It was in that doctor Sun Yat-sen brought Western medicine services to the hospital. Slave trade[ edit ] From to about the early s, Macau was the infamous transit port of a trade of coolies or slave labourers from southern China. Most of them were kidnapped from the Guangdong province and were shipped off in packed vessels to Cuba , Peru, or other South American ports to work on plantations or in mines. Many died on the way there due to malnutrition, disease, or other mistreatment. The Dea del Mar which had set sail to Callao from Macau in with Chinese on board, arrived in Tahiti with only of them still alive. World War II[ edit ] Macau became a refugee center during WWII causing its population to climb from about thousand to about thousand people within a few years. The next month they demanded the installation of Japanese "advisors" under the alternative of military occupation. The result was that a virtual Japanese protectorate was created over Macau. Japanese domination ended in August When it was discovered that neutral Macau was planning to sell aviation fuel to Japan, aircraft from the USS Enterprise bombed and strafed the hangar of the Naval Aviation Centre on 16 January to destroy the fuel. American air raids on targets in Macau were also made on 25 February and 11 June Macau and communist China[ edit ] When the Chinese communists came to power in , they declared the Protocol of Lisbon to be invalid as an " unequal treaty " imposed by foreigners on China. However, Beijing was not ready to settle the treaty question, leaving the maintenance of "the status quo" until a more appropriate time. Beijing took a similar position on treaties relating to the Hong Kong territories of the United Kingdom. In , the Salazar regime declared Macau, as well as other Portuguese colonies, an " Overseas Province " of Portugal. This was sparked by the overreaction of some Portuguese officials to what was a regular minor dispute concerning building permits. The riots caused 8 deaths and the end was a total climbdown by the Portuguese Government. The latter committed the Government to compensate local Chinese community leaders with as much as 2 million Macau Patacas and to prohibit all Kuomintang activities in Macau. This move ended the conflict, and relations between the government and the leftist organisations remained largely peaceful. A Portuguese proposal to return the province to China was declined by China. In , the Macau Stadium was completed in Taipa. Melo Egidio became the first governor of Macau to pay an official visit to Beijing. The two sides exchanged instruments of ratification on 15 January and the Joint Declaration entered into force. During the transitional period between the date of the entry into force of the Joint Declaration and 19 December the Portuguese government was responsible for the administration of Macau. Thus the history of European colonisation of Asia ended.
