A Pressure is caused by gas molecules colliding with surfaces. B The atmosphere has a pressure as the components of air collide with surfaces. C After creating a pressure difference, the atmospheric pressure can push liquid up a straw. D A deep well dug in the ground must have the pump located at the bottom of well in order to have the water come to the surface. E All of the above statements are true. A Gas particles do not repel each other. B There is a large distance between gas particles as compared to their relative size. C The size of the actual gas particles is small compared to the volume of the whole gas. D The average energy of the particles is dependent on the molecular mass of the particle. E All of the above statements are part of the Kinetic Molecular Theory. G1 3 Which of following statements are consistent with the Kinetic Molecular Theory? A Gases are compressible because the volume taken up by the gas is almost entirely open space. B Gases assume the shape and volume of their container because they are in constant, straight-line motion. C Gases have a low density because there is so much empty space between the particles. D Gas particles collide with each other and surfaces without losing any energy. E All of the above statements are consistent with the Kinetic Molecular Theory. A The size of the gas molecules is negligible compared to the total volume of the gas. B The average kinetic energy of the molecules of a gas is proportional to the temperature of the gas in kelvins. C The gas molecules collide with each other and with the surfaces around them. D Strong attractive forces hold the gas molecules together. E none of the above Answer:
