

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

Chapter 1 : Ontario GenWeb Project: Books

Deposits from Niagara North Registry Office #30, St. Catharines, Ontario. [Shirley Kanen-Smith] -- This publication resulted from the APOLROD land records inventory in Ontario; the Niagara office includes materials from the former counties of Lincoln and Welland.

It lies in Southern Ontario, 51 kilometres 32 mi south of Toronto across Lake Ontario, and is 19 kilometres 12 mi inland from the international boundary with the United States along the Niagara River. It is the northern entrance of the Welland Canal. Catharines are known as St. Catharines carries the official nickname "The Garden City" due to its 1, acres 4 km² of parks, gardens and trails. General Motors of Canada, Ltd. TRW Automotive operates a plant in the city, though in recent years employment there has shifted from heavy industry and manufacturing to services. Catharines lies on one of the main telecommunications backbones between Canada and the United States, and as a result a number of call centres operate in the city. The city was first settled by Loyalists in the s. The Crown granted them land in compensation for their services and for losses in the United States. Although never documented, some local St. Secondary to water routes, native trails provided transportation networks, resulting in the present-day radial road pattern from the City centre. The surrounding land was surveyed and Townships created between and He did this from his mill, built on the 12 Mile Creek in Power Glen. After his death in , his holdings were forfeited to merchant Robert Hamilton of Queenston. Among other ventures, Hamilton became land wealthy, expropriating lands from subsistence Loyalist settlers who were incapable of settling their debts. Hamilton lacked interest in social development and sold his business to Jesse Thompson before the turn of the 18th century. At an unknown early date, an inn was built by Thomas Adams on the east side of what is now Ontario Street. It became a community meeting place, election centre, stagecoach stop, and mail delivery deposit. This was preceded by the church and a log school house completed before , all located on the east bank of the 12 Mile Creek at the extreme west end of the what was known at that time as Main Street. This was an extension of the old Iroquois Trail and was renamed St. Paul Street by the settlers and descendant by the midth century. Several mills, salt works, numerous retail outlets, a ship building yard, distillery and various other businesses were developed next. The first Welland Canal was constructed from to behind what is now known as St. William Hamilton Merritt worked to promote the ambitious venture, both by raising funds and by enlisting government support. The canal established St. Catharines as the hub of commerce and industry for the Niagara Peninsula. Merritt also played a role in making St. Catharines a center of abolitionist activity. In , the British Methodist Episcopal Church, Salem Chapel was established at the corner of Geneva and North streets, on land granted to the congregation by Merritt in the early s. The area became known to refugee slaves from the United States as a place of "refuge and rest"; it was a destination, one of the final stops in Canada on the Underground Railroad for refugee African-American slaves. Catharines remains an important place in Black Canadian history. The Town of St. Catharines was incorporated in Catharines was incorporated as a city in The historical area of St. Catharines consisted of nothing more than what is now the downtown core, with the remaining land being part of Louth Township on the west and Grantham Township on the east. Catharines continued to steadily grow through the late 19th and early 20th centuries, eventually annexing land to the southwest that would become Western Hill and Old Glenridge, and to the east and north that would collectively become the central part of St. In addition to the growth of St. Catharines, the Town of Merritton and the Town of Port Dalhousie existed as separate municipalities to the South and North of the city, each slowly growing their own residential base. Along with the rest of Ontario, St. Catharines experienced explosive growth after World War II. Catharines continued to annex Grantham Township as development continued, including the large swaths of land to the north known now as "The North End". Catharines would also absorb Merritton and Port Dalhousie in , making them part of the city. During this time, St. Catharines nearly tripled in population. The few remaining portions of Grantham Township in the Northeast corner of the area, including Port Weller, were also transferred to the city. With the new Louth Township lands belonging to the city, St. These developments are nearing completion. There was also a push to continue further expansion to the west in the late s, but this has since been halted by Ontario Greenbelt legislation.

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE
#30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

Chapter 2 : Niagara North (NO. 30) and Niagara South (NO. 59) Land Registries Land Registry Office

Niagara North (NO. 30) and Niagara South (NO. 59) Land Registries St. Catharines, Ontario, property title search. See available Title Searchers.

Catharines was once at the base of a glacial lake known as Glacial Lake Iroquois , which deposited thick layers of clay between the Escarpment and Lake Ontario. Since the opening of the first Welland Canal in , the city has had four different canal systems, whether modified or newly constructed, carved into its geographical landscape. Other remnants of the original canals can still be seen in various locations throughout the city; many remains are hidden within forested areas designated as city parks. Some residents in the region are interested in restoring the original routing of the Welland Canal through the city. They intend that the restored waterway and locks would be open to a new tourist attraction within the city. The focal point of the park is a band shell and pavilion built in . The park is designated under the Ontario Heritage Act. Hosts yearly fireworks displays on 1 July Canada Day. Has picnic areas, a pavilion, snack bar, change rooms, washrooms, playground equipment, boardwalk, the Lakeside Park Carousel, and public docks for visiting boaters. The beach offers magnificent sunset views over Lake Ontario. It is home to hundreds of native and migratory birds and features an exotic collection of flowering rhododendrons. Among the displays is a beautiful memorial site dedicated to Kristen French. The park exists on land that once featured the Third Welland Canal. The former entrance to the canal can still be seen at the North-West end of the park. In the late 19th century, an English landscape designer named Samuel Richardson was hired by Merritt to tend the grounds. As a result, the arboretum is an extensive, rambling garden with rare conifers which benefit from an exceptional micro-climate. It boasts one of the largest Chinese Empress trees in Canada. Features wide open spaces, flowing fruit trees, rare birds, a soccer field and tennis courts. Also features a memorial to the original farm building on the north end of the park near Denis Morris Catholic High School. Locally known as Doug Hill Park, after a nearby resident who coached a number of baseball and tug of war teams in this area. Catharines Numerous efforts have been made to improve the downtown; the restructuring of manufacturing resulted in a loss of jobs and retail businesses. In the early 21st century, city, university and private developers undertook several initiatives to revive downtown, related to urban design, clustering activities to attract people to the area as a destination from day through evening events. In , city council approved converting one-way arteries through the city centre to allow for two-way traffic, to make it easier for people to make their way around the city to explore it. In terms of urban planning and use, two-way traffic improves circulation within the area. The city wanted to improve downtown as a destination, rather than a place to pass through. The council also want to have downtown St. Paul and King streets being converted. Walker School of Fine and Performing Arts. The university renovated the former Canada Hair Cloth Building to use for the school. This former industrial building is behind St. Paul Street and next to the municipal performing arts centre. Council voted to build a U-shaped facility, which will be home to the Niagara IceDogs, an Ontario Hockey League team, and be able to host other events, such as concerts. It would have room for 4, to 5, spectators. Paul Street and abutting Highway . It was built to Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design LEED standards and was certified for its environmentally friendly features, including a green roof , preferred carpool and hybrid vehicle parking, greywater collection, permeable interlocking brick pavement, and several bike racks for users. A mixed-use development, the structure was planned for retail space at street level on Carlisle Street, in order to promote activity and business on the street. Catharines is governed by a mayor and city council of twelve city councillors, with two councillors representing each of the six municipal wards in the city. A city councillor is also elected by the council as a whole to serve as deputy mayor, who only fills the role should the elected mayor not be available. Catharines City Council meets every Monday and is open to participation by the community. Matters put forward are voted on by members of city council; the mayor presides over council debate and serves very much like the speaker , and as a result only votes in the case of a tie. After , municipal elections will be in

