feel equally comfortable spending your down time.

Your Language Skills Are you traveling somewhere where you speak the local language? If so, you probably have more accommodation options. Hostels will also have a bilingual or multilingual staff, helpful translation signs, and organized group activities where the logistics are handled for you. If you have a decent grasp of the local language and want to practice speaking it, a rental is your best option.

Your Eating Habits How do you plan to experience the food in another city and culture? Do you enjoy dining out every meal, eating at local markets, grabbing some street food, or doing some combination of all three? If you prefer cooking easy, occasional meals during your travels, look into hostels, which usually have community kitchens where you can store groceries and cook a few basic dishes. If you love sharing authentic homemade meals, book a room at a bed and breakfast. If you have dietary restrictions and need to make a lot of your own food, go for a rental with a fully equipped kitchen.

Your Personality How do you recharge after a long day of exploring an unfamiliar place? Do you like socializing or do you prefer to be on your own? Do you stay up late or go to sleep early? Do you set an alarm or wake up naturally? Do you like to have a set routine or be spontaneous? How do you deal with stressful situations? Hostels are wonderful options for laid-back individuals who love constant stimulation and meeting new people while rentals are ideal for those who enjoy a peaceful environment and the comforts of home. Consider what brings you comfort and what causes you frustration during travel, then factor that in when you decide which stay is right for you.

Chapter 3 : Choosing your accommodation type when you're travelling

Want to know how to choose your accommodation in Paris? You're deciding between an apartment and a hotel? Here is a little guide to help you choose your accommodation in Paris!

Learn more about landing a cheap deal in Get the Best Hotel Rate. Expedia, Travelocity and Kayak allow you to view your search results on a map so you can see which ones are right on the beach or in the neighborhoods you prefer. While most booking engines also allow you to see individual hotels on a map, Expedia and Hotels. Good old-fashioned guidebooks are also a good source for finding hotels in a certain location, as hotels are often listed by neighborhood and plotted on a city map. Your first stop for family hotel and resort reviews should be our brand-new family travel site, FamilyVacationCritic. Looking to go luxe? Ambience and local flavor: Loyalty programs and frequent flier miles: Not only can you earn points toward a future hotel stay, but you may also be able to accumulate miles if your hotel is partnered with your frequent flier program. Check your hotel or airline Web site to see a list of qualifying partners. Many programs also allow you to redeem points for other purchases, such as cruises, car rentals and entertainment. Travelers who are looking to minimize their environmental impact can search for green hotels on a number of sites, including Green Globe and the Green Hotels Association. You can find a comprehensive list in our Go Green Travel Center. These sites and many others, including the major booking engines offer honest hotel ratings and reviews straight from the mouths of real travelers. This is where you can read about how the staff behaves, get an idea of how clean the rooms are and learn whether the wireless Internet connection actually works. Overly fawning reviews may actually have been written by hotel employees in disguise, while some negative reviews may come from super-fussy travelers who simply have an ax to grind. But despite the occasional misleading review, most traveler ratings are an honest, unbiased and invaluable resource when deciding between hotels. Another way to get feedback from other travelers is by posting on our message boards. Do you have any special requests, such as a view or kid-friendly accommodations? Do you need a queen-size or king-size bed? Do you want something close to town or in the country?

Chapter 4 : How to pick the right student accommodation - Which?

Where you choose to stay when you travel can often make or break your experience. To ensure that you find the right vacation stay for you, here are 8 things to consider when choosing accommodations for your next trip!

Choosing your accommodation in Marrakech Choosing your accommodation in Marrakech Choosing accommodation in Marrakech can be a bewildering experience. With hundreds of options to choose from, it is difficult to know where to start. Costs The first thing to consider when trying to arrange your accommodation, is budget. Old or New Town? The location of your accommodation should also be a major factor in your decision. Marrakech is a city of two halves; the new, modern city and the ancient walled medina. Hotels in the new town consist of hotel chains and upmarket resorts, often with a golf course and swimming pools and, of course, the world famous La Mamounia. All of the sights are within easy walking distance, the souks are right on your doorstep and you can go everywhere by foot. Riads Riads are brimming with atmosphere and offer a truly unique experience to visitors to Marrakech They are normally fairly small, on average they have from 3 to 6 rooms, and they vary in price from the budget to the luxurious. Rooms usually overlook the courtyard and each bedroom is decorated in an individual style. Riads also benefit from roof terraces, offering a wonderful location for an al fresco breakfast. Access is often down small alleys, called derbs, which, whilst perfectly safe, can feel intimidating to first time visitors. Added to this, the streets are rarely well sign-posted and good maps hard to come by, so staying in one requires a degree of trepidation. Whilst children and families are often welcome, riads can be hazardous, with balconies and unattended pools, so parents need to keep an extra close eye on their children when visiting. After many trips to Marrakech, we have decided to offer only riad-based accommodation for our holidays, as we feel they offer a unique and atmospheric experience. We have hand-picked a selection of our favourite riads in Marrakech. They are all in walking distance of the main square, the Djemaa el Fna and have all been visited by one of the members of our team so you can be sure that they offer something a little special. If your preferred riad is not on this list, please contact us to discuss your options. We have organised the riads into broad categories based on their price. What you need to remember about accommodation in riads is that they are small, individual guest houses and come with their own quirks. Plumbing should be reliable, but in the summer months the smells from the medina can at times waft into the bathrooms. As mentioned, many are located in small alley ways which, upon first visit, can seem a little intimidating. Use pricing as a guide to quality. In the luxury category, you can expect beautifully furnished rooms with exceptional service. Mid-range riads should be clean and have friendly service, but will have less elaborate fixtures and fittings. They have an upmarket hotel feel, but still individual enough to make your stay unique. It has just five bedrooms, each looking onto the central courtyard where there is a small plunge pool. Meals are taken on the roof terrace complete with open fire for cool nights and shade for hot days. Located in the south of the city, it is within easy access to the main sights of Marrakech and the main square is an easy 10 - 15 minute walk. An added bonus is that the hotel benefits from car access, meaning you can be dropped off just outside the door. Inside the hotel, there are 17 rooms, all of which have been individually decorated, with excellent attention to the interior design. There is a good sized pool with sun loungers and a spa with hammam. Communal areas include a winter and summer salon and a cinema room where you can watch dvds on a large screen. Upstairs, the roof terrace is huge, with plenty of space to spread out, it even houses a small gym for those who like to work out with a view. Courtyard, terrace, cinema room, large roof terrace - Additional features: Our hand-picked collection of boutique riads are all well-located, within 10 minutes of the main square and all offer an oasis of calm from the chaotic souks. Many of them are located along small derbs, or alleyways, making their approach feel a little less than salubrious. However, the minute you enter, these stylish, yet cosy riads will feel like home. Communal areas, such as salons and roof terraces are a must and many have additional extras such as wifi and hammams. Some of our riads have a plunge pool, which is a nice to have in the summer months. For winter stays, relaxing in a lounge with a roaring log fire is a nice way to end the day. At this type of riad, you can expect helpful and friendly staff who will be more than happy to book meals for you and come and meet you if you get lost. As with many riads in Marrakech, it is accessed down an unlit derb or street. With six bedrooms and 2 generous salons, this is a larger riad, with some gorgeous communal spaces. This riad is suitable for both winter and summer visits, the salons are cosy, with log fires and the patio offers a shady retreat from the summer sun. The indisputable wow factor for this riad is its roof terrace, with