Good Things Come in Small Hotel packages! Doing more has somewhat become a blanket rule for achieving more. However, this theory does not consider the power of context. Sometimes, a small change can do the trick. The difference between hard work and smart work needs to be understood. The hotel industry is not an exception to this rule. You do not have to necessarily invest millions, increase staff fivefold, make huge long-term plans or try every trick in the book to cut costs. To increase business, all you need to do is target the small things, the ones that get ignored and never make a respectable mention in business plans. And just the smaller ones at that. Designing packages for your hotel requires a minimum investment, a little research and a lot of willingness to serve particular needs of your customers. The rewards are huge. This alone has a huge potential in putting hotel room occupancy rates and restaurant orders on an upward spiral. New Age Rules to Online Hotel Sales Packages call for targeting very specific activities, passions or hobbies that your target customers are involved in. So, instead of approaching a prospective patron directly, you approach them through the specific activity or hobby of their choice. This makes getting through to them much easier. So, what can be the various packages that could be designed to attract customers? We have outlined quite a few here which could guide you in designing one of your own: Use your in-house gym as a focal point and design a week-long fitness program around it. Market it by highlighting how it could impact their health with measures such as weight loss and muscle gain by the end of the program. For a fitness enthusiast, this will be an attraction too exhilarating to miss. Wellness Package Similar to the Fitness Package, this is designed for those who love to rejuvenate their senses with the help of holistic healing therapies. The package can include morning yoga sessions, access to the spa and sauna, a nutritious vegetarian meal and a one or two night stay at the hotel. For many people, healing is beyond just fitness. Considering the mental wear and tear that a city life can bring, conscious individuals are looking for cleansing their mind, body and spirit. Adventure Package Getting an adrenaline boost is a huge motivator. A lot of people chase this hormonal spike in forms of adventurous activities. The thrill of taking controlled risks beats every other excitement. This package will include a tie-up with an adventure sports facility that provides activities like rock climbing, surfing or even hiking trips. Excursions can be arranged like early morning sunrise view tours, which are popular amongst photography enthusiasts. Cultural Package This is for communities celebrating particular festivals. The hotel can have themed decoration and invite people to celebrate the festival at their space. Cuisine pertaining to that festival must be prepared. For example, for a Diwali extravaganza the hotel premises can be decorated with hanging lanterns and guests can be served traditional Indian food. This creates goodwill for the hotel as patrons associate celebration and hence good times with the hotel now. Culinary Package How can you forget the foodies? They love recommending the best places to eat to their friends and families. This event never fails to attract a crowd. Arts Package The hotel should tie-up with agencies or hire freelance and contractual artists. A package where patrons can get their portraits done at the end of their stay at the hotel will be enticing. They can get fancy wooden-framed photographs as souvenirs, paintings and poems composed specifically for them. These create memories for the guests and profits for your hotel. The hotel now has something that reminds the guests of their visit. It is time for your hotel to get into the groove and have these packages designed and marketed right away.

God things come in small packages for moms. by Duke, Susan et al. Publication date Topics Mothers, Mother and child. Internet Archive Books.

I want to start off by thanking everyone for coming and supporting our beautiful daughter today and supporting our family since her birth. The love that we have received from all of u has been extremely overwhelming. The phone calls, the visits, the emails, texts, cards, gifts, dinners, to name a few has helped my family tremendously. Just knowing that all of you stood by us and wanted to be there for us has touched our hearts in a way that is indescribable. According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention There are over 4, birth defects and it just so happened we were one of the many families effected by a birth defect ours being Achondroplasia the most common form of dwarfism. Some people might call this fate. Eddie and I call this luck. We feel that we are the luckiest parents in the world to have been given such a special child. When something like this happens to you you start to reevaluate your life. Lyla is not even 4 months old and already she has given us so much. The first thing she has taught me is strength. Second she has taught me to appreciate life. She has brought my family closer together a bond I thought was already tight. She has introduced us to a world of very special people. But most of all she has given our daughter Emma the gift of a sister. Our Emma loves her baby sister and she has an immediate best friend. Welcome to Holland I am often asked to describe the experience of raising a child with a disability - to try to help people who have not shared that unique experience to understand it, to imagine how it would feel. You buy a bunch of guide books and make your wonderful plans. The gondolas in Venice. You may learn some handy phrases in Italian. After months of eager anticipation, the day finally arrives. You pack your bags and off you go. Several hours later, the plane lands. The stewardess comes in and says, "Welcome to Holland. I signed up for Italy! So you must go out and buy new guide books. And you must learn a whole new language. And you will meet a whole new group of people you would never have met. Holland even has Rembrandts. Now I want to say a toast to 3 amazing people. I would like to pay special recognition to my father-in-law Edward Granshaw because he decided to watch his special granddaughter so Eddie and I could go back to work knowing she was in good hands. It is a dream come true and I thank you for being the supportive husband you are and the most incredible father to our daughters. Next to Emma Grace. We love you so much and Lastly to our sweet Lyla. Thank you so much. Please continue to pray for our Lyla. We love you guys. God Bless Lyla Rose!
