Enjoy a taverna meal under the stars. You can experience this pleasure anywhere in Greece, of course—maybe on an island with the sea in view, or in the countryside, with the scent of pine in the air, or even in busy, noisy Athens. The food is usually simple but fresh and delicious, the pace is almost always easygoing, and the spectacle of life buzzing around you is endlessly entertaining, like being in the theater. Give yourself time to sit and watch the fishing boats come and go. If you visit Greece in the spring, take the time to smell the flowers; the fields are covered with poppies, daisies, and other blooms. Island-Hopping in the Cyclades: Succumb to the simple charms of Mykonos: For all its glitz and glamour, worldly Mykonos shows off its best side in Hora, where wooden balconies hang from square white houses, outdoor staircases are lined with pots of geraniums, and oleander and hibiscus scent the air. Though the Cyclades are bound by unmistakable family resemblance, each island has a unique personality. Distances between islands are small, making travel by ferry logistically straightforward at least in principle. Whether you are traveling in the off season, when you do not need hotel reservations, or in high season, when hotel reservations are a must, we suggest that you prepare to be flexible—which is a tactful way of preparing you for the unexpected in island boat schedules! Gaze at the Acropolis, Athens: The best approach is to let the sight take you unawares—let it catch you by surprise as you look up from a narrow side street or traffic-choked square. In fact, the more mundane the surroundings from which you catch a glimpse of the timeless pediments and columns, the more remarkable this ancient wonder seems. One prime spot is the Grand Promenade; even Athenians get a thrill every time they follow this walkway around the base of the Acropolis Hill past some of the greatest monuments of antiquity. Think of the experience as time travel. Get into the rhythms of Lalaria Beach, Skiathos: Then you slowly become accustomed to the murmurous rumble of white marble stones rolling back and forth in the surf, amplified by sea cliffs dappled by the play of sun and turquoise water. Descend onto the Lasithi Plateau, Crete: First the road climbs and climbs; then suddenly you reach the summit of the pass, and at your feet, spreads a high haven of orchards and fields, studded with windmills and protected by a tidy ring of mountains. Catch your first glimpse of Skyros Town, Skyros: This hilltop hora appears to defy gravity—at first sight, the white houses clinging to a rocky mount high above the coastal plain look like a mirage. Make the ascent to the upper town, where a walk along the steep, narrow lanes only heightens the illusion. Leaving the Beaten Path: Leave the main routes and major attractions behind, and make your own discoveries of landscape, villages, or activities. For instance, seek out a church or monastery such as Moni Ayios Nikolaos outside Metsovo—you may be rewarded by a moving encounter with the church and its caretaker. When you visit the Cycladic Islands, consider a base on Tinos or Siros. Both are popular with Greeks but attract hardly any foreigners. There is a Greece beyond the columns and cafes—a land of rugged terrain and wildflowers and birds and other natural phenomena. Get up a little earlier than usual to see the sun rise preferably from the Aegean, illuminating the islands. Then watch it sink over the mountains anywhere in Greece, but try not to miss the sunsets that change the Ionian Sea from the deepest blue to a fiery red. Exploring what to see and do in Athens can be overwhelming, but Frommer's has the definitive guide on the internet for things to do. Athens Travel Guide. Things.