far-reaching views and lots of space to spread out. If you do get lost, you can just call a member of the riad staff and they will come and find you and bring you home! The roof terrace is decked out with tables and chairs, sun-loungers and a shady pergola with comfortable sofas for relaxing. An added benefit is a small pool in an adjacent courtyard, allowing you to cool off on sunny days. With lovely communal areas and a romantic atmosphere, this riad is one of our favourites. This riad is really easy to find and very well placed for exploring the medina with less chances of getting lost! The riad is beautifully furnished and the staff are attentive and friendly. If you are a medium sized family, then renting this riad as a whole makes for a lovely base. Roof terrace with sun loungers, 2 small lounges, one with TV - Additional features: Wifi, air con, safe, i-pod docking station, honesty bar - Small plunge pool EL ZOHAR A lovely 5 bed riad, in the Mouassaine area of Marrakech, about a 5 minute walk from the square and close to the souks. The views from the roof terrace are magnificent, with a panoramic vista of the Atlas Mountains and the Koutoubia. This is a fabulous option for couples looking for a romantic break in a good location. All rooms can have an additional bed. Some offer a good standard of accommodation in a great location, others are patchy. We have hand-picked a selection of our favourites. All of these riads are arranged around a courtyard patio, some even have a pool. All of the riads offer a roof terrace and at least one other communal area. Sometimes you will also be offered fruit, eggs and pancakes. Location wise, we have selected riads within a reasonable distance of the main square 10 minutes walk or less some of them are easy to find, others are located down small, winding alleys. As they are all small with 6 rooms or less they are also well-suited for groups wanting to rent an entire house for their stay. Please bear in mind that given how small the riads are, we may not always be able to offer you your first preference. Compared to many of the riads in Marrakech, it is also relatively easy to find, accessed via a well maintained derb. There are 5 rooms altogether, including a family suite which has a double and twin room sharing a bathroom. The roof terrace has views to the Koutoubia and is decked out with sun loungers. Roof terrace with sun loungers, patio, salon with tv. There is a lovely roof terrace, complete with sun loungers and shaded sitting area and downstairs a patio, offering a relaxing communal area for guests. The owner lives in the riad, in a separate apartment, so is on hand to give tips and help if you need it. All of the bedrooms are en-suite and one offers family accommodation. This riad has a lovely atmosphere, with a calming interior design and is a solid bet for a well-located, mid-range option. There is a cosy lounge and a lovely roof terrace where you can enjoy a tasty breakfast. Downstairs, there is a small, relaxing patio area and lounge with fire-place and a tv. If you are travelling as a small group or a family, you could rent the whole riad, giving you a relaxing, yet affordable base for exploring the medina. Roof terrace, TV lounge with fire-place - Additional features: Inside, the riad has 4 air conditioned bedrooms, all en-suite and one family room that sleeps 4. The roof terrace has sun loungers and is private. The riad also benefits from a deep plunge pool and a hammam. Roof terrace with sun loungers, pation, salon - Additional features: Wifi, air con, under floor heating, pool, hammam Budget Marrakech Riads circa. We have two hotels that we recommend in this category. Both are in an excellent location, just minutes from the square and convenient for late night drop offs. If you normally stay in hostels or basic accommodation and just want a bed for the night without the trimmings, then these are a solid option. The 24 rooms are all ensuite with showers, toilet, air conditioning and tv. The staff are friendly and rooms are clean. Communal areas include a pleasant roof terrace and patio. Rooms are ensuite with air con and there is a roof terrace with a view of the Koutoubia and patio area. Recommended Riads for Families Finding a riad to accommodate your family can be a difficult task, but there are some superb options in the medina for families of all sizes. Most riads will be able to add a bed to a double room to accommodate three people, so if there are just three of you in your family and you are happy to share, then you have a wide choice. Mid-range riads for families: The riad benefits from a lovely roof terrace and also a pool. It is quite deep, so parents need to supervise young children. Families of 4 might want to consider the family room at Riad Diana a double and a twin room sharing a bathroom. The riad also has a small pool, which can be very welcome in the heat of the summer. If you have a slightly larger family, you might want to consider renting a whole riad. Riad Dar Thania has three double rooms over two floors, with a lovely roof terrace and lounge.

