

Chapter 1 : Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in Dallas | The Benton Law Firm

Even the most dangerous cities in America can have relatively safe neighborhoods, as there is more variation in crime within most cities than between cities. But using exclusive data developed by NeighborhoodScout, and based on FBI data from all local law enforcement agencies in America, we here.

The 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in Dallas, TX by Share Dallas, TX has one of the highest violent crime rates in the nation, as well as the largest share of residents living in poverty than any other city in Texas. Unfortunately, the combination of crime and poverty can easily create dangerous situations. When it comes to Dallas, this danger is much more prevalent in certain neighborhoods than it is in other parts of the large city. Here is a quick look at the 10 most dangerous neighborhoods or TAAGs in Dallas based primarily on crime, drug, and poverty statistics. In addition to crime, Five Points is home to an especially dangerous intersection where Route and Scyene Rd. Five Points is considered to be so dangerous that the police department has created a new task force to increase the number of officers patrolling the area. The task force will also concentrate on three other Dallas neighborhoods. According to a year resident of the neighborhood, the area has long been a magnet for robberies and street drug sales. From March to March , the neighborhood saw 5 percent increase in property crime, including residential burglaries, which surged by 11 percent. Additionally, violent crime, such as the armed robberies of pedestrians, has increased by 27 percent , leaving many residents afraid to walk the streets regardless of whether it is the middle of the day or the middle of the night. Although crime is a significant problem in most parts of the city, a lack of clean water is the most dangerous aspect of living here. Unfortunately, their limited income makes it almost impossible for residents to afford bottled water. Fair Park In a neighborhood where tension and unemployment rates run high, a new problem has made things even worse. Packs of stray dogs have flocked to this area, making a simple walk down the street extremely dangerous. The neighborhood is also home to failing schools. West Oak Cliff Well-known among Dallas residents for being a high crime area, West Oak Cliff gained national notoriety in October when there were three police-involved shootings in the area within a three-week period. Despite this, the neighborhood has experienced a 14 increase in crime over the last year. This is largely due to the incredibly congested roads and intersections. In just a single year, six people were killed while walking along the roadway. Additionally, the area is prone to flooding, potentially leaving residents stranded in their homes or on the road when trying to evacuate. Oak Cliff From January to October , at least 20 people were murdered in Oak Cliff, a neighborhood with just 20, residents. Sadly, 70 percent of children under 5 years old in the area live in poverty. There is a known link between poverty and violence that is prone to leaving people desensitized to it, which means that this area could become even more dangerous over the next few years. Dixon Circle In recent years, Dixon Circle has developed a reputation for being a good place to find drugs, as well as an area where people illegally dump their garbage after dodging the countless pot holes in the road. Additionally, Dixon Circle is home to numerous gang members. In , it was reported that there were at least members of the Dixon Circle Crips, a notoriously violent gang. According to a longtime resident , the area is a magnet for street drug sales, robberies, and violence. In just a three month period, the Ross Bennett neighborhood experienced a 20 percent increase in crime, making it an increasingly dangerous area of Dallas. Written by Housely I craft the best articles on home renovation, real estate sales, and home decorating ideas found on the Internet. You must log in to post a comment.

Chapter 2 : 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in the World

Chicago Murder Rate By Neighborhood. My first pass at providing a crude indicator of "safe" or "dangerous" neighborhoods is to look at the number of murders per , residents in each of.