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

November every four years rather than the previous three. Unlike most cities its size, city councillors only serve on a part-time basis and continue with their non-political careers in the community. Only the mayor is elected to a full-time position. Catharines City Hall is downtown on Church Street. Tim Rigby was the Mayor of St. Catharines from to ; Brian McMullan was elected to succeed Rigby on 13 November , and was sworn in on 4 December. He was re-elected in October Catharines [31] and assumed office in December Catharines uses a council-manager government , and as a result a chief administrative officer CAO is appointed by council to oversee the day-to-day operations of the city and its departments. The CAO, in effect, is the highest ranking municipal civil servant and has authority over the spending of municipal tax dollars. The CAO advises council on policy matters and acts as liaison between the administrative staff and elected officials. Some of the CAOs duties include assisting in the creation of the municipal budget, and ensuring that municipal funds are spent in a responsible manner. Catharines also elect six regional councillors to the Niagara Regional Council on an at-large basis. Unlike many other regional municipalities in Ontario, regional councillors do not sit on city council and instead only represent at the regional level. Regional councillors and school board trustees are elected at the same time, and on the same ballot, as the mayor and city councillors. There are just under 7, people per elected municipal representative in St. Catharines, while Oshawa a similar-sized city in Ontario has one representative per 13, people. London, Ontario has one representative per 30, people, and Toronto has one representative per 55, people. While there is growing support in the business community for such an arrangement, city council has been unreceptive to such ideas. Provincial[edit] Federal and provincial ridings representing St. Catharines prior to At the provincial level, St. Catharines is well known for electing high-profile members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. Jim Bradley , the member for St. Bradley recently celebrated 40 years in provincial politics. Peter Kormos , who represented the southern portions of the city as part of the Welland riding , was a prominent Member of Provincial Parliament in the Ontario New Democratic Party caucus and served previously as Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations in the Bob Rae government. Catharines was the only large city in Ontario to not have at least one government member representing the city, as the Progressive Conservative -held ridings of Lincoln and St. Catharinesâ€”Brock were eliminated as a cost-saving measure. Catharinesâ€”Brock ridings throughout the s, and s. Federal[edit] Federally, St. Catharines is one of the most bellwether of any riding in Canada, having only elected an opposition MP twice in its history. Chris Bittle is the current MP for St. Catharines have maintained a low profile on either the government or opposition backbenches. Legal[edit] St. A satellite court is in Grimsby. Wikimedia Commons has media related to St. Lake freighter John B. Aird traversing the Welland Canal, with the Garden City Skyway in the background The Garden City Tower is the Ministry of Transportation headquarters, with downtown transit terminal at ground level The most defining transportation icon of St. Catharines is the Welland Canal , a ship canal that runs Four of its locks are within city boundaries. The canal allows shipping vessels to traverse the The main access routes into and out of St. Catharines are served by two major freeways. Prior to the construction of these freeways, St. Paul Street former Highway 8 , now Regional Road 81 and Hartzel Road former Highway 58 , now a city-maintained street provided east-west and north-south access to the city. Public transportation is served by the St. Catharines Transit Commission , which operates bus routes throughout the city and neighbouring Thorold. All major routes converge at the St. Catharines Bus Terminal, which is downtown within the headquarters of the Ontario Ministry of Transportation. Though transportation by rail is becoming increasingly popular, the St. Catharines train station is largely underutilized, with car and bus travel being the dominant forms of transportation for the city. The station is in its original building, outside the downtown core because of issues involving the crossing of Mile Creek. Currently, regular GO Bus service exists to St. Catharines with a stop at Fairview Mall, allowing riders to travel either west toward Burlington or east toward Niagara Falls. A rail link with GO Transit operates during the summer months with plans for the city to be permanently linked via rail in the future. The closest airports in proximity offering long-haul and international flights are John C. Catharines had one of the first interurban electric streetcar routes, which ran between the city and Merritton and was eventually extended to Port Dalhousie in the north and Thorold to the south. Like most streetcar routes throughout the world, it was decommissioned in the s, and the right-of-way has since been converted to parks and trails. Education[edit] St. Catharines is home to Brock University established , a modern comprehensive university on the Niagara Escarpment.