Chapter 5 : Choose your accommodation at Borgo Argiano

See the range of accommodation we have available at Borgo Argiano here on our website. Starting with our Studio Apartments right through to our Grand Suite.

Included on this page are some of the key elements that might influence where you want to live, to help you decide which of our residences is best suited to you. Your accommodation preferences When you fill out the accommodation application form you will get to choose three preferred residences. Because some residences are oversubscribed see the applications to spaces ratio for PDF , not all residences are available for each preference. Details of the residences available per preference PDF will help you to see which options you have for each of your choices. Other factors to consider that might influence your preferences are detailed below:

Catered or self-catered Some students already know whether they want catered or self-catered accommodation, but if you are unsure which to go for, here are some of the benefits of each which may help you to decide. The catered residences tend to have more communal space. Eating together can give you the opportunity to meet a much wider range of people and create a broader friendship base The catered residences tend to be larger and corridor based making it easier to build a community feel All of our catered residences have live in wardens. For full details of what we offer in our catered residences, see our our catered accommodation pages. Eat what you like when you like “ including pot noodles! Another option is to have the best of both worlds by buying a mealcard.

Room type Room types available are: Shared - a room with two sets of furniture beds, desk, wardrobe suitable for two students to live in together. Many students start out thinking they must have an en suite but you should be aware of the disadvantages: En suite rooms tend to have quite a bit less living space because the en suite takes up a lot of the room. All your visitors etc will have to use your en suite. Shared bathrooms for standard rooms will usually be made up of a shower room and a separate toilet. The number of shower room and toilets per flat will vary with how many students are sharing the flat. In older residences, which are arranged on corridors, the shared bathrooms are usually a large block with several individual showers, bathrooms or toilets grouped together. The normal ratio is one shower and toilet for a maximum of 5 students although occasionally this will be more or less. The University has a small number of studios for undergraduates. Please be sure to let us know what you need in the special notes section of the application form and we will do our best to meet your needs. As well as our en suite rooms in mixed gender flats, which you can search for on our residences page , we have a number of residences that offer gender neutral bathroom facilities:

Chapter 6 : Choosing Your Accommodation

Choosing your student accommodation is more than just picking a halls of residence and hoping for the best. Our friends at NUS explain more We use cookies to allow us and selected partners to improve your experience and our advertising.

We advise all students not to hand over money or sign any kind of rental contract before physically sighting a property. Choosing your accommodation is an important step in your transition and we recommend that you start looking at your accommodation options as early as possible, particularly if you want to apply for on-campus accommodation. There are many things you should think about before making a decision.

Accommodation checklist

Location Do you want to live on or off-campus? If living off-campus, do you wish to live closer to the University or the city? Do you rely on public transport? If so, consider living on-campus or consider accommodation near the public transport routes. Will you look for part time work? Think of where you will look for work and how you will get to your workplace. Will you need to connect utilities? If you rent a whole vacant property off-campus or a University flat, you will need to do so. Is the accommodation close to supermarkets or shopping centres?

Type of Accommodation Can you afford to live alone or do you want to share with others? If you are considering shared accommodation, whom do you want to live with? Are you in a group of students? University flats and whole vacant properties off-campus might suit your needs.

Facilities What kind of space are you looking for? Do you want to have your own room? Do you need a quiet place for study, strong light for design drawings, access to a computer, an area to practice musical instruments? Are you willing to share bathroom and kitchen facilities? If not, a one bedroom apartment off-campus may be your only option. These can prove expensive. Do you want meals provided? If so, do you have any special dietary requirements, such as vegetarian, halal or kosher food?

Legal questions How long do you require accommodation for? If it is for less than six months you will probably have difficulty gaining a lease on a whole vacant property. You may need to look for full board, a room in a family home or share accommodation. Are you willing to sign a lease? If not, your options are limited to full board, rooms in family homes and some share accommodation. If your name is on a utility bill e. It is advisable to ensure all co-tenants share the responsibility and have their names on all the bills.

Costs How much is the bond and rent in advance? How much is the rent? How much does it cost to connect the utilities such as electricity, gas and telephone? Will you need furniture? When choosing accommodation, keep in mind the following helpful tips

All on-campus rooms are furnished, but most off-campus rooms are completely unfurnished. Share accommodation is a less expensive alternative. In share accommodation you usually move into an already established house. Connection fees are already paid and the rest of the house is usually furnished. See living costs for estimated annual costs. Make sure there is an affordable form of heating for the cold winter months. Gas heating is generally the cheapest. To find cheap furniture you can go to second hand shops or markets. Garage sales are listed in local newspapers and EG Entertainment Guide in The Age newspaper on Saturdays , The Trading Post or look on notice boards around your campus for students selling furniture. It is highly recommended that you sign the lease even when you are sharing with your friends. If you run into difficulty with off-campus rental accommodation, you have little protection without a lease. Standard leases, condition reports and other tenancy information are available at Tenants Union of Victoria.

Choosing your roommate

The task of choosing a roommate needs to be taken very seriously. The person or persons with whom you decide to live can affect the quality and productiveness of your international student experience in Australia. Do you and your roommates expect to share the costs of buying toilet paper, washing powder for clothes and dishes, cleaning supplies, etc. What does the rental price cover? Does it include utilities, or are they split equally when the accounts are due? Who will pay them and how will you all know they have been paid? A small notebook which is signed by everyone who hands over their share of the costs and signed by the person the money is given to, is a good idea. Do you and your roommates expect to share the costs of buying food and share in the preparation? Do you have specific food needs allergies, preparation needs? What is the household arrangement? How much privacy do you need? What hours do you and your roommate usually sleep, study or socialise? Do you prefer to have a smoker or non-smoker as a roommate? What about overnight visitors? When conflicts arise, how do you go about resolving them? Please keep in mind that not everyone can be trusted! Follow your instincts and do not room with someone you do not trust. For further information regarding housing options, please visit the Accommodation at La Trobe website.

