

Chapter 1 : Getting Away to Get It Together: A Getaway Guide for Couples by Bill Wellons

Getting Away to Get it Together is an exceptionally practical way to strategically invest in your marriage. The manual enables you to prepare and really connect with your spouse in those areas that are most significant to the two of you.

We were in our early twenties when we exchanged vows, and I can assure you that we knew very little about developing and leading a lifelong partnership. However, approximately ten years and two children later, we discovered something that has become the best single investment we have ever made in our marriage. It helps reconnect us when busyness robs us of emotional closeness. When the pace of life drains our strength and causes confusion, it re-energizes our partnership and helps clarify our vision as a couple. Our secret is simple: We call it getting away to get it together! These retreats are diverse. When we evaluate where we are heading, we reap a fabulous return on investment. Of course, the idea of retreating to put things into perspective is not original to us. In fact, Jesus was the master of getting away to get it together. I find several examples in the Bible of the Savior escaping the demands of the multitudes in favor of resting and refocusing alone. I share this because He is a wonderful model to imitate if you want your times away to be meaningful and worthwhile. It is our prayer that you enjoy your getaway experiences as much as we have. May God richly bless your relationship as you honor Him by making your marriage a priority. The Master at Getting Away from Carolyn Jesus was the master at getting away to put things into perspective. Even at the pinnacle of miraculous ministry with the multitudes, He would call for a time-out in favor of refocusing with His Father alone. If you want your times away to be meaningful and worthwhile, follow His examples of getting away to get it together. First, I see Him getting away for times of personal prayer. One of my biggest getaway needs is for time all alone with the Lord. In fact, it is my first priority. I take my Bible and journal in search of a quiet place for a personal quiet time. It is important for me to feel in touch with my heavenly Father and to be in a right frame of mind before meeting with Bill later in the day. I begin with praise and adoration for who God is. Then, in a time of confession, I ask Him to reveal my sin to me. As I wait quietly, He reminds me of areas that need my repentance. I name these to Him and ask for forgiveness. I read a chapter from the Bible, making notes of the highlights He shows me. As the passage dictates, I either pray the verses back to God for my life or identify a specific application in my life for that day. Having pursued the mind of Christ, I feel spiritually refreshed and ready to join Bill for our lunchtime conversations. A case in point was His choosing of the twelve disciples. A perfect opportunity for a getaway retreat arose one summer when I was invited to do some consulting in South Carolina. Following my work, Carolyn and I spent several days just across the border in the small community of Brevard, North Carolina, with its spectacular views of the Smoky Mountains. We did our share of sight-seeing and spent time walking in a secluded area to talk and pray together each morning. It was during this getaway that the Lord gave us unity about selling our home of twenty-four years and downsizing for our future. Carolyn and I had prayed about this matter and discussed it for years without resolving the issue. Because we did not agree on the timing, we decided upon waiting to make a move. While I had been ready to move earlier, Carolyn understandably wanted to raise all our children through their high school years in our family home. Now at this point, our children were grown. Two were married with children of their own and a third was living on his own while working full-time and finishing college. It was as if God knew we were truly ready to move and dream about fresh possibilities for a new living situation in our new season of life. During this getaway, we agreed to trust God to sell our home, which He did upon our return to Little Rock. A major decision was finalized, and we were excited about our direction. While I enjoy resting, relaxing, and connecting with Bill emotionally, my favorite reason to get away is to pray for those I love. I cherish how this time allows me to bring the needs of family and friends before the Lord without interruption. Too often the pace of my daily life limits this practice. So I relish the satisfaction that comes from an undistracted, extended time with my heavenly Father. This posture reminds me of who is in control of all the issues I present. Often, I pray verses of Scripture for those for whom I am interceding. Still other times, I sit quietly allowing the Holy Spirit to guide my prayers for others. There are several good prayer helps that I have discovered over the years. The same author has also written about praying for your wife and children. I also keep a journal of my intercessory prayer requests to review on future getaways. But as I read my journal, I recognize the many prayers that have been answered. All things are possible for You; remove this cup from Me; yet not what I will, but what You will. Could you not keep watch for one hour? Keep watching and praying that you may not come into temptation; the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. And again He came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were very heavy; and they did not know what to answer Him. It is enough; the hour has come; behold, the Son of Man is being betrayed into the hands of sinners. Get up, let us be going; behold, the one who betrays Me is at hand! These include the premature loss of our fathers and my mother, conflict between us or with a close friend, financial pressure, vocational frustration, a miscarriage, child-raising difficulties, kidney stones, etc. I have never been more surprised and unprepared in my entire life. It felt as though everything else in our lives stopped, and all of our time and attention focused on this disease. Surgery followed by chemotherapy and various challenging side effects made life unpleasant, uncomfortable, and even lonely at times. We were distressed and troubled. For months we addressed this difficult situation on a daily basis, having no control over the disease. Our peace began to grow because our perspective began to change. God is greater than any unwanted circumstance. He is our only hope, our refuge, and our strength. And He continues to help us address our unwanted circumstances today. God taught us much about life during this difficult season. Following chemotherapy, we celebrated together on an unforgettable getaway retreat in Maui. And I am pleased to report that Carolyn is free from cancer.