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE
#30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

Chapter 3 : Niagara Falls | Services in St. Catharines | Kijiji Classifieds

Disclaimer. Every effort is made to ensure that the information in this database is accurate, up-to-date, and comprehensive. We and our partners cannot assume liability resulting from errors or omissions.

Catharines was once at the base of a glacial lake known as Glacial Lake Iroquois , which deposited thick layers of clay between the Escarpment and Lake Ontario. Since the opening of the first Welland Canal in , the city has had four different canal systems, whether modified or newly constructed, carved into its geographical landscape. Other remnants of the original canals can still be seen in various locations throughout the city; many remains are hidden within forested areas designated as city parks. Some residents in the region are interested in restoring the original routing of the Welland Canal through the city. They intend that the restored waterway and locks would be open to a new tourist attraction within the city. The focal point of the park is a band shell and pavilion built in . The park is designated under the Ontario Heritage Act. Hosts yearly fireworks displays on 1 July Canada Day. Has picnic areas, a pavilion, snack bar, change rooms, washrooms, playground equipment, boardwalk, the Lakeside Park Carousel, and public docks for visiting boaters. The beach offers magnificent sunset views over Lake Ontario. It is home to hundreds of native and migratory birds and features an exotic collection of flowering rhododendrons. Among the displays is a beautiful memorial site dedicated to Kristen French. The park exists on land that once featured the Third Welland Canal. The former entrance to the canal can still be seen at the North-West end of the park. In the late 19th century, an English landscape designer named Samuel Richardson was hired by Merritt to tend the grounds. As a result, the arboretum is an extensive, rambling garden with rare conifers which benefit from an exceptional micro-climate. It boasts one of the largest Chinese Empress trees in Canada. Features wide open spaces, flowing fruit trees, rare birds, a soccer field and tennis courts. Also features a memorial to the original farm building on the north end of the park near Denis Morris Catholic High School. Locally known as Doug Hill Park, after a nearby resident who coached a number of baseball and tug of war teams in this area. Downtown Numerous efforts have been made to improve the downtown; the restructuring of manufacturing resulted in a loss of jobs and retail businesses. In the early 21st century, city, university and private developers undertook several initiatives to revive downtown, related to urban design, clustering activities to attract people to the area as a destination from day through evening events. In , city council approved converting one-way arteries through the city centre to allow for two-way traffic, to make it easier for people to make their way around the city to explore it. In terms of urban planning and use, two-way traffic improves circulation within the area. The city wanted to improve downtown as a destination, rather than a place to pass through. The council also want to have downtown St. Paul and King streets being converted. Walker School of Fine and Performing Arts. The university renovated the former Canada Hair Cloth Building to use for the school. This former industrial building is behind St. Paul Street and next to the municipal performing arts centre. Council voted to build a U-shaped facility, which will be home to the Niagara IceDogs, an Ontario Hockey League team, and be able to host other events, such as concerts. It would have room for 4, to 5, spectators. Paul Street and abutting Highway . It was built to Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design LEED standards and was certified for its environmentally friendly features, including a green roof , preferred carpool and hybrid vehicle parking, greywater collection, permeable interlocking brick pavement, and several bike racks for users. A mixed-use development, the structure was planned for retail space at street level on Carlisle Street, in order to promote activity and business on the street. Catharines is governed by a mayor and city council of twelve city councillors, with two councillors representing each of the six municipal wards in the city. A city councillor is also elected by the council as a whole to serve as deputy mayor, who only fills the role should the elected mayor not be available. Catharines City Council meets every Monday and is open to participation by the community. Matters put forward are voted on by members of city council; the mayor presides over council debate and serves very much like the speaker , and as a result only votes in the case of a tie. After , municipal elections will be in

