

Chapter 1 : Prairie Center Against Sexual Assault :: About Us

TAXES The tax structure of Sangamon county, as of all counties of Illinois, is governed by article IX (revenue) of the constitution of Illinois, written in, and by applicable statutes.

We have a long history of providing excellent services to a variety of different clients. We list below some of our most recent projects and their accompanying reports. Four separate survey instruments were sent to members of specific populations involved in corrections in Illinois: Respondents included corrections officers, 40 parole agents, 80 judges, and probation officers and managers. Questions were developed by the Survey Research Office with input from Commission members. Sangamon County Citizen Survey Sponsors: The first survey, conducted in , provided local leaders, community organizations, and citizens with insight into issues facing local residents. The inaugural survey consists of over one hundred questions across nine topical areas, including: The second iteration of the survey, conducted in , expanded to examine issues surrounding education in the county. The third iteration, conducted in , focuses on economic and infrastructure questions facing the county. A total of respondents participated in the survey via mail; 59 via web. In addition to its focus on economy and infrastructure, the current survey contains questions on the state budget impasse, the future of the Illinois State Fairgrounds, and other issues of the day. Each survey is conducted using probability sampling and is weighted to match estimates provided by the US Census Bureau. The study examines the economic perceptions, expectations, and evaluations of Sangamon County employers. The fall survey shows that expectations for the economy of Sangamon County have changed little since the fall of , with about a third of respondents in each year expecting things to improve over the next 12 months. Two-thirds of respondents expect inflation and interest rates to rise, about the same as a year ago. Fifty-eight percent identify state government finances as one of the biggest challenges facing them in the next 12 months. The Sangamon County Economic Outlook Survey has been conducted biannually spring and fall since . The results for fall are from local organizations that were contacted in October via mail surveys and email invitations using Qualtrics Research Suite, a platform for online surveys. Illinois Tobacco Quitline Evaluation Sponsor: This survey is made possible through funds provided by the Illinois Department of Public Health and works ensure that participants calling the Quitline are receiving quality services. The survey allows Quitline users to provide feedback on the various components of their experience. Quitline users provide feedback throughout the survey which is used to improve services to users. Opinions are solicited for a number of topics: The survey was historically conducted via mail but moved to a mixed-mode design in , and a panel-based design in . Containing questions pertaining to various aspects of traffic safety, the project seeks to inform IDOT of the effectiveness of its media campaigns surrounding the Memorial Day and Labor Day holidays. While the transgender rights movement is often conflated with the lesbian and gay rights movement, transgender individuals face unique challenges that require a different policy response in many circumstances. Unfortunately, not much public opinion data exists gauging levels of support for transgender-supportive policies. In addition, very little is known on how much individuals know about issues surrounding transgender persons including awareness of specific terms and policies. This survey begins to fill in this knowledge gap by establishing baseline measures of questions dealing with knowledge, awareness, and support for specific policies. In July , The New York Times and CBS News announced that as part of their routine telephone polling, they will begin including online panels in their election polling results. This change in methodology from relying almost exclusively on telephone surveys in which participants are randomly chosen from a specific population to including surveys of online recruited samples not randomly selected marks a significant change in polling. In an effort to test the effect of this change in election polling methodology, the UIS Survey Research Office conducted an online panel using Qualtrics of registered Illinois voters from October 2-October 8, .