DOWNLOAD PDF CHOOSING YOUR ACCOMMODATIONS

Chapter 7 : 8 Things to Consider When Choosing Accommodations For Your Next Trip – Hayo Magazine

Lodge B&B. Our B&B lodge contains four ensuite rooms each with a queen bed. Choose from an elevated room or ground floor room, one of which is wheelchair friendly and the other has an extra bed, so works well as a twin.

There was a time when hotels or villas were pretty much your only option while on holiday or travelling. If you were travelling on a budget you have to stay in a hideous budget hotel and there was very little flexibility. These days we have so many accommodation options. In fact, we have so many it can be difficult to choose which is best! When your booking your accommodation it can be complicated too! This site brings together accommodation from some of the biggest sites like Hotels. I like boutique hotels that offer something different and quirky and this is exactly what these luxury hostels have. Hostels used to be over-packed bedroom filled with bunk beds and smelly backpackers but can now be a boutique experience. Boutique hostels usually have private rooms as well as cheaper dorm rooms. There are communal areas where you can meet people great for solo travellers and also have some space away from the confines of your bedroom. They have fully equipped kitchens too so you can save money on your meals. It will be a cookie cutter hotel room with cream walls and views to another concrete block of a building. Every room looks the same, no matter where you are in the world. I want a swimming pool, breakfast in bed, fluffy pillows, a mini bar, an enormous bath, toiletries worth stealing and a huge robe and slippers. You have the reception, the cleaners, newspapers, a gym, breakfast and sometimes room service like you would in a hotel but you have an apartment rather than just a single hotel room. You can often barter with guest house owners over the price or at least get your breakfast included for free. Local experiences If you want to get a real feel for the local culture then you can opt for a homestay where you live in the house of a local family. This can be a great way to get to know the local area and many travellers swear by it. Airbnb or private house rental Best for: Budget travel, luxury travel, long term travel, groups, families and local experiences Yes, private house rental is a great option for pretty much every type of traveller. Air bnb is the most popular website to find homes to rent but there are a lot of alternatives out there too. House sitting Best for: Long term travel, flexible travel and budget travel House sitting usually involves joining a community website and keeping your eyes peeled for the dream opportunity.

Chapter 8 : Choosing your accommodation, Study with us, La Trobe University

There was a time when hotels or villas were pretty much your only option while on holiday or travelling. We all accepted this and didn't question if there were any other options available. If you were travelling on a budget you have to stay in a hideous budget hotel and there was very little.

Smrithi Kumar Student Life Yay! You have got your offer letter and you are preparing to move to Newcastle for a fresh start at university. I am sure you want your room away from home to be as similar to your own bedroom at home so that you adapt very quickly and easily. That essentially means you need a sense of comfort and familiarity. There are different accommodation facilities for every taste and budget. These rooms are very close to the main university campus or have good transport facilities all day long to ensure you go to and from uni without any hassle. You can get a detailed list of all the university accommodation and their facilities on the Accommodation webpages. Here are a few tips and factors you need to consider while booking your room: Location Check where your course faculty is situated at Northumbria University and book a room in an accommodation that is nearby. The university in itself is quite extensive with the City East and City West campuses and you want to save those precious minutes in the morning so that you can get to class quickly and be in on time. You should technically be out of bed and in uni in under 5 minutes. This is a blessing especially in the colder months when you dread that long walk to class. You might also want to consider booking an accommodation which has a supermarket nearby so that you could go any time to satiate those pangs of hunger that suddenly develop while you are working on an essay. If you are a fitness freak or play a lot of sports, you might consider booking a room closer to Sport Central at university or close to a gym. Budget As students we all live on tight budgets and obviously some accommodation is cheaper than others. So do thorough research so that you get what you are looking for at the best deals. Other than university accommodation there are many student letting services also which help you find cheap accommodation. These are obviously a little further away from university but would easily fit into your budget. But, I would recommend staying in University accommodation for the first year and then moving out after you are familiar with the area and know how to get the best deal. In year two you could even move into a house with your course mates. Do not forget the number of weeks your accommodation contract lasts for. On the other hand, if you are coming to University before the contract starts or staying on after it ends you can get the contract extended by talking to the reception desk or emailing the said contract provider. Catered vs Uncatered Do you like cooking food? Whatever your answer is, do consider the fact that while at university you have multiple things to do and healthy eating might not seem like a priority. Types of Room I remember when I was looking for accommodation I was confused about what these terms meant. All of them are different and have their pros and cons. The best part about living in halls is the socialising and the number of people you get to know. Some of you may not like the idea of sharing three bathrooms among ten people as at times it gets difficult if you are running late for university and all the washrooms are occupied. Flats give you more privacy and you have a bigger kitchen with more cabinet and fridge space to stock up! You end up forming close bonds with your flatmates and may regularly have pizza and movie nights in the kitchens which are quite large with sofas. Flats can either have en-suite rooms in which case you have your very own wash-room as is the case with accommodations like Camden Court, Manor Bank, and New Bridge Street or they can have common bathrooms, maybe 2 bathrooms shared among 7 flatmates as is the case with Stephenson or Lovaine Flats. These are much more expensive with extra facilities like a double bed and your own private mini kitchen. Some even have basketball courts, gym and sport facilities which you might want to look into. Accommodations have laundry facilities as well. I hope this article helps you make a well informed choice and enjoy your stay while at university.

