These stained glass garden flowers are gorgeous and they are made from all repurposed materials. You can use old glass plates, vases or candle holders or even the tops of glass bottles to create the look and then you just have to stain your glass.

Well, the art of playing with light is definitely one that historic structures the world over have mastered, but you can also bring this design idea into your home in subtle and interesting ways. This door was created by turning Pantone swatches into translucent slides. For a less permanent, more decorative item, we love this entire Etsy shop. Lots of beautiful glass geodes, going for the clear stained glass look. This gorgeous home in Boston features stained glass details without. The designs involve circular abstract shapes rather than representational ones. This fake stained glass move is great if you want a more temporary idea. We love the idea of creating a pixelated design inspired by this method. Window Panel Wall Art: Hang or prop one up in your workspace for some old school craft next to your new school tools. Sometimes, old houses do NOT need to be updated. This unbelievable door is timeless, and with the right minimalist aesthetic in the rest of the entryway, it remains quite beautiful. We love the cool blue and white throughout the entire scene. Everything about this is dreamy. The jars of utensils, pile of plates, and beautifully aged stained glass rectangles in the window frame. Finally, how modern and cool is this converted church? Have you seen any beautiful examples of stained glass in the home? Tell us in the comments below. Modern, minimalist or colorful. Chapter 2 : 15 Gorgeous DIY Stained Glass Projects That Will Beautifully Decorate Your Outdoors - DIY &

Make a beautiful sea glass lamp using any glass lamp and sea glass spray paint. This is an easy way to create beautiful coastal lamps and other decor on a small budget.

Between soda, sparkling water, beer, and wine, glass bottles tend to collect around the house pretty easily. Although your first instinct might be to rinse out and recycle those bottles, they can actually be upcycled in a ton of functional, beautiful ways! Here are 13 clever ways you can turn your trash into some serious DIY treasure. Picture Frames DIY Network Forget store-bought picture frames, reusing your bottles to display your favorite memories can be an incredible touch for your home decor. Best of all, you can easily use the glass bottles to play into a theme, like a beach house or a rustic, country feel. Check out the full tutorial here. Make these DIY vases out of beer or wine bottles in any color or design you want. Simple Bottle Design The Wicker House For a really easy, classic way to dress up your empty bottles, cut out some text from a magazine or thrift store book and Mod Podge it to the glass. We love that you can cut the paper into any shape you want! Not only do they look extremely sleek, but they hold lots of volume. Classy Spray Bottle Body Unburdened Rather than opt for a cheap, plastic spray bottle for your DIY cleaning products, try reusing a glass bottle for the same purpose! The end result looks a lot cooler than the Dollar Store alternative. Empty wine bottles will be your new go-to hack! We love the idea of spraying these a metallic color for a hypnotizing look. You upcycled waste and your local birds get a snack – everyone wins. Outdoor Planters Encourage Military Wives Although wine bottles could easily be used to make an adorable indoor garden too, we love the look of these rustic bottles as outdoor planters. Tiki Torches Redeem Your Ground The perfect touch for your porch this summer are some wine bottle tiki torches! All you need is a wick, some kerosene, and your empty bottles for some DIY mood lighting. This one is as simple as cleaning out your bottle and lowering a string of lights inside. The end result is stunning. Glass Wind Chimes Bottle Rascvet Few things are as relaxing as the sound of wind chimes – and few things are as satisfying as knowing you made these chimes yourself! We would suggest maybe using antiqued bottles for this one they give a cloudy, colorful tint to the glass and filling each one with the flowers of your choice.

Chapter 3 : 13 Gorgeous Ways to Repurpose Glass Bottles | TipHero

Paint the glass stem in shimmer stone to get that gorgeous winter forest look. How glam and elegant. (Modern Masters).

Would you like to add some of this beauty to your outdoors? If so, I have the perfect collection of 15 DIY stained glass projects for you. These are all perfect for adding some color to your garden area. You can add these to the porch or the garden or yard area. And, you can use upcycled glass to make many of these. I often find gorgeous glasses, plates and glass vases at my Goodwill for around a dollar each. Those are perfect for making many of these DIY stained glass projects. And speaking of glass, you will also want to check out these 25 crafty painted glass projects, too. From birdhouses and luminaries to tabletop planters, you will find the perfect way to add some splashes of colors to your outdoors. I hope you love these projects as much as I do. They are all super easy to make and so gorgeous when they are finished. Be sure that you take the time to look over these 20 repurposing ideas for broken glass and china, too. You can buy the craft greenhouses and then let your little ones create their stained glass greenhouse using markers or paint. Black electrical tape makes the lines. This is such a fun project for little ones of all ages and it gives you a gorgeous stained glass greenhouse to display in your garden. You just need glass to cover an existing planter. You could do square or round—whatever you have on hand. You make this from old glass from a window. If you are redoing your windows, this is a wonderful project to use up the old glass, and you could have stained glass art all over your porch and inside your home. Repurposed Plate Stained Glass Flowers These stained glass garden flowers are gorgeous and they are made from all repurposed materials. You can use old glass plates, vases or candle holders or even the tops of glass bottles to create the look and then you just have to stain your glass. Depending on your chosen pattern, these could take a while to make but they are definitely worth the effort. Just imagine these beauties gracing your garden! Then, you just choose a design and make your stones as unique as you want them to be. Stained Glass Suncatcher Suncatchers are gorgeous when you display them on the porch or deck or hang them in your garden. You just need pieces of glass “in whatever shape and size you want. Then you just add the stained glass effect. Or, just check out this transparent stained glass suncatcher that I found on Etsy. You can use these DIY stained glass mason jar luminaries to create quite a colorful display anywhere in your outdoors. I do love a good repurposed mason jar project and these are super easy. Just choose your colors and create the stained glass look and then fill your luminaries with tealight candles, votives or LEDs and they will light up your garden beautifully. You could do these on the side of your house, too and they will help to light up your garden. You use an old glass tabletop to make this one. Sometimes they have them for just a couple of dollars each. Then you just have to choose your design and paint it on. DIY mosaic projects are perfect for the garden. You turn it into this gorgeous DIY stained glass garden spinner. You will need to cut glass pieces to fit the tire rim, so be very careful or if you have a glass shop nearby, just have them cut the pieces for you. Then you just have to add the paint and put it all together. Stained Glass Garden Stakes Do you want a colorful way to mark your plants? How about some stained glass garden stakes? You could do these in any number of ways and use them as plant markers or make them a bit more decorative and just use them as general plant stakes. Or, you could just check these out on Etsy. You just select a design and then put it on the old window. You could even use these as separators on the end of your porch by hanging them from chains. This is a great idea to add a decorative touch to your kitchen windows or you could just paint some old windows in true Tiffany style and then hang them wherever you want some added color. Melted Bead Stained Glass Art Those little plastic beads that you can get at Walmart or any craft store are perfect for creating some stained glass garden art. You just create the design that you want and then melt the beads, which will make that design in stained glass style. I love DIY windchimes! They are so easy to make and you can be so creative when you do them yourself. These are made from the top of a wine bottle and then pieces of glass that you paint to look like stained glass. Then you just tie everything together with chains. You can easily make these yourself or take a look at these on Etsy.