The scene used to be in Makrigianni and Kolonaki, and the legendary gay bars and clubs of the past remain and are still popular but Gazi has taken over, with the hippest gay or gay-friendly scene. The weekly publications Athinorama and Time Out often list gay bars, discos, and special events in the nightlife section. You can also look for the Greek publication Deon Magazine tel. Gay Travel Greece, at Syngrou Ave. Gay and lesbian travelers will not encounter difficulties at any Athenian hotel, but one with a largely gay and lesbian clientele is room Hotel Rio Athens tel. The popular Alexander Sauna has nice, clean apartments for rent above the bathhouse at affordable prices at Alexander Apartments, Megalou Alexandrou and Iera Odos, Gazi tel. Also remember that Athens Pride www. Bear Code Club, 8 Konstantinoupoleos, Gazi tel. Blue Train, 84 Konstantinoupoleos, Gazi tel. The friendly scene here is a great place to begin the evening, preferably at a sidewalk table, where you can watch the trains and the boys go by, except on Fridays when the night belongs to the girls. Group Therapy, 11 Lepenioutou, Psirri tel. Fou Club, 8 Keleou, Gazi tel. Kazarma, first floor, 84 Konstantinoupoleos, Gazi tel. During summer, the fun moves to the terrace El Cielo. Lamda Reloaded, 15 Lembessi and 9 Syngrou, Makrigianni tel. The energy on the ground floor is mostly laid back, while things in the basement get far rowdier. Mayo, 33 Persefonis, Gazi tel. Micraasia, 70 Konstantinoupoleos, Gazi tel. Red lighting, colored tiles, chaises, and belly dancers all contribute to making this an atmospheric venue mostly for girls. There is also seating on its "secret" rooftop. My Bar, 6 Kakourgiodikiou, Monastiraki tel. The girls have made Noiz, 41 Evmolpidon and Konstantinoupoleos, Gazi tel. Chapter 3 : Athens Studios in Athens - Hotel | Frommer's Venizelos is a large, modern facility, with ample restrooms, interesting shops, and acceptable restaurants, but it is a serious slog from Athens; you no longer have the option of heading back into the city for a few extra hours of sightseeing if your flight is delayed, as visitors once did from the old airport. Also, an Info-Point is available with excellent city brochures and guides, plus digital iPads and flatscreen tours of the city. In addition, you may deplane down a steep flight of stairs onto the tarmac, where a bus will take you to the terminal. When planning what carry-on luggage to bring, remember that it can be quite a trek from your arrival point to the baggage claim area and Customs hall. The baggage claim area has ATMs, telephones, restrooms, and luggage carts. You can also use one of several free telephones in the baggage claim area to call for a porter. If your suitcases do not greet you in the baggage claim area, proceed to a "baggage tracing" desk. Signs in the baggage claim area indicate which route to use for Customs. If you are being met, you may want to rendezvous at the clearly marked Meeting Point across from the Greek National Tourism Organization desk between exits 2 and 3 in the main terminal Arrivals Hall. Exits from the main terminal are signposted for taxi and bus connections into Athens. Many taxis refuse to go to the airport, fearing that they will have a long wait before they get a return fare. Allow a minimum of an hour for the ride plus 2 hours for check-in for an international flight. Or, you can hop on Metro line 3 at Syntagma or Monastiraki, or take line 1 at Monastiraki and switch at Nerantziotissa for the suburban railroad. For information on bus service to the airport from Syntagma, Ethniki Amyna, and Piraeus, see above under "Arrivals. The flight information screens should indicate where you check in and what departure gate to go to. Make sure that the information on your boarding pass agrees with the information on the flight information screen. There have been frequent complaints that adequate information on arrivals, departures, cancellations, delays, and gate changes is not always posted. Nonetheless, it is important to check these screens and ask at the information desks, as there are no flight announcements. Last-minute changes in your departure gate are not unknown; arrive at your gate as early as possible. Your best chance of finding out about a change is at the original gate. This is much less than most international weight allowances from the U. At present, many charter flights use the satellite terminal. Airport Facilities -- The airport has about 35 shops, ranging from chic boutiques to Travel Value to duty-free shops. There are 10 restaurants and cafes, including a food village with seven food "hubs" in the main departure lounge. As with airports around the world, both food and goods are overpriced, although the prices of books, newspapers, and magazines are reasonable. Duty-free shops have different regulations for Intra-Schengen and Extra-Schengen passengers. If you are flying from Athens to a country outside the EEC, you may find it worthwhile to check out the duty-free prices on perfumes and spirits. Hertz, Avis, and Alamo rental cars are available at the airport. Much of the long-term parking