Here Neighborhood leaders in these communities take understandable pride in their areas. That said, most were optimistic that their advocacy for change and a shifting attitude at City Hall was paying off in improvements in the community. Just this Tuesday, police arrested two suspects in connection with a year-old man who was fatally stabbed downtown the week before. She used to be data analyst and research assistant for Portland State University. But the raw numbers generally parallel per capita crime rates. Hazelwood, with over 23, residents covering 2, acres, is one of the largest neighborhoods in Portland. The neighborhood has about 2. Compare that to tiny Eliot Neighborhood in North Portland, number 15 on the list with its 3, people in acres, which has a part-one rate of 1. Crime trends in the metro area have been moving east for a decade. Pete Simpson of the Portland police. The list is made up of data from to and includes crash rates, injuries, fatalities and property damage. Both ODOT and the city use the list to prioritize spending on safety and improvement projects. Of the three factors that threaten residents in the areas east of 82nd Tim Curran wants traffic addressed most. Curran is the publisher of the Mid-county Memo , a community newspaper and website site that covers much of east Portland. Curran grew up in the Alameda Neighborhood and has been an east Portland resident since He said since Portland annexed the area in the s there have been few road improvements. People drive fast and then get into a congested area and you get hit. Repaving has happened on nd Avenue, improvements have been made to outer Southeast Powell Boulevard and new sidewalks have been installed on Northeast Glisan Street. Curran recently wrote about 18 newly installed crosswalk beacons. The parks bureau unveiled a plan for the area in , pledged to build 20 acres of new park space and recently refurbished 12 existing ones. The city has unveiled a raft of new road improvement projects from a Foster Streetscape Plan to transit improvements plans for Southeast Powell Boulevard. Even new middle-class homebuyers are starting to trickle into neighborhoods like Lents, Gateway and Parkrose. Robinson, a retiree, has been involved with her neighborhood for almost 20 years.

Chapter 3 : Dangerous neighborhoods - Atlanta Forum - TripAdvisor

Of Chicago's 76 neighborhoods, the most dangerous neighborhoods include: Chatham. Chatham is located between 79th and 93rd street along route 90/ Homes in this neighborhood cost less than $, on average and the area has a 14% unemployment rate. With a population of 32,, it has the 19th worst crime index of all Chicago neighborhoods.

Email Copy Link Copied Active shooter at large. This is the white noise of violence and death counts, the hum of day-to-day life in America. There have been mass shootings in the U. According to CNN, while the level of crime has remained below the peak reached in the s, the U. At the same time, since Jan. And the same holds true in the neighborhoods of Baltimore, St. Louis, and Detroit, where violent crime spiked in Here are 10 of the most dangerous neighborhoods in America. Nevertheless, with growth and an influx of people come unpleasant side effects. West Center City via newsweek. According to the FBI, the city of 71, has averaged shooting victims a year for the past decade. As of December , there have been shootings. West Center City, which stretches from Adams to Tatnall streets, is the most dangerous neighborhood in Wilmington. The small, rural town on the forks of the Kentucky River is blighted by poverty and addiction. According to residents, the place is being left behind, abandoned by the once booming coal business. Whitman Park via camdenchronicles. The city has a violent past, and its future looks no different. Dope City in the north, Crack City in the south. A lack of jobs, an overtaxed court system, and failing schools have created a dangerous hotbed of crime and violence. Ottenberg, the former Camden County prosecutor, put it, "in Camden, the drug economy is the economy. Meanwhile, in , Forbes listed Memphis as one of the top 15 places in the U. Burglary and property crime, on the other hand, have gone down. Chances of becoming a victim are one in According to City Councilwoman Wanda Adams, who represents both neighborhoods, community leaders are working every day to make improvements in the area. Cars were overturned, and stores looted. Violence and crime skyrocketed in Baltimore in , and while the anti-cop sentiment following the death of Freddy Gray is partly responsible, it is only part of the problem.

Chapter 4 : The 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in Chicago

As with many other violent neighborhoods, local police forces are corrupt, undersized, and underequipped. This has left the community virtually defenseless against the criminals that stalk the streets. 5. Spanish Town, Jamaica. Image Source. Statistically, Spanish Town is the most violent place in Jamaica.

