

Chapter 1 : Cyndi's List - United Kingdom & Ireland - Ireland & Northern Ireland - Cemeteries & Funeral Ho

Search the largest collection of online gravestone inscriptions in Northern Ireland. Our database contains over 50, inscriptions from over graveyards in counties Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone.

Perishable grave markers have long since disappeared. However, a successful and wealthy ancestor may have erected a memorial stone in memory of several generations of their family. This is also true of emigrant families, who returned to Ireland or sent money for a gravestone to be erected. A grave may contain more than one family member and sometimes members of the extended family. This means that gravestone inscriptions and Irish burial records can open up all sorts of new lines of enquiry. Databases of gravestone inscriptions are not a comprehensive source. In many cases the database consists of transcripts of gravestones that are still legible today, but not those that have fallen, broken or been weathered smooth. For many families a stone was never erected. However, if found, a gravestone inscription can detail several generations of a family, dates of birth and death and even, in some cases, occupations and addresses. There are numerous sources for gravestone inscriptions online. This site also holds a collection created by Ian Cantwell son of Brian of memorials of the dead for Galway and Mayo check the map because this collection does not cover the entirety of both counties. It is possible to view the original transcript made by Cantwell, if relevant entries are found. This is a useful source for the many Church of Ireland families who settled in Wicklow and Wexford. Glasnevin Cemetery in Dublin has made their records available online. There is a free search facility, although you need an approximate date of burial and you will require credits to see more details of the burial. Read the extent of the records on the site carefully, because some links will identify other persons who were buried in the same grave, possibly identifying additional family members. Records at Glasnevin date from The burial registers for Deansgrange Cemetery in Dublin have been indexed and published online at www. You will need to purchase credits in order use the search facility, but for Northern Irish ancestry, it may be worth investing in a small number of credits in order to use the search. Many local history societies and genealogy groups have transcribed and indexed gravestones in their area. A goolge search for the parish in which your ancestor may have been buried should turn up any links to gravestone transcriptions.

Chapter 2 : Irish Gravestone Transcriptions

Our collection of gravestone inscriptions covers the majority of graveyards in Northern Ireland. However, we do not hold the inscriptions for every single graveyard in Northern Ireland.

He longest lives, who most to others gives, himself forgetting. Safe in the arms of Jesus. Her works were kindness, her deeds were love. Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal. Death is not the extinguishing of the light, but the putting out of the lamp, because Dawn has come. Rabindranath Tagore Death is but crossing the world, as friends do the seas; they live in one another still. Shelley In small proportions we just beauties see; And in short measures life may perfect be. Ben Jonson Love is not changed by death And nothing is lost And all in the end is harvest. Edith Sitwell Life is not measured by the number of breaths we take, but by the moments that take our breath away. A life, like any other, completely unlike any other. Neil Gaiman I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Something to love He lends us. Moore I know I am deathless. All goes outward and nothing collapses, and to die is different from what anyone supposed Whittier From my body, flowers shall grow and I am in them and that is eternity Edvard Munch We sail the beautiful and invisible ocean, where none have ever really drowned. Brian Pattten How many times do I love thee, dear? Tell me how many thoughts there be In the atmosphere Whose white and sable hours appear The latest flake of Eternity: Kelsall He who has gone, so we but cherish his memory, abides with us, more potent, nay, more present, than the living man. Antoine de Saint-Exupery The heart of man is restless until he finds rest in Thee. St Augustine Mutual love, the crown of all our bliss. Milton They loved each other and taught us that love. Till the master of all good workmen shall set us to work anew Kipling Peace is thine, and sweet remembrance is ours. Whither tho goest I will go. You will hear thunder and remember me, And think: The rim Of the sky will be the colour of hard crimson, And your heart, will be on fire. Unknown source So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past. Scott Fitzgerald Tears are often the telescope by which men see far into heaven. W Beecher He did not lose his place in the minds of men because he was out of their sight. John Henry Newman, Sermons Heaven, the treasury of everlasting joy. Shakespeare The acts of this life are the destiny of the next. Eastern proverb Even the angels Forget their services and about her fly Oft peering on her face that seems more fair The more they on it stare When you are sorrowful, look again. Gibran In His will is our peace. Dante Let me return to my home town entombed in grass as in a warm and high sea. Giorgio Bassam Life is not about waiting for the storm to pass. Deep peace of the quiet earth to you. Gaelic blessing The kingdom of Heaven is within you. Death is not a foe, but an inevitable adventure. Sir Oliver Lodge It is not length of life, but depth of life. Ralph Waldo Emerson My second self and best earthly companion Charlotte Bronte To reach a great height a person needs to have great depth. John Oxenham The heart of him who truly loves is a paradise on Earth. Covey The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen, nor touched, but are felt in the heart. Gazis-Sax Never born, Never died: Osho Generous of heart, constant of faith. Oh fair enough are sky and plain But I know fairer far A. Housman Only when you drink from the river of silence shall you indeed sing. I am the sailor of eternity whose voyage is not gone. Alder Time is too slow for those who wait, too swift for those who fear, too long for those who grieve, too short for those who rejoice, but for those who love, time is eternity. And not in utter nakedness, But trailing clouds of glory, do we come From God, who is our home: Heaven lies about us in our infancy. William Wordsworth He broke through the barriers of the skies. Herschel Beyond is the infinite morning of a day without tomorrow. Abbott From joy all beings have come and unto joy they all return. Pierre Teilhard de Chardin Death is the golden key that opens the palace of Eternity. Milton The acts of this life are the destiny of the next. Longfellow Saved by grace alone! This is all my plea: Jesus died for all mankind, And Jesus died for me. John Lennon I used to measure the skies, now I measure the shadows of Earth. Although my mind was sky-bound, the shadow of my body lies here. Johannes Kepler People living deeply have no fear of death. Anais Nin There is no pain so great as the memory of joy in present grief. Aeschylus A Gentle Man and a Gentleman. Jack Dempsey Lights will guide you home Coldplay The life given us, by nature is short; but the memory of a well-spent life is eternal. Marcus Tullius Cicero She filled every second of her life with laughter, love and happiness. Their greatest peace was found in nature. If you can remember me, I will be with you always. Isabel Allende Life is not about waiting for the storm to pass. She is not far away. Though my soul may set in darkness, it will rise in perfect light. I have loved the stars too fondly to be fearful of the night.