Chapter 9 : Traveling Tip 3: Choosing your accommodation – Taia In Japan

Need to know tips to help you choose the date and accommodations for your wedding in Las Vegas. Select your accommodations. Of course, this is the first step you want to do when considering having your wedding in Las Vegas.

This post looks to highlight factors which may influence your decision. If you are likely to be spending most of the day out and about, there is no need to spend tens of thousands of yen on an expensive ryokan. Hostels are likely to be the cheapest option available. If you do not want to be in shared dormitories, private rooms are usually reasonably priced between 2, to 3, yen per person. If all you need is a bed and bathroom facilities, hostels are more than sufficient. Other reasonably priced options are capsule hotels and minshukus. Generally, we tried to stay in places within minutes walk of transport. Any further than that and we would eliminate it as an option, as we did not want to spend too much time travelling between the transport hub back to our accommodation. The additional travel cost of these trips might make it more pricey overall compared to a more expensive accommodation option that does not require any special transport. There are usually plenty of options near train stations. Essentials like toilets and showers are generally a must. Another essential is whether it has laundry facilities or is in close proximity to an area that does. For example, there were cheaper alternatives in Kurokawa, but we ended up going with the more pricey Yamamizuki. Even though the cost is almost times more than what we would have paid for a hostel, the experience of staying at this lovely ryokan, the extravagant meals they provided and the extremely efficient and friendly service made it worth it. Yamamizuki Ryokan in Kurokawa cost almost 17, yen a night per person, which cost 5. The cost also includes 2 meals in addition to free use of the onsen facilities. It is always good to have a quick look to gauge your general impression of the place. Of course, in the era of photoshop and enhanced photography, there is a chance that what you see is not what you get. I would usually do this to select a handful of potential places, but this would not be the critical criteria I would use in selecting accommodation. It is no point saving a few hundred yen if you are going to end up with bed bug problems for the rest of the trip! Would you want to stay here? In these cases, it might be best to pick the most convenient accommodation option. This reduced the stress of having to rush to the airport early in the morning. If I could turn back time, I would still choose to pay 2, yen more to stay at a hotel next to Itami Airport, rather than be completely stressed out making sure all of us were ready at 6: Consider making day trips from one place rather than moving around each day. This can also allow you to stay at cheaper accommodations e. We took another extreme and travelled to Nikko for a daytrip from Tokyo we were using a JR train pass so train trips were no additional expense! This would be extremely beneficial for those who are hopping between cities on a daily basis. Western hotels and big hostel chains usually do not have curfews, and provide after hours access for entering after reception has closed. While most would probably base their decision on cost, it should not be the only factor considered. Ask yourself, is it really that worth it saving 2, yen USD20 on accommodation if it meant having to waste an hour each day going back and forth between your accommodation? What if it is more convenient to stay at somewhere slightly more pricey? Remember, you had likely spent thousands of dollars to reach Japan. What is a few additional hundred to ensure that you enjoy your trip more?