

Chapter 1 : The Best Ways to Recognize That You Have a Crush on Someone

It's really hard to become Batman in the first place, and it's hard to maintain it when you get there. There's research suggesting that concussions might cause depression in NFL players.

If you are friends with someone on the Internet and chat with them on messenger programs, for example, you would know what I am talking about. People generally get attracted to each other based on common ideas, common outlook towards life, common value systems, and similar views on important issues. If you happen to know someone over the Internet, you can sometimes feel connected if your views match theirs. One can even argue that not having face-to-face contact can have certain advantages. You may not judge the other person for their physical looks per se, but may get in touch with them on a deeper emotional level. But, could such a love stand the test of time? Would such a love overcome the potentially high expectations generated by an online or virtual personality? Certain personality traits may not be visible or apparent in the online domain. Would such a love, then, be able to come to terms with the reality of physical imperfections or deficiencies? Can you overlook that fact and love them the same way as you did before you met? Discovering Their True Identity There is also the potential problem of anonymity and people who mask their true identities online. You may have very good, honest, genuine intentions and want real love, but can you be really sure that the other person with whom you are chatting to or speaking with shares those intentions? How can you be sure? So, they may just log in and claim to be someone who they are not, but you have no way of knowing that. To me, this is the biggest problem that a person who connects with another person online faces. Flirting on Social Media: Avoid Falling for the Wrong Person A lot of heartbreak can be avoided if during the initial stages of a potential online relationship you insist on seeing the person you are chatting with on cam, rather than settle for pictures, which may be of anyone and not necessarily of the person who is chatting with you. Also, look out for avoidance behavior, like committing to something that may expose their true identity and then backing out repeatedly. For example, if the person you are chatting to is repeatedly promising to meet up with you or cam and then avoids it, there may be a strong possibility that they have something to hide " something they do not want you to find out about them. Conclusion So, hope for the best, but expect the worst to save yourself some heartbreak. Feel free to share your experiences by leaving a comment below, as countless others have!

Chapter 2 : 3 Easy Ways to Make a Guy That Used to Like You Like You Again

If you will set before yourself each week this goal, to know Christ and be like Him, you will see opportunities all over the place to apply it. You will have temptations where you need to rely on the power of His resurrection.

Sure, you can go days, weeks, months, years without thinking of them but the second you see their face or their name gets mentioned in passing, your stomach drops and you feel like you could puke. Have you missed us? Why is your mind punking you? It almost feels like a betrayal. I thought we were over this? So why am I getting super nervous and spazzy at the mere mention of their name? You promised me that we were over this, brain. If they wanted you at this moment, you would leave everything and come to them. It almost feels good knowing that you want someone so bad. You spend so much of your time feeling indecisive about things but this is the one thing that remains the same. A simple insensitive comment made in passing can affect you worse than an insult from your best friend. Hope for nothing, accept everything. These memories still reduce you to mush all of these years later. Can you believe it? How can some lovers evaporate the day they leave you and others stay way past their welcome? Who gets to choose who gets left behind and who gets to stick? Because of this, your business with them will always seem unfinished. Your closure needs to be done on your own. You have to accept that this person will never give you the answers you want them to. But in a way, it feels good knowing that you could ever love someone so much. The things we tell ourselves can become our truth.

Chapter 3 : Can You Fall in Love With Someone You've Never Met? | PairedLife

It might take some effort for me to grow to be attracted to him and to become open to a physical relationship with someone who has simply been my friend for so long, but I think he is worth it. Do you think it's possible to grow to be attracted physically to someone over time?

