At 10,, Canterbury had the 10th largest population in England; by the early 16th century, the population had fallen to 3, Between and , the wall was virtually rebuilt, and new wall towers were added. Sudbury is still remembered annually by the Christmas mayoral procession to his tomb at Canterbury Cathedral. In Henry IV became the only sovereign to be buried at the cathedral. In Canterbury was granted a City Charter , which gave it a mayor and a high sheriff ; the city still has a Lord Mayor and Sheriff. The Westgate is the largest surviving city gate in England. It survived a demolition attempt for a road-widening scheme in Victorian times. The Huguenots introduced silk weaving into the city, which by had outstripped wool weaving. However, Canterbury surrendered peacefully to the Parliamentarians after their victory at the Battle of Maidstone. Some buildings were destroyed with 1, seriously damaged. Although its library was destroyed, [39] the cathedral did not sustain extensive bomb damage and the local Fire Wardens doused any flames on the wooden roof. The biggest expansion of the city occurred in the s, with the arrival of the University of Kent at Canterbury and Christ Church College. Between and , the Whitefriars Shopping Centre underwent major redevelopment. The extensive restoration of the cathedral that was underway in mid was part of a schedule that includes replacement of the nave roof, improved landscaping and accessibility, new visitor facilities and a general external restoration. Canterbury, along with Whitstable and Herne Bay, is in the City of Canterbury local government district. These wards have eleven of the fifty seats on the Canterbury City Council. Six of these seats are held by the Liberal Democrats , four by the Conservatives and one by Labour. The city became a county corporate in , and later a county borough under the Local Government Act In it lost its status as the smallest county borough in England, after the Local Government Act , and came under the control of Kent County Council. The civil parish of Thanington Without is to the southwest; the rest of the city is unparished. Harbledown , Wincheap and Hales Place are suburbs of the city. The river divides south east of the city, one branch flowing through the city, the other around the position of the former walls. The two branches rejoin or are linked several times, but finally recombine around the town of Fordwich , on the edge of the marshland north east of the city. The Stour is navigable on the tidal section to Fordwich, although above this point canoes and other small craft can be used. Punts and rowed river boats are available for hire in Canterbury.
