

Chapter 1 : Easiest way to learn and use Tenses- English Grammar Lesson | Pep Talk India

Learning English tenses can seem difficult at first, but all you need to do is remember a few sentence structures, and learn a few simple rules. Start by breaking the information down into easier-to-understand chunks.

It takes time to understand and put to use the rules of English grammar. But, there are ways to remember the grammar to help you speak correctly. Try to speak English the way you write it. Spoken English is pretty relaxed and you can get away with grammatical errors most of the time, but it pays to speak correctly. Hence, the golden rule would be to talk just the way you would write it. Tense Start with working on the tense. Tense dictates the verb. It defines the timeline of action. You have to memorise the verb forms. Truth is we do not use all the tenses in spoken English. Interact with good English speakers to get the hang of which of the tenses are actually used. When the subject is doing the action you use these pronouns. I spoke to her. Me, him, her, them and us are object pronouns. These pronouns do not do an action. They simply receive an action. Give it to me. Never start a sentence with me. Raj, Sanvi and I went to a movie. Voice Active voice is simple to frame and speak. Active voice has a subject as the doer of the action. Remember that whenever you change a sentence from active to passive voice, the subject and the object swap. And if that involves the pronouns, they will swap to their relative object or subject pronoun form. The movie was gone to by Raj, Sanvi and me. The movie was watched by Raj, Sanvi and me. Prepositions Preposition brings out the relationship of an object to its surroundings. Preposition is always followed by the object of the sentence. So first the P and then the O. Strictly speaking, you should never end a sentence in preposition. But spoken English is very forgiving in that regard. Few other miscellaneous tips Questions tags are always opposite in sense to the question. If the question is positive, the tag will be negative. What does he do? What do they do? The machine does the drying by spinning. The machines do the drying by spinning. These tips are just guidelines and not mathematical formulae where substituting one verb with another gives a new sentence. These rules are purely for understanding. Listening to native English is one of the proven ways to improve your grammar and spoken English. Read more articles on how to improve English speaking.