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

November every four years rather than the previous three. Unlike most cities its size, city councillors only serve on a part-time basis and continue with their non-political careers in the community. Only the mayor is elected to a full-time position. Catharines City Hall is downtown on Church Street. Tim Rigby was the Mayor of St. Catharines from to ; Brian McMullan was elected to succeed Rigby on 13 November , and was sworn in on 4 December. He was re-elected in October Catharines [31] and assumed office in December Catharines uses a council-manager government , and as a result a chief administrative officer CAO is appointed by council to oversee the day-to-day operations of the city and its departments. The CAO, in effect, is the highest ranking municipal civil servant and has authority over the spending of municipal tax dollars. The CAO advises council on policy matters and acts as liaison between the administrative staff and elected officials. Some of the CAOs duties include assisting in the creation of the municipal budget, and ensuring that municipal funds are spent in a responsible manner. Catharines also elect six regional councillors to the Niagara Regional Council on an at-large basis. Unlike many other regional municipalities in Ontario, regional councillors do not sit on city council and instead only represent at the regional level. Regional councillors and school board trustees are elected at the same time, and on the same ballot, as the mayor and city councillors. There are just under 7, people per elected municipal representative in St. Catharines, while Oshawa a similar-sized city in Ontario has one representative per 13, people. London, Ontario has one representative per 30, people, and Toronto has one representative per 55, people. While there is growing support in the business community for such an arrangement, city council has been unreceptive to such ideas. Provincial Federal and provincial ridings representing St. Catharines prior to At the provincial level, St. Catharines is well known for electing high-profile members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. Jim Bradley , the member for St. Bradley recently celebrated 40 years in provincial politics. Peter Kormos , who represented the southern portions of the city as part of the Welland riding , was a prominent Member of Provincial Parliament in the Ontario New Democratic Party caucus and served previously as Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations in the Bob Rae government. Catharines was the only large city in Ontario to not have at least one government member representing the city, as the Progressive Conservative -held ridings of Lincoln and St. Catharinesâ€”Brock were eliminated as a cost-saving measure. Catharinesâ€”Brock ridings throughout the s, and s. Catharines is one of the most bellwether of any riding in Canada, having only elected an opposition MP twice in its history. Chris Bittle is the current MP for St. Catharines have maintained a low profile on either the government or opposition backbenches. A satellite court is in Grimsby. Transportation Wikimedia Commons has media related to St. Lake freighter John B. Aird traversing the Welland Canal, with the Garden City Skyway in the background The Garden City Tower is the Ministry of Transportation headquarters, with downtown transit terminal at ground level The most defining transportation icon of St. Catharines is the Welland Canal , a ship canal that runs Four of its locks are within city boundaries. The canal allows shipping vessels to traverse the The main access routes into and out of St. Catharines are served by two major freeways. Prior to the construction of these freeways, St. Paul Street former Highway 8 , now Regional Road 81 and Hartzel Road former Highway 58 , now a city-maintained street provided east-west and north-south access to the city. Public transportation is served by the St. Catharines Transit Commission , which operates bus routes throughout the city and neighbouring Thorold. All major routes converge at the St. Catharines Bus Terminal, which is downtown within the headquarters of the Ontario Ministry of Transportation. Though transportation by rail is becoming increasingly popular, the St. Catharines train station is largely underutilized, with car and bus travel being the dominant forms of transportation for the city. The station is in its original building, outside the downtown core because of issues involving the crossing of Mile Creek. Currently, regular GO Bus service exists to St. Catharines with a stop at Fairview Mall, allowing riders to travel either west toward Burlington or east toward Niagara Falls. A rail link with GO Transit operates during the summer months with plans for the city to be permanently linked via rail in the future. The closest airports in proximity offering long-haul and international flights are John C. Catharines had one of the first interurban electric streetcar routes, which ran between the city and Merritton and was eventually extended to Port Dalhousie in the north and Thorold to the south. Like most streetcar routes throughout the world, it was decommissioned in the s, and the right-of-way has since been converted to parks and trails. Catharines is home to Brock University established , a modern comprehensive university on the Niagara Escarpment. A partnership between the university and the Ontario Grape and Wine Industry established the city as a centre for cool-climate grape and wine research. DeGroot School of Medicine opened a satellite campus in St. Catharines in September

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE
#30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

Chapter 4 : Shirley Kanen-Smith | Open Library

Deposits from Niagara North Registry Office #30, St. Catharines, Ontario by Shirley Kanen-Smith (Book) in English and held by 10 WorldCat member libraries worldwide.

I would love to help guide you or someone you know through the difficult course that nursing is. If you find yourself struggling on an assignment or skill, having difficulty studying, or would just like some guidance on what to expect from this career, please contact me. I am happy to help you with your We are a new delivery company, located in the heart of Niagara Falls Ontario. Our rates are extremely competitive. Yesterday Niagara Falls homecare Currently I have spaces available I am a mom of 1 and I run childcare from my home. I have years of experience with children of all ages and extensive experience with children on the autism spectrum. I am first aid and CPR certified, I am also a psw. In my home your child will be given the support, individual attention and structure that all children need to succeed. I provide healthy meals and snacks as well as plenty of outside play. Sensory activities and crafts are also included in If time permits, you can even have a change of clothing, how about changing into some P. If you bring in non The core professional services that we offer include: Other Services are available, so please inquire if you have any other requests. We offer flexible pricing to accommodate each individual customer and their I am currently a third year student at Niagara Parks School of Horticulture, and I would love to help you clean up your garden space before the winter hits. I can help rake up leaves, cut back perennials, or even put away patio furniture- anything your garden needs! I can work alone, or bring along another student. I have all the tools I need, you would just need to provide the paper bags. I am excited for you to contact me for some We have 15years experience. Need to fix the leaking. We can help With our professional Team with affordable price. We will Provide you the best value package and lowest affordable price. We will match any quote and lower. Call or text , email info journeytransports. All rates are inclusive of: I am a professional cleaner serving the Niagara Falls area and its surroundings. My service includes mopping, vacuuming, cleaning kitchen, bathrooms, Only needed Mon-Fri with heavy snow fall. Must be available early morning before 7: If you are interested please contact Brittany either by email brit. Ideal for Massage Therapists, counselling, reflexology and Reiki. Looking to supplement my income and help your business grow by delivering time sensitive parcels to your clients. We have dozens of popular look a like TV characters along with face painting, balloon twisting, magic shows, inflatables and kids dance parties with bubble machine and laser light! We have been a registered and insured Ontario business since ! We entertain at private birthday parties, Store openings, Christmas staff parties, Schools, Daycares, just about anywhere! Check us out at www.

Chapter 5 : WILLS Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario â€œ For Sale $, â€œ RE/MAX Niagara Realty Ltd.

Books by Shirley Kanen-Smith, Deposits from Niagara South Registry Office #59, Welland, Ontario, Deposits from Niagara North Registry Office #30, St. Catharines, Ontario, General register from Niagara South Registry Office #59, Welland, Ontario.

Chapter 6 : Contact Us - Niagara North Family Health Team

regulation to combine the registry divisions of Niagara North (No. 30) and Niagara South (No. 59) to create a new registry division of Niagara (No. 30), which will be located in St. Catharines.

Chapter 7 : St. Catharines - Niagara North Family Health Team

8 Church Street (2nd Floor) P.O. Box St Catharines, Ontario L2R 7A7 () Corner of Church and William Wheelchair

DOWNLOAD PDF DEPOSITS FROM NIAGARA NORTH REGISTRY OFFICE #30, ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO

Accessible Nous fournissons les services en français limités.

Chapter 8 : Ontario Land Registry Offices - 59 Church St, St. Catharines, ON | calendrierdelascience.com available at the Niagara North Registry Office in St. Catharines on film. NB (i) There are separate books for Niagara Town and Niagara Township Ontario History.

Chapter 9 : St. Catharines - Wikipedia

Electronic Land Registration Coming Soon to Niagara North and South Effective July 7, , electronic land registration is being introduced on an optional basis in Niagara North and Niagara South.