Chapter 2 : Getting Away Together! ~ My Beloved Is Mine!

Getting Away to Get It Together: A Getaway Guide for Couples by Carolyn Wellons and Bill Wellons (, Hardcover) Be the first to write a review About this product.

Highlighting great destinations around the United States, the PBS reality show Getting Away Together will feature Blue Ridge, Georgia in an upcoming episode, but they have already released some snippets. They have worked hard to present a wide variety of real people going on real vacations all across the United States since their national debut in the fall of Okay, many channels are dedicated to travel. What sets this one show apart from the others? They are the first realty travel series to focus on this overwhelming trend to travel with friends, kids, grandparents, and the extended family in fully-furnished homes. Nearly all of our guests here at Georgia Mountain Cabins and Blue Ridge Mountain Cabin Rentals are groups wanting to get away from their busy lives in the city, and they want to be enjoy some quite time with their families away from their busy lives in Atlanta. Georgia Mountain Cabin Rentals provides that. One of the most intriguing aspects of Getting Away Together is that all of the people in it are real people. They are not actors paid to be infomercials. This is not a commercial. This is a reality television show. PBS carefully selects all of the groups featured in the series from personal referrals, word-of-mouth research, websites, and social media. The film crew then documents the group as they unwind and behold local sites. Getting Away Together believes that there are two things people love. They want to get away to an awe-inspiring destination, and they want to be with friends and family. The show works to combine those two. People can be happy with their family while going to work. Georgia Mountain Cabin Rentals agrees wholeheartedly. We provide an escape to the beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains. Check out some of the views over on our Pinterest. Getting Away Together provides viewers with takeaway tips and best-kept travel secrets. Experts give out inside information and terrific tips on how to choose the best vacation rental for your situation. Most importantly, the show focuses on families going to vacation rentals as opposed to more traditional hotels, such as fully furnished homes, villas, condos, and cabins. These were chosen because these kinds of homes are becoming preferred over traditional hotels for offering a more amenities and a more homely atmosphere. This detailed article published on their official site presents statistical data supported by academic studies. The long and short of it is that there exists a steadily growing trend in recent years towards cabins taking some of the ground traditionally held by hotels and the like. However, if you go that route, you get a room or two. We have cabins that house 14 and another that houses 4. Some of them are secluded , while others are literally five minutes from downtown Blue Ridge.

Chapter 3 : Getting Away to Get It Together Series from FamilyLife Today® with Dennis Rainey

Recharge your marriage! A guide to help you and your spouse reconnect with a weekend getaway. It will show you how to bond with your spouse, re-energize your partnership, and clarify your vision for your future together. God will bless your relationship when you make your marriage a priority in this.

