Thursday, September 4, - Darrin I had the very unpleasant experience recently of dumping excess lawn clippings directly into my garbage can. The can set out in the sun for a few days before I brought it into the garage. A few days later, WHOA! The can smelled like a skunk had stepped in dog doo-doo, rolled around in raw sewage, and then died in there. I was reminded once again, that lawn clippings should not go directly into the garbage can! I have a composter and do a fair amount of composting. To which, I add lawn clippings when I have brown material to balance it out. The ratio is 1 part green: The answer is no. If the proportions of green and brown mater More Winter Composting Tips Friday, December 14, - Darrin With winter in full-swing, that does not mean you need to quit composting. Composting in the winter and cold temperatures is still possible with these helpful tips: Keep your composter in the sun as much as possible. This is probably the same place you have had it all summer, but with the angle of the sun changing as it does during the winter, you may need to take another look and adjust the placement of your Lifetime Composter. For winter composting, keeping your compost a little on the dry side may also help. This can be achieved by modifying your typical brown versus green ratios to a little more heavy on brown. Moisture in the compost mix is necessary but too much will freeze and slow down the helpful composting bacteria, or put these bacteria into hibernation. So, a touch dryer during the winter is better. Loyal blog readers if there are any of them out there know that Lifetime offers a variety of composters. These composters make being green easy, help provide beautiful gardens, and potentially save the planet. Yep, composters are pretty much modern day superheroes. Well, maybe that is a little extreme, but they are pretty cool. Lifetime has been in the composter manufacturing business for about five years now. I remember when my boss came to me and said he wanted to develop a composter for mass market retail. I have to admit, I thought his brain might have started to compost. After all, they were only for people who lived completely off the land in rural USA, right? Boy was I wrong Making your own compost is the perfect way to cut back on landfill waste while directly giving back to the environment. Responsible stewardship of our environment is what Earth Day is all about. Here in Utah, it has felt like Spring all winter long. We have had a very mild winter. I fear, however, there is more snow to come which means the tulips and daffodils are in for a rude awaking. Lifetime is still very much in the composter business and we have had tremendous success with our composters. I feel we have helped to make another step in "greening up" our planet with the vast amounts of Lifetime composters that are composting away in yards all over the world. More My Composter is Dripping! Friday, August 12, - Darrin A lot of our customers often start asking us the same questions about composting around this time of year. One of the most common concerns we hear is that their Lifetime Composter is leaking. Long story short, this is normal. A lot of people have jumped on the home gardening band-wagon and are interested in starting to make their own compost. I was able to attend the 66th Annual show this year and it was amazing to see the variety of new and exciting products. It was an opportunity for Lifetime to flaunt our own innovations. We met with all of our major retailer accounts, to show and demonstrate our newest innovations. The response on these products has been phenomenal! After a few hours of drilling, tightening bolts, and hauling through the kitchen"oddly enough, the best path to the loading dock " we had our own little corner with a Lifetime shed, composter, wheelbarrow, and Personal Table for a drawing to win the products. You may wonder why a person would be so excited to do all this work. Remember how we introduced the Lifetime Gallon Composter last spring? Well, with its success we have designed a smaller version and are excited to announce"the Lifetime Gallon Composter! We have kept all the same great features but just made it a little smaller. Its extra large, removable lid makes it easy to load lawn and garden trimmings and organic waste. The lid latches shut to help keep rodents out and compost in. The ingenious tumbler design turns on an axis to allow for easy and balanced rotation. The aerated internal bar mixes compost and allows for air flow. Lots of presents, lots of food, and lots of decorations add up to "well, lots of trash. But, before you start chunking everything in the garbage can, a majority of your holiday trash can actually be saved to make one last great gift to give to Holidays provide lots of great compost material that often gets overlooked. Take a look at all of these items you probably have laying around your house now that Santa has come and gone that you can easily add to your Lifetime Composter. Do put in your composter:

Wrapping paper - Use only non-foil, non-glossy papers. Be sure to remove any ribbons and tape.