is a serious walk from the main terminal. If you have the proper change unlikely, you can use a machine to pay for your ticket; otherwise, join the queue at the payment booth. Useful telephone numbers at Athens International Airport include: Taking the Metro from the airport to Piraeus 1 hr. Hydrofoils for other islands leave from Marina Zea, a vigorous half-hour walk from the Main Harbor. The bus usually leaves passengers in Karaiskaki Square, several blocks from the harbor. The official daily schedule is as follows: Every 20 minutes from 5am to 7pm; every 30 minutes from 7pm to 8: Airline Offices -- Some international carriers still have ticket offices in or near Syntagma Square, but many have moved to other areas in the city. Air Canada is at 10 Ziridi, Marousi tel. American Airlines is at 15 Panepistimiou tel. Delta Air Lines is at 4 Othonos tel. Lufthansa Airlines is at 10 Ziridi, Marousi tel. Qantas Airways inquiries are handled by British Airways tel. Turkish Airlines is at 19 Filellinon tel. It is unwise -- even foolhardy -- to allow anything less than 24 hours between your return to Piraeus by island boat and your departure by air, as rough seas can significantly delay the trip. By Car If you arrive by car from Corinth to the southwest, the signs into Athens will direct you fairly clearly to Omonia Square, which you will enter from the west along Ayiou Konstantinou. In Omonia, signs should direct you on toward Syntagma Square and other points in central Athens signs in Omonia disappear mysteriously. If you arrive from Thessaloniki to the north , the signs pointing you into central Athens are few and far between. It is not a good idea to attempt this for the first time after dark. If this happens, your best bet is to look for the Acropolis and head toward it until you pick up signs for Omonia or Syntagma squares. By Bus Before you start out on any bus trip, check with the tourist police tel. As the Metro continues to open new stations, bus routes and fares are always changing. If possible, get someone to write down the name and address of your bus station in Greek; this will be a great help when you take a taxi or bus. Keep in mind that many buses run both with and without a "0" prefix and 24, for example. There are two main stations for KTEL www. Terminal A, Kifissou tel. It leaves from the corner of Zinonos and Menandrou, several blocks off Omonia Square; you can catch the same bus at the terminal for the trip into town. The GNT0, for reasons known best to itself, lists the address for Terminal B as Liossion; this is where the bus for the terminal stops. To get to the terminal itself after you get off the bus, turn right onto Yousiou and you will see the terminal at the end of the street. If you take this bus, tell the driver you want to get off at the bus terminal and then head right to Yousiou to reach the terminal. The Mavromateon terminal at Patision and Alexandras, a few hundred meters north of the Archaeological Museum, handles buses for most destinations in Attica. By Train Trains from the south and west, including Eurail www. Trains from the north arrive at Larissa station Stathmos Larissis; tel. The Larissa station has both an exchange office daily 8am To get to the train stations, you can take the Metro to Larissa line 2 , close to both stations. The most central place to catch the Metro is the stop in front of the Parliament building on Syntagma Square. You can purchase train tickets just before your journey at the train station running the risk that all seats may be sold ; at the Omonia Square ticket office, 1 Karolou tel. Information in theory in English on timetables is available by dialing tel. The subway runs from about 5am to midnight and costs 1. The far slower bus no. You may prefer to take a taxi to avoid what can be a long hike from your boat to the bus stop or subway terminal. Be prepared for serious bargaining. Even our Greek friends admit that getting a taxi from Zea Marina into Athens can involve a wait of an hour or more -- and that drivers usually drive hard and exorbitant bargains. To avoid both the wait and big fare, you can walk up the hill from the hydrofoil station and catch bus no. You must buy a ticket at the small stand near the bus stop or at a newsstand before boarding the bus. If you arrive late at night, you may not be able to do this, as both the newsstand and the ticket stand may be closed. Inquire about the bus to Athens; it runs often and will take you within the hour to the Areos Park bus terminal, 29 Mavromateon, near the junction of Leoforos Alexandras and Patision. From the bus terminal, there are buses to Rafina every half-hour. The port of Lavrion tel. You can also get to the port by bus: Also, there is a bus that can transfer you from the following Metro and suburban railway stations directly to the port: Pallini, Kantza, and Koropi. This information was accurate when it was published, but can change without notice. Please be sure to confirm all rates and details directly with the companies in question before planning your trip.

Get this from a library! Frommer's comprehensive travel guide. Athens.