DOWNLOAD PDF IRISH GRAVESTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Chapter 3 : Irish Gravestone Inscriptions

Before the civil registration of death began in there are only gravestone inscriptions, or small amounts of parish death or burial records. Gravestone information may be inaccurate as the stone may have been erected many years after the deaths by relatives relying on memory.

Chapter 4 : Tyrone Graveyard inscriptions on Roots Ireland, online search facility – Roots Ireland

About Irish Gravestone Inscriptions Heritage World of County Tyrone, Northern Ireland, has surveyed the gravestone inscriptions for almost cemeteries across the northern part of Ireland. The great majority of these cemeteries are located in Northern Ireland, although the figure includes a substantial number from two other Ulster counties, Donegal and Monaghan, as well as several from County Louth.

Chapter 5 : Irish Burial Records - Tracing Irish Ancestry Online

Irish Gravestone Inscriptions by O'Kane, Eoin Kerr Heritage World of County Tyrone, Northern Ireland, has surveyed the gravestone inscriptions for almost cemeteries across the northern part of Ireland.

Chapter 6 : Search Northern Irish Gravestone Inscriptions - Ulster Historical Foundation

*Irish Gravestone Inscriptions. A Guide to Sources in Ulster [O'Kane, William O'Kane, Eoin Kerr] on calendrierdelascience.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. Heritage World of County Tyrone, Northern Ireland, has surveyed the gravestone inscriptions for almost cemeteries across the northern part of Ireland.*

Chapter 7 : Irish Gravestone Inscriptions | William O'Kane and Eoin Kerr

This page features 70, free Irish gravestone records, referencing hundreds of Irish graveyards, spanning all 32 counties, and compiled and transcribed by Dr. Jane Lyons and exclusive to calendrierdelascience.com

Chapter 8 : Irish Gravestone Inscriptions, Tracing your Irish Ancestors: Home

A monumental inscription or headstone inscription is typically carved in stone. Granite, Marble, and Limestone are the most popular materials for engraving a headstone Inscription. The purpose of a headstone inscription is to serve as a memorial to the deceased.

Chapter 9 : Family Roots Publishing - Product View

The homepage of Irish Graveyard Surveyors. This site provides the facility to search a number of Irish graveyards to locate a specific grave or simply to browse through a graveyard or number of graveyards.