This is an especially nice approach to use when working with animals, particularly large ones. Vraja weighs 2, pounds! It is easy to administer, is extremely cost effective to use, and the dosages are very easy to figure out. Even with a long spine like his, this will still go quite a ways. With a lot of cows, this is good! This is what they say about him: Brown Swiss Herd Status: King of the Herd Nature: Vraja is the head of the herd and carries himself in a very positive, assertive manner. If someone comes to the farm that he dose not feel comfortable with, he will bellow and paw the ground sending clouds of dirt into the air. He has a very protective nature and is always looking out for the smaller members of the herd. We bought him and his twin brother Gita from a dairy in North Carolina one day before they were going to be sent to the "sale barn" for slaughter. Every cow is different from every other cow just as every human is different from any other. If you spend a little time observing the cows and oxen, you will notice this and come to realize the cows have a society of their own. In a herd there are those who are the leaders. In this case it is Vraja and Gita. They have the biggest bodies and horns, so in the bovine society they have the power. And of the two, Vraja is the king. The reason is that Gita is a gentleman, and it is not in his nature nor his topmost desire to lord it over others. Whereas Vraja takes pleasure in doing just that. If there is any danger to anyone in the herd, he is ready to fight. He will give a low moan and kick the dirt under his feet. Vraja approached him in a fighting mood. The cow is a very sociable animal. All the cows will stick together most of the time. When they are in the pasture chewing on the grass, sometimes one will lose awareness that the others have moved to another pasture. All of a sudden the cow will look up and be surprised to find no other cow or ox. Usually you will hear a lot of mooing, then once she figures out where the others went she will start running in that direction. It is quite fun to watch such a big animal run. They are surprisingly quite agile. Your adoption helps provide for their upkeep. It does not take into consideration barn construction and upkeep, water maintenance, training, and basically all the ingredients of a working farm. And it helps tremendously in carrying on the goal of establishing cow protection.

Most look up and admire the stars. When we use these five principles in our personal and business life it will help us to foster and encourage a level of passion and energy in ourselves, as well as those who are our friends, associates or team members. It is essential to remember that teamwork happens inside and outside of business life when it is continually nurtured and encouraged. Outcome When we have a sense of community and focus, we create trust and can help each other to achieve our goals. Lesson 2 - The Importance of Team Work When a goose falls out of formation it suddenly feels the drag and resistance of flying alone. It quickly moves back to take advantage of the lifting power of the birds in front. Outcome If we had as much sense as geese we would stay in formation with those headed where we want to go. We are willing to accept their help and give our help to others. Lesson 3 - The Importance of Sharing When a goose tires of flying up front it drops back into formation and another goose flies to the point position. Outcome It pays to take turns doing the hard tasks. Lesson 4 - The Importance of Empathy and Understanding When a goose gets sick, two geese drop out of formation and follow it down to the ground to help and protect it. Outcome If we have as much sense as geese we will stand by each other in difficult times, as well as when we are strong. Outcome We need to make sure our honking is encouraging. In groups and teams where there is encouragement, production is much greater. One of the flock had been captured by a gardener, who had clipped its wings before releasing it. When the geese started to resume their flight, this one tried frantically, but vainly, to lift itself into the air. The others, observing his struggles, flew about in obvious efforts to encourage him; but it was no use. Thereupon, the entire flock settled back on the pond and waited, even though the urge to go on was strong within them. For several days they waited until the damaged feathers had grown sufficiently to permit the goose to fly. Meanwhile, the unethical gardener, having been converted by the ethical geese, gladly watched them as they finally rose together and all resumed their long flight.