The 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in Chicago by Share When you think of the neighborhoods in and around Chicago , numerous stereotypes come to mind. There are preppy areas, hipster neighborhoods, college town areas, but also areas that are known for crimes and poverty. Overall, the Chicago land region regularly ranks as one of the best locations in which to live in the United States as a result of world-class culture, a strong economy, excellent academic institutions, walkability, and many famous fine-dining locations. However, there can be a darker side to Chicago that many hopefully never experience. There are some neighborhoods that are tucked away from the main touristy areas of Chicago that most outside visitors do not get to experience. These are the tougher neighborhoods. While they are unfortunately riddled with crime, many say these neighborhoods are the backbone of Chicago and the reason that the city is what it is today. With a population of 32,, it has the 19th worst crime index of all Chicago neighborhoods. This combined with low housing costs, dense population, high unemployment and low median income break Chatham into the top Grand Crossing Located between E. With a population of 32, over a wide area, Grand Crossing did not rank higher due to the lower density of the neighborhood. In West Garfield Park, you have a 1-in chance of being a crime victim for each year spent within the neighborhood limits. The population is 19, and the crime index is 18th worst in the city. Chicago Lawn As the eighth most dangerous neighborhood, Chicago Lawn has a high population of 54, that is crammed into a relatively small space. Although this is double the national average, it is still considered excellent for a south side Chicago neighborhood. Gage Park Located between 51st and 59th streets is Gage Park. The crime index is the 13th worst in the city. Fuller Park With a low density of 2, residents but a crime index of the second worst in Chicago, Fuller Park comes in at number five on this list. Garfield with no exits to this small area. Auburn Gresham As the 11th worst crime index in Chicago, like most other dangerous neighborhoods, Auburn Gresham is also on the south side. With 49, residents densely packed into a small area between 75th and 91st streets, crime is not as bad as others on this list but it is still a rough area. Riverdale Located halfway between downtown and Chicago Heights along interstate 94 at East th Street, Riverdale did not top the list solely because of its low density population of 7, residents. The entire population of Riverdale lives below the poverty line as one-in-five residents does not have a job. Englewood The slightly smaller and even poorer twin of West Englewood is Englewood. In addition to a low median income, high population and terrible crime index, many residents of the neighborhood struggle to make ends meet. The borders of the neighborhood are W.

Chapter 5 : Top 25 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in America - NeighborhoodScout

The 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods In America, If your scared go to Church, if you're in the hood, turn on the TV. Cause whether you're tuned into the high speed chase going on down the street.

Scyene For pedestrians, the most dangerous areas are based on number and severity of accidents. What Do These Lists Mean? This information tells you which areas in Dallas are the most dangerous for criminal activity and accidents. While many of these are safe for daily travel, you may want to avoid traveling here at night. Some areas of revitalization may make any of these safer in the near future. Those who are active in the community have a better understanding of crime rates and safety. Protecting Yourself in Dallas There may be times when traveling in dangerous areas is accidental or unavoidable. Keep yourself safe around the city by: Holding your cellphone or keeping it nearby. There are also apps that work well for traveling in unsafe areas. Pay attention to everything going on around you. Maintain awareness of your surroundings, and avoid traveling low-traffic, dark, or secluded places. Go with a group. Groups of three or more will always provide a higher level of protection than walking alone. Always provide someone with your ETA. Avoid talking or reading on your cellphone while walking. Being distracted could prevent you from noticing dangerous situations with individuals or cars. Keep your phone within reach, but try not to get distracted while you walk. Consider carrying tools, like mace or a Taser, and enrolling in local self-defense classes. We can help you secure the compensation and justice you deserve after a negligent or purposeful accident.

Chapter 6 : GoLocalPDX | Portland's Most Dangerous Neighborhoods

This neighborhood holds the unfortunate distinction of being ranked NeighborhoodScout's most dangerous, based on its platform's algorithms. It has more single-mother households than % of.

Find a top School of Social Work, Degree, or Online Program 10 Most Dangerous Neighborhoods in the World Image Source Being a social worker is a demanding profession, but there are some places in the world where it just seems impossible – not to mention life threatening. Neighborhoods with problems like gangs, drugs, religious conflicts and a lack of opportunities can trap inhabitants in a vicious cycle of poverty and violence. Dora, Baghdad, Iraq Image Source Dora, Baghdad has gone from being a hive of terrorism to the scene of intense sectarian violence. Following the coalition invasion, the district became a home base for Al-Qaeda and was the site of pitched battles between American soldiers and insurgents. And in recent years, a clash of religions has fueled further conflict. In , Sunni insurgents issued a fatwa, forcing all Christians to convert to Islam, leave the area, or risk being killed. Dozens were taken hostage and at least one person was shot. Christian pastors working in Dora have described daily violence and intimidation against their followers, including bullets being fired through their doors, warning letters, and kidnappings. One estimated that only six of his congregation of 1, remained. On October 31, , the district suffered a devastating attack. The attackers slaughtered 41 of its occupants and 12 policemen attempting to rescue hostages. Then, in November of the same year, a series of roadside bombs were set off in a Christian district, killing five people and injuring 20 more. Even in a war-ravaged state, Dora is definitely an area to avoid. Social problems have recently become even more pronounced, due to Mexican drug traffickers laying down stronger distribution channels. Facilities, including clean water sources, are lacking, and many live in shacks and temporary accommodation. Transnational groups, such as the Mara Salvatrucha MS gang, are also known to operate in the area. Even members of the police force are reluctant to enter the slum. On December 23, , the suburb came to the attention of the international media when 28 people were murdered and 28 wounded by MS in an attack on a coach. The gang intended the massacre as a protest against the reintroduction of the death penalty in Honduras. Clearly, they have no concept of irony. Armed robberies, kidnappings and homicides are a daily occurrence, thanks to poor policing, corruption and a plethora of illegal weapons. The Petare neighborhood is known as one of the most violent areas in the city. The shantytown started as a barracks for workers constructing a city highway. Soon, however, squatters established temporary settlements around the building that grew as more immigrants moved in. The area is now home to around two million people and suffers from widespread drug use, underdevelopment, a lack of facilities, and overcrowding. Many residents do not have clean water and proper shelter, and robberies are a daily occurrence. Louis, Illinois has the highest crime rate in America. The combination of this dangerous reputation and a lack of jobs and opportunities led to much of the population giving up hope and abandoning the area in the s. Today, only 27, inhabitants are left in the whole city whose population peaked at 82, in As you might expect, strip joints, truck stops and half-rural businesses are now clustered around some of the worst areas. No doubt influenced by their surroundings, the area had a thriving blues and jazz scene in the s, producing legends like Miles Davis and Ike and Tina Turner. Today, however, it seems East St. Louis social workers have their work cut out for them. The Iztapalapa district has some of the worst crime rates in the city and the highest rates of violence against women – with nearly rapes and 5, cases of domestic abuse reported in alone. Apart from domestic crimes, the area also suffers from gang-related problems, a murder rate of one every two days, drug trafficking, and not enough water. As with many other violent neighborhoods, local police forces are corrupt, undersized, and underequipped. This has left the community virtually defenseless against the criminals that stalk the streets. By the middle of , more than murders had already been recorded in this historic community and its surrounding areas. Most murders are gang-related, and because of the poverty in the area, crime is often the only way that young men can make a living. Illegal guns are widespread throughout the community, even amongst children as young as 11 years old. Shockingly, they have been known to decapitate rival gang members and post pictures of the bloody remains online. Since most of the inhabitants are too poor to afford their own houses, many construct their own, using whatever materials are at hand. Most homes are illegal and have no facilities whatsoever, and it is difficult for inhabitants to even find transport to a paying job. Assault is the leading cause of death for individuals between 15 and 24. Citizens are also frequent recruitment targets for paramilitary and insurgent groups. The slum, a dense tangle of houses, was the site of a slaughterhouse in the 19th century and later grew into a home for farm workers and squatters. This policy has backfired, however, and the run-down shantytown has acquired a reputation for crime and violence. Moreover, Puerto Rican police claim that around half of the homicides in the country are the result of drug-related turf wars. At any one time, there are believed to be around 100 criminal gangs operating in the Cape Flats, and the average murder rate is a staggering 1.5 per 100,000. The township of Nyanga is one of the most dangerous places in South Africa. From April to March 2008, criminals in the area were charged with 15 murders, 1,000 serious assaults, and nearly 2,000 drug-related offenses. Furthermore, almost every category of violent crime is on the increase. The high crime rate has been blamed on factors like alcohol abuse and high dropout rates. And these problems are exacerbated by unemployment. Subcouncil 14, to which Nyanga belongs, has an estimated unemployment rate of 70 percent. Indeed, it is considered one of the largest slums in the entire Western hemisphere. Poverty is extreme, and many residents are forced to steal in order to survive. The area is so poor that one local delicacy is the mud-cake, a biscuit made of clay and cooking-oil. The problems were intensified when many violent criminals broke out of jail during the earthquake. And, protected by their relationships with corrupt authorities, gangs of drug dealers controlled much of the city for years. Many of the criminals carried heavy weapons and were capable of battling the police head-to-head. However, there have been some changes in administration since 2000. The area has been associated with the drug trade since the 1980s and, prior to 2000, was often the scene of dangerous running battles between police and gangs. Two years ago, in an attempt to pacify the area before the upcoming FIFA World Cup, the police and military raided the district. Officers were often forced to use heavy weapons, armored cars and even battle tanks to make any headway against the wrongdoers. It was the first time an officer had been killed in a favela that was under police control. Police also had grenades thrown at them, and to fight back, they deployed another officers, raising the total number of cops in the community to a staggering 1,000.

