In I was at a time in my life when I was living my dream of working from the saddle and was happy with my life. Then God impressed on my spirit that He wanted me to submit a story to a contest with Guideposts Magazine. Immediately I told God who I was "a horse gal" not a writer. But over the next couple months God persisted. Finally He put His spiritual megaphone next to my spiritual ears. Guideposts would also fly in some of the top Christian authors from around the world to personally tutor us. I was breathless, not from excitement, but from fear. To make things more complex, after I arrived one of the editors told me that of the manuscripts submitted, mine had tied for top and that my writing had a wonderful voice. How long have you been writing? Since when I wrote my first piece for Guideposts Magazine. When did you sell your first book? How do you handle rejections? They are fabulous opportunities which challenge me to improve my writing. Why do you write? To take the reader on an emotionally turbulent journey in which they discover that God has empowered them to succeed. In the pasture with my horses and mules or horseback riding What are you working on right now? Tell us about the book you have out right now. In Heavenly Horse Sense I corralled a collection of devotions of my true-life adventures from the 15 years I worked from the saddle in the Bob Marshall Wilderness of Montana. During those years I led groups of people on horseback and packed their gear on mules over narrow trails through the rugged Rocky Mountains and encountered everything from grizzly bears to forest fires. Venture in the wilderness with me where God reveals nuggets of wisdom, like how to have the courage to face the challenges and dangers of everyday life "nuggets of wisdom you can apply in your own life. I invite you to saddle up and ride with me, through the pages of my books, for an adventure of a lifetime. Do you have any advice for other writers? I used to make writing so complex that it resembled inventing an atomic bomb. How important is faith in your books? What themes do you like to write about? Ones that reveal how incredible God is. What is your writing schedule like? My favorite schedule is to get up about 3:
