No related photos found. You will seldom see a top dive site list that does not have one or two dive sites in the Caymans. Everyone who has dived the Caymans will have their own favorites. Here are some of the dive sites that get the most acclaim: It is not one dive site but about two dozen. The best sites are along Bloody Bay Wall. This wall starts at a reef that is just 20 to 25 feet deep. Once over the edge the wall drops to over 1, feet. It is considered the most visually spectacular wall in the Caribbean. The wall is home to very colorful sponges and healthy corals and all the marine life such a set up will attract. The site routinely has foot visibility. These two shore dive sites offer similar profiles. Eden Rock has small caverns, tunnels and swim-throughs. This reef is reached from a pier at the Sunset House Resort. The reef is at 30 feet and slopes to about 50 feet. There are many canyons in the reef. A 9 foot tall bronze mermaid statue stands at the base of the reef, providing a unique photo opportunity. A short swim away from the reef is the LCM Nicholson at 60 feet in the sand. Kittiwake is a foot-long It was sunk as an artificial reef in Babylon North Wall Grand Cayman. Wall diving is outstanding in Grand Cayman and this site is said to be the best of the best. More frequently dived by the liveaboards because of its distance from the dive centers. The Cayman Islands is a destination that is equally great by resort based dive boats and Cayman liveaboards. However, if you wish to dive around all three islands it is best to do by a liveaboard. A few dive resorts on Grand Cayman Island do make day trips to the other islands but generally you will fly there and dive from local resorts. Of course you will lose a day of diving so that you can fly. Best time to dive in Cayman Islands The diving is great year round in the Caribbean , something that is promoted with the dive program. However, the Cayman Islands can be impacted by hurricanes primarily between June and November. If a hurricane impacts your vacation, you can return to the resort for free within 18 month for the days that were impacted. Many of the dive sites are ideal for Open Water diver training. Scuba Diving conditions Most of the dive sites have foot visibility year round. Many of the sites that are along the deep walls have visibility of over feet. If sea conditions become rough, a drive to the other side of the island will likely find calm conditions. Snorkelling in Cayman Islands Stingray city is one of the best snorkeling sites in the world. Many of the dive sites in the Cayman Islands start at a shallow depth which makes them great for snorkeling as well. Fishes and Coral All of the dive sites will show you hundreds of different species of reef fish. Turtles are also commonly found while Scuba diving. The North Wall area is best known for large pelagic. Diving Safety If you are planning an upcoming dive trip or travelling to Cayman Islands, it is a really good idea to invest in travel insurance for scuba diving, because you never know what could happen and when you might need it because accidents do happen! I recommend this diving insurance as they offer worldwide coverage and focus on providing scuba divers a quality insurance and medical assistance service. The Cayman Islands was one of the original destinations for scuba diving. It was known for its outstanding marine life and diving conditions. The local dive operators and government have worked hard to keep that reputation alive. Diving in the Caymans was once the best destination in the world, Many, rightly so, still believe it still is. Travel Guide Now that you know all about the underwater world, you might want to start planning your scuba holiday!