Some of our earliest Nebo events were visioning retreats, and we continue to offer retreat experiences to our clients. We are advocates of stepping back, reflecting and reconnecting. Still, taking your team away for an experience that is relevant to their daily work, but quite different in tone and design can be a daunting proposition. Do colleagues really want to spend time together? We spent the week swimming, kayaking, hiking and talking, working in teams of two and three to prepare and clean up meals. We used some of our own favorite client exercises to get to know each other better, and we invited each team member to contribute something unique that he or she could offer to the rest of us. One person led a fun icebreaker. Another taught us mixology and invented a new cocktail: Someone else taught belly dancing to anyone interested, while yet another led a guided forest walk following the Japanese practice of Shinrin-Yoku , or forest bathing. In the midst of a fun week, we got to know each other better, accomplished some important planning and client-related work, and celebrated two promotions. As retreat host and leader of The Nebo Company, I was gratified to see how much each person appreciated the inspiring beauty of the lake and the chance to know each other better. The meter rose on the Trust-o-Meter as conversations and new, shared experiences brought us together. I experienced firsthand how meaningful it is to get away “ together. Here are some insights from the Nebo retreat to help you plan your own event: Do invite a team member to design the retreat with you. Raven Rankine took the lead for Team Nebo and developed a three-day itinerary that included activities and also plenty of free time and collaboration time. She took stock of the social and recreational options as well as our work goals and put together a retreat that was neither too focused on meetings or too light and vacation-like. Make sure that people contribute to the success of the event. Watch out for contagious laptop syndrome! When one person pulled out her laptop during free time, it prompted another to check her email and within half an hour, everyone was at work, despite the glorious day and the intent to have real free time. While some matters do need attention during time when you are on retreat, set some boundaries about how to handle those things “ or you may accidentally lose the retreat spirit. Throughout the retreat, we took time to pause and reflect on what we were experiencing together. By doing this, we were able to gauge how everyone was feeling and the overall sense of how the retreat was going. It was a powerful practice to allow people to comment on the time that was being spent together, and it allowed everyone to feel grateful for taking this special time away from the day-to-day to just simply connect. Let there be a little bit of ceremony. You might choose to have a special opening in which you share the objectives for the retreat and invite people to express their own hopes and intentions. At the end of the retreat, leave time for a closing experience, whether a simple reflection on the time together or a final social event or group photo. Our forest-bathing walk ended in laughter and a shortage of ingredients led to the creation of the Nebo Fizz. We cheered our team on as they bravely jumped from a foot platform into the lake below, and we enjoyed the great food, music and water activities. Sometimes, leaders want to make up for lost time by working through breaks and lunch. This is a poor choice, as the unscheduled time may be the most productive of all. Would you like to work with Nebo to plan a retreat for your team? Contact us or call us at

Chapter 4 : PBS “Getting Away Together” in Blue Ridge, GA | Georgia Mountain Cabin Rentals

Getting Away to Connect on a D with Bill and Carolyn Wellons Day 1 of 4: On today's broadcast, Bill and Carolyn Wellons, married for over 30 years and co-authors of the book Getting Away to Get It Together, tell how their trips away as a couple helped them focus on their marriage and connect on a deeper level.

Chapter 5 : Getting Away to Get It Together | eBay

DOWNLOAD PDF GETTING AWAY TO GET IT TOGETHER

Auto Suggestions are available once you type at least 3 letters. Use up arrow (for mozilla firefox browser alt+up arrow) and down arrow (for mozilla firefox browser alt+down arrow) to review and enter to select.

Chapter 6 : Getting Away “ Together | The Nebo Company

In fact, Jesus was the master of getting away to get it together. I find several examples in the Bible of the Savior escaping the demands of the multitudes in favor of resting and refocusing alone. I share this because He is a wonderful model to imitate if you want your times away to be meaningful and worthwhile.

Chapter 7 : Get away Synonyms, Get away Antonyms | calendrierdelascience.com

Listen to Getting Away to Get It Together series from the online broadcasts of Dennis Rainey with FamilyLife Today®.

Chapter 8 : Episodes - Getting Away TogetherGetting Away Together

See more Getting Away to Get It Together: A Getaway Gu Email to friends Share on Facebook - opens in a new window or tab Share on Twitter - opens in a new window or tab Share on Pinterest - opens in a new window or tab.

Chapter 9 : Get away with Synonyms, Get away with Antonyms | calendrierdelascience.com

Getting Away Together is a new TV series highlighting the rapidly growing trend of sharing a vacation with friends and family. From girlfriend getaways to family reunions and milestone celebrations, the series shows diverse groups of real travelers vacationing together in some of the most fascinating destinations and staying at spectacular vacation rental properties across America.