Chapter 7 : 50 Most Dangerous Areas in Los Angeles California | Criminal Statistics

Looking at the list of the most dangerous neighborhoods, Brooklyn has the highest count with 8, the Bronx comes in second with 7, Manhattan follows with 5, and Queens has zero of the top 20 most dangerous neighborhoods in NYC.

It might be due to the abundance of historic buildings in the area, even though living here you risk a one in fourteen chance at being a victim of a violent crime. Low rental rates and low housing attracts a higher rate of criminals, and puts the crime rate here at 73 out of every 1,000 people. Crime rates in this neighborhood are 76 to every 1,000 people. Chances of being a victim are also one in thirteen. Chances of becoming a victim of a violent crime here are one in twelve. The crime rate in this particular neighborhood is 76 to every 1,000 people. Those odds are best avoided. Over half the families living here live below the poverty line, and the chances of being a victim are one in twelve. Louis has seen an extravagant rise in assaults. They have more than quadrupled in the last year. The majority of residents in this neighborhood happen to be college aged, which happens to be the same age group of those who would commit violent crimes. With many of the residents still feeling the effects of Hurricane Katrina, poverty is rampant throughout the city. The local government has declared bankruptcy, which puts the local economy in limbo. On top of that, auto theft has been on the rise. This urban neighborhood also has a crime rate of almost 85 victims out of every 1,000 people. Or to use one for a meeting house for illegal activities like drug deals or gambling. A higher rate in single mothers usually indicates higher rates of poverty and crime, which are both pretty high in this particular area as well. What makes this entry so unique is that the neighborhood is right next to a hospital and almost stretches to the other side of the river. Strangely enough, this area has a higher percentage of people employed in the military, and also single mothers, and violent crime ratings are rampant. Even though the real estate prices are higher, they tend to be for small apartments and one-bedroom houses, making home ownership less probable and all the more likely that future residents will end up with renters as neighbors. Renters mean higher turn over rates, which means never being quite sure of who exactly is next door. Louis makes up a huge portion of East St. Louis to begin with. The chance of becoming a victim of a crime here is one in ten, or one out of 10, residents.

Chapter 8 : 10 Of The Most Dangerous Neighborhoods In America | TheRichest

Chicago's Most Dangerous Neighborhoods For buyers, knowing what areas to avoid is just as important as knowing which ones to consider. So to reveal the city's riskiest spots, we ranked Chicago's neighborhoods according to theft per household and street crime per resident.

Chapter 9 : NYC's Safest & Most Dangerous Neighborhoods - AddressReport Blog

In the most dangerous neighborhood in America, you have a one-in-seven chance of being the victim of a violent crime every year. Same goes for the second-most dangerous. You'll fare slightly.