Please share this tool in a safe and responsible way. This technique is used as part of stage hypnosis. I believe that if you are going to use hypnosis that it must be used with discretion. We experience trance states every day of our lives. When you are day-dreaming, in deep thought, or even watching television, you are in a trance. When you are going to sleep at night, you are in a trance. Trance states are observed in science by brainwave activity. A trance can be light, or very deep like deep sleep. Advertisers have used this knowledge forever. They get our focus and then they pull us in with keywords and authoritative speech that enter the subconscious mind, bypassing our mental filters. Even as you read this, your mind is focused on the words you are reading and you are not fully aware of the world around you. Use discretion with these techniques. Only use them if you have been trained or are very familiar with hypnosis techniques! Make a statement like, "it is hot in here" followed by a reinforcing movement like fanning yourself. When speaking, sound confident and keep your voice monotone but authoritative. Ask the person to stand with their feet close together. Have them look in your eyes. Raise your other hand to the middle of their back while stepping to the side of the person and command them to SLEEP! The person should go into a slump like-posture or they may begin to fall asleep and go limp. Make sure you have the person by the middle of their back to help give them support if needed and safely place the person flat on their back or into a waiting chair. Do this all in a smooth and quick transition, this quick action is what creates the break in the thought process of the person being hypnotized. There is a disrupt in the mental filter that separates our inner voice and thoughts from our sensory reality. This is the door to our suggested command to sleep. This is a split second window of opportunity to get your command in. Everyone is snacking on food and sipping drinks. You lean against a wall, arms folded, and inhale as you look at the crowd. You scan the room where people are talking while music is playing in the background. You are looking for just the right person that you feel will be the most suggestible. If you are in a group of people, be engaging. Listen to the way they talk and what they are talking about. You can build a trust and rapport with the person this way, and you will see their personality. Follow cues in their facial expressions and body language to detect their emotional state and how they feel physically. It is said that 93 percent of all communication is nonverbal. By being observant you can build a trust-bridge with the person you want to put into a trance. Engage them and start giving subtle, suggestible commands. Make statements like, "It is getting late," followed by physical reinforcing movements like yawning. Watch how they react to your suggestion and look for cues in their body language and facial expressions. In a group of people, this can give you clues about on who is the most suggestible. Approach the person while they are in a group of friends. This way you know they have their guard down. Use your small talk social skills and chat with the group. Once you feel you have their trust and some rapport, go ahead and ask if they want to see a trick. Most of the time they will say yes. If the person does not immediately fall into a trance, keep using your suggestible commands to put them into a trance. Now keep feeling that way as you sleep. Direct their gaze into your eyes to gain their focus. The person will immediately slump over and perhaps fall to you. It is important that you bring them close to you and guide them to your shoulder, turning their head to rest comfortably. It is important not to let them get hurt by falling on you. Just feel yourself relax. It is a very good idea to have a person help you seat them in a chair or lay them on a bed or sofa. Once the person is in the trance state, and is in a safe seated position, you can use the power of suggestion on your hypnotized subject. For example, you can tell them that when you count to three that they will open their eyes but that they will not remember their name. Then count to three and tell them to open their eyes. When their eyes are open, ask them to tell you their name. Awakening the subject is as easy as putting them back into trance with the sleep command. Look them in the eye and again, tell them to sleep, and place them back in the chair. Then tell them that you will count to five and that they will awaken feeling good and refreshed. Arm-Pull Induction Picking the Mark When picking a person to place into trance, watch their body language. A person making good eye contact, that smiles when you smile or nods when you do, is a great mark. A person with their arms folded or watching intently is skeptical and is not a good candidate. Rapid induction hypnosis has a lot to do with being in a social situation. When we are in a group of four or more, we let our guards down and are highly suggestible. Rapid induction is used most commonly in stage hypnosis. Quick Hypnosis for Friends Stand or sit face-to-face. Look into the eyes of the person. Have the person place their hand on top of yours palm to palm. Tell your subject to continue to look into your eyes until you tell them to stop. Pause and tell the subject that you will count to three and that on three they need to press down on your hand and that you will press up against theirs. Explain that what they feel is your energy. Then command them to listen to your instructions. As you count to three and the person pushes down on your hand, keep the resistance at a low level at first and then begin to press slowly harder up against their hand. Tell them to press harder. As you feel the pressure of them pressing down, raise your other hand and place it over their eyes in a downward motion caressing their brow slowly down. Now say, "As you press down on my hand, you will begin to feel as though your eyelids are getting heavier and heavier. You feel yourself sitting in your living room late at night watching an old black and white movie on the television. You feel your eyes drooping as you struggle to stay awake. Remember to guide them to your shoulder, placing their head outward into the crook of your arm. Get some help and then put them in a chair seated upright comfortably. At this point, the person is in a trance and is highly suggestible. Remember this is real and not a trick. If you choose to use these powerful tools of suggestion you can help people in pain. If they are depressed or stressed, you can make them feel more at ease. You can help someone relax before a public speaking event. It can be therapeutic and help in defeating addictions and bad habits when used with other tools. This is how hypnosis meant to be used. Hypnosis can be used in social situations as long as the person doing the hypnotic induction has the proper training. Use these techniques responsibly and only after you have been trained in hypnosis. You may find more answers and information by looking for my comments below. Most of you questions can be answered by reading the article. I do not give you any commands that one would give a person under trance. It is up to your discretion on what you want to command the person to do. But we all have a wild side so see what you can do. I am not a trained hypnotist nor am I a licensed practitioner of this practice. All the information I have given you here is available to any seeking to learn how to do this technique.

Chapter 4 : Dark Knight Shift: Why Batman Could Exist--But Not for Long - Scientific American

I can't change him and I don't want him to feel like he has to change for me to love him. I'm just going to accept him for his beautiful selfit.

That is especially true in the Christian life. What is the goal of the Christian life? The goal of the Christian life is to know Christ and to be like Him. Christianity is definitely not a religion of rules and rituals that we must work at keeping in order to climb the ladder to heaven. Rather, it is a personal, growing relationship with the risen, living Lord Jesus Christ that results in our growing conformity to Him. Our goal is to know Him and to become like Him. The goal of the Christian life is to know Christ. Christianity is primarily a growing relationship with the infinite God who has revealed Himself through the Lord Jesus Christ. As with all relationships, it begins with an initial meeting or introduction. So Paul met the risen Lord Jesus Christ. If we went around the room and asked husbands and wives to tell how they met their mate, we would hear many different stories. Some met each other as teenagers; others were further along in life. Others met and things took off like a rocket. For some it was love at first sight; for others, a long friendship led to romance and marriage. But for everyone, you began a personal relationship with your mate and because of it your life took a new direction that it never would have taken if you had not met. You may have met Christ as a young child, reared in a Christian home. Or, you may have met Him later in life. It may have been a traumatic situation, where in a moment of crisis you called out to Him and were saved. But one thing is certain: If you are truly a Christian, you know Jesus Christ personally. I know a bit about his wife and her upbringing as a missionary kid in China. Becoming a Christian requires that you know some things about Jesus Christ. You need to know who He claimed to be, eternal God in human flesh. You must know some of the things He did and taught. You need to understand that He died on the cross for your sins, and that He was raised bodily from the dead. But beyond these facts, you need to know Christ personally. That relationship begins at the moment you recognize that your sins have separated you from God and that you need a Savior. Letting go of all human merit, you call upon the Lord to be merciful to you based on the merits of the death of His Son Jesus. Your object of trust for commending yourself to God shifts from self to Christ. You have met Jesus Christ personally. You must spend time together, getting to know one another through conversation and shared experiences. You learn about her history, her family, her likes and dislikes, her hopes for the future, etc. If you do something to offend her, you ask her forgiveness and learn to work through difficulties in a harmonious way. It requires cultivation and that requires time. It never ceases to amaze me how a young man and a young woman can be extremely busy, but when they meet and things click between them, suddenly they can find many hours every week to be together. What were they doing to fill all those hours before? Whatever it was, it gets shoved aside so that they can pursue this new relationship. Do you often make time to spend with the Lord? Or, it becomes your duty to have a quiet time, so you get out your Bible, grimace, and swallow a chapter a day to keep the devil away. We cannot know the Triune God except as He has chosen to reveal Himself to us. He is infinite and altogether apart from us. We can never come to know Him through philosophy or speculation. We can only know Him as He has chosen to reveal Himself. The Old Testament points ahead to Christ; the New Testament tells us of His life, His death for our sins, and His resurrection and present reign in heaven. It also tells us of His coming again and future kingdom. It expounds on His teaching and reveals His will for His people. We can never know Him fully because He is infinite and we are finite. In fact, you can read and study your Bible all your life and never get to know Jesus in an intimate way! If you want Jesus to reveal Himself to you, He says that you must both have and keep His commandments. So the goal of Bible study is always growing obedience so that we can get to know the Lord Jesus better. This leads to the second part of our goal as Christians: The goal of the Christian life is to be like Christ. When you met your future mate, fell in love and got married, your life was permanently changed. You would never be the same again. It is the same, only much more so, when you meet Jesus as Savior and Lord. He marks you for life, and the more time you spend growing to know Him, the more you are different. To be like Christ requires knowing the power of His resurrection. Paul came to know the power of the resurrected Lord when he was struck down on the Damascus Road. These are not things that can be accomplished through human persuasion or through a self-improvement program. They require the same mighty power of God that raised Jesus from the dead. That same resurrection power is necessary to sustain the believer as he walks in victory over sin. Paul prays for the Ephesians 1: We experience this power as we walk moment by moment yielded to and in dependence on the indwelling Holy Spirit. To be like Christ requires knowing the fellowship of His sufferings. Our Savior came to suffer for our sins on the cross. His entire ministry was marked by misunderstanding, opposition, betrayal, and death. While we can never enter into His sufferings in the same way that He suffered on the cross, there is a sense in which we can never be like Him if we do not go through suffering and learn to entrust our souls to a faithful Creator in doing what is right 1 Pet. It means that He had never experienced the test of obedience until He suffered. His suffering for our sins on the cross was the ultimate test of His submission to the will of the Father. If we are to be like Him, we must also learn to obey God through suffering. Unlike Jesus, we have the powerful force of indwelling sin to contend with. God uses suffering to burn off the dross and purify us. But, we have to cooperate with Him by humbling ourselves under His mighty hand when we go through trials, trusting His sovereignty over our suffering, and casting all our cares on Him 1 Pet. Fellowship points to closeness or intimacy. Though few of us American Christians know it, those who suffer because of their faith in Christ know a special intimacy with Him. I believe the fourth was Jesus Christ who stood with them in their hour of trial. They knew the fellowship of His sufferings. Paul knew this fellowship. When he was preaching in corrupt Corinth, he was afraid. One night as I was getting into bed, feeling somewhat discouraged, I was suddenly impressed with the reference, Acts I was vaguely familiar with the text, but I had not been reading in Acts lately to remind me of it. I opened my Bible and read those words that directly applied to my situation. And I was flooded with joy at being able to enter, just a little bit, into the fellowship of His sufferings. To be like Christ requires being conformed to His death. But it also has another dimension, which Paul describes in many other places, that of dying to sin and self through the cross of Christ. But, we have to live experientially what is true of us positionally. This is what Jesus meant when He said that whoever follows Him must deny self and take up his cross daily Luke 9: Jesus always lived by denying temptations to live in His own power or for His own ends. To the degree that we learn to die to self and sin by being conformed to His death, to the same degree we grow to be like Him. To be like Christ will be realized in the resurrection from the dead. There are two possible interpretations, and it is difficult to decide between them. Paul may be expressing his hope that he will fully realize what it means in this life to experience what he has just stated, namely, the resurrection life of Christ being lived out fully through him. In favor of this view is the preceding and following context, where Paul says that he has not yet attained it, but presses on. The problem with this view is, if Paul had not attained to this experience after 25 years as a Christian, who can? We will then share in His glory throughout eternity. But whatever this verse means, other verses make it clear that the process of sanctification will be completed. We will be like Him, totally apart from sin, sharing in His glory throughout eternity Rom. Is that your goal? If it is, you should have thought about it this past week.

Chapter 5 : Learn How to Hypnotize Someone in Five Seconds | Exemple

Im really obsessed with one guy that i met on facebook, i fell 4 him cause he used to give me attention, anytime when i video call would calendrierdelascience.com problem he nolonger give me attention, hes always online but he dont chat to me, he is always calendrierdelascience.com planning to visit him in two month to come not evn sure if i can still go because of the way he treat calendrierdelascience.com really hurt me cause dont know wat.

Is being holy even possible, since only God is holy? Holiness is not only a possibility for the Christian; holiness is a requirement. The difference between God and us is that He is inherently holy while we, on the other hand, only become holy in relationship to Christ and we only increase in practical holiness as we mature spiritually. The New Testament emphasizes the pursuit of holiness in this world and the final attainment of holiness in the world to come. The Lord took the initiative to pull us out of our former lifestyles. He saved us, cleansed us, and set us apart for righteousness. If we have believed in Christ for salvation, we have been washed by the regeneration of the Holy Spirit and set apart from the world for godliness see Romans However, the pursuit of holiness does not end when we come to Christ. In fact, it just begins! There is a positional holiness that we inherit at regeneration and a practical holiness which we must actively pursue. God expects us to cultivate a lifestyle of holiness 1 Peter 1: Holiness is the mark of every true Christian 1 John 3: We are free from the letter of the law which kills 2 Corinthians 3: In this verse, we see cooperation between God and His children in sanctification. Holiness will not be brought to completion in our lives with no effort on our part. This is, perhaps, the most important lesson that we can learn as Christians. Holiness is the will of God for our lives. Of course, the flesh is weak Mark None of us will reach sinless perfection in this world, but God has made provision for our sin. Our pursuit of holiness in this world includes daily confessing and forsaking sin see Hebrews God helps us in our weakness by giving us His Holy Spirit who reveals the mind of Christ to us and enables us to carry out His will 1 Corinthians 2: When we yield to the Spirit, we become fruit-bearing Christians, yielding a harvest with which God is well pleased Galatians 5: On the other hand, when we suppress the work of the Holy Spirit by rebelling against His will for us, we stifle the design of God, sabotage our own spiritual growth, and grieve the Holy Spirit Ephesians 4: If God was gracious enough to redeem us from sin and death and give us new life in Christ, the very least that we can do is offer our lives back to Him in complete surrender and holiness, which is for our benefit cf. One day, in heaven, we will be free from sin and all its effects.

Chapter 6 : The One Person You Never Really Get Over | Thought Catalog

By "become Batman," I mean the basic concept of Batman that we can all agree on -- a master of martial arts, of forensic and detective skills, of gymnastics, of science and chemistry, of history.

My male clients desperately want to connect with friends, lovers, and family in a very real way. But often they have no model of what that looks like and how to do it. So the most distant and emotionally unavailable people desperately want to be available and feel that connection, but the fear and learned coping strategies get in the way. For most men, being emotionally available is not just about sharing his emotions; it is about his openness with another person and himself. Become a supporter and enjoy The Good Men Project ad free It is not about oversharing or being dramatic for the sake of it, it is sharing what is relevant to develop that connection in an authentic way. It is about knowing the personal behaviors that avoid true openness and availability. You were born with it, then life happened, and you developed coping strategies. The only person who can change this is the person who is presently unavailable. Remember that being available or unavailable has nothing to do with love, it is all about conditioning and a choice to continue to be unavailable or to change it. That choice can be inspired by love, but there are times when its just too great a step for someone to take. When we move into a more authentic and available space, we feel more emotion and we also create deeper, more authentic connections, with ourselves and with others. Signs of emotional unavailability and how to address them: Instead they are pointing fingers and avoiding themselves. Starts Off Fast and Furious In romantic relationships a man who is emotionally unavailable will move into the sexual phase of the relationship quickly. Relationships have a natural development flow. People who are emotionally unavailable actually do the beginning of relationships really fast, sometimes even really well, because they are bypassing the discomfort and natural rhythm of intimacy as a way to avoid being open. If you do this, practice slowing down and learning how it feels to go at a mutual pace, rather than your usual pace. At the end of the day a relationship is a unique coming together and it deserves the space to occur mutually. A man who is emotionally unavailable will attempt to bypass this because it feels too unsafe, to unsure, too ugly. Become a supporter and enjoy The Good Men Project ad free If you do this, be compassionate with yourself. Then when your body is crawling inward, wanting to run, just breathe and stay for a moment longer. It does get easier. The more conscious dating site. There is a really good reason you are doing it, but you can make a different choice. You deserve the connection you so badly want and yet indirectly negate. This starts to open you up to connection, intimacy, and having no personal agenda. And it feels so good to connect with people with no agenda. This is a very unavailable place to be coming from as it means others are never good enough and you never need to be open. It means you can sit back and judge, without ever being on the playing field. If you do this, take a deep breath. Perfectionism is a hard cross to carry. Support yourself with compassion self-talk and practice. Become a supporter and enjoy The Good Men Project ad free Even if you only practice one of these new strategies you will create greater capacity for you to manage the discomfort of being emotionally unavailable and start moving towards a more open, connected and authentic version of yourself. If you do this, you know become self-absorbed with your needs, feelings, wants, and agenda in relation to another person. You are avoiding vulnerability and avoiding true connection. So you may decide some of your agenda is not fitting for the connection and adapt it, or you may even leave, but true emotional availability is going into this space with another person, risking the outcome, rather than staying in your head and coming to conclusions alone. The issue is that it undermines availability and connection with others. To be more available instead of withdrawing, have a dialog with the person about what is happening for you and what you need in this moment. Regardless of the outcome, you will have shared and been open. Date the way you live.

In fact, it's not possible to convince anyone to become a Christian. At least not according to The Bible's definition of one. Read John chapter 6. Jesus says it twice in this portion of Scripture, that No one can come to him unless The Father draws them. In other words; Unless God himself is.

Advertisement Batman is the most down-to-earth of all the superheroes. He has no special powers from being born on a distant world or bitten by a radioactive spider. All that protects him from the Joker and other Gotham City villains are his wits and a physique shaped by years of training—combined with the vast fortune to reach his maximum potential and augment himself with Batmobiles, Batcables and other Bat-goodies, of course. In the blockbuster Batman Begins, vengeful Bruce Wayne played by Christian Bale hones his killer instincts in the streets for seven years before landing himself in a Bhutanese prison, where he falls in with the mysterious League of Shadows, who teach him the way of the ninja. The Dark Knight, the next movie in the Batman franchise, opens in theaters Friday. To investigate whether someone like Bruce Wayne could physically transform himself into a one-man wrecking crew, ScientificAmerican. Paul Zehr, associate professor of kinesiology and neuroscience at the University of Victoria in British Columbia and a year practitioner of Chito-Ryu karate-do. An edited transcript of the conversation follows. To be Batman properly, what you really need to do is be exceptionally good at many different things. Most of what you see there is feasible to the extent that somebody could be trained to that extreme. If you just estimate how fast somebody could punch and kick, and how many times you could hit one person in a second, you wind up with numbers like five or six. More realistic is a couple of attackers. How long would Bruce Wayne have to train to become Batman? In terms of the physical skills to be able to defend himself against all these opponents all the time, I would benchmark that at 10 to 12 years. Probably the most reality-based representation of Batman and his training was in Batman Begins. Why such a long training time? Losing means death—or at least not being able to be Batman anymore. But another benchmark is having enough skill and experience to defend himself without killing anyone. It would be much easier to fight somebody if you could incapacitate them with extreme force. Punching somebody in the throat could be a lethal blow. To be that good, to not actually lethally injure anyone, requires an extremely high level of skill that would take maybe 15 to 18 years to accumulate. Where does that number of 15 to 18 years come from? That comes from my own training in martial arts and seeing how long it takes people to respond to simple situations—let alone the complexities of smoke bombs going off and people having big Batsuits on. The police talk about this when they use things called reality-based training. It takes years and years and years and years to have the poise to be able to perform when somebody is attacking you for real. One of the early comics shows him holding an enormous weight over his head. I settled on the estimate that Bruce Wayne started off at about six-foot-two and pounds. I gave him a body fat of 20 percent slightly below average and a body mass index of His bones will actually be more dense, kind of the opposite of osteoporosis. Are we talking freakishly dense bones? The percentage change is actually quite small—maybe 10 percent. Muay Thai kickboxing is a great example. They try to condition the body by kicking progressively harder objects and for longer. What about his reaction speed? There is evidence that experts in something like football or hockey have an improved ability to perceive movement in time. Experts are able to extract more information faster than others. How would Batman get enough rest? If he were just a nocturnal guy, he would actually be a lot healthier and have a lot better sleep than if he were doing what he does now, which is getting some light here and there. Most of the time, in the comics and in the movies, even when he wins, he usually winds up taking a pretty good beating. The comics are really vague on this, of course. Somewhere around age 50 to 55, he should probably retire. His performance is going down. This was actually shown in an animated series called Batman Beyond. What we learn is that Batman, when he was older but before he retired, actually picked up a gun against a thug because he had to. How would all those beat-downs have affected his longevity? Keeping in mind that being Batman means never losing: That dovetails nicely with the average career for NFL running backs. Could that be one reason why the Dark Knight is so brooding? Whereas in reality, that would be a very likely outcome. But these things would definitely add up. Do you think Batman would take steroids to heal faster? There is one comic where he did go on steroids. He went a little crazy and he went off them again. How many of us do you think could become a Batman? If you found the percentage of billionaires and multiply that by the percentage of people who become Olympic decathletes, you could probably get a close estimate. The really important thing is just how much a human being really can do.

Chapter 8 : Is being holy even possible, since only God is holy?

I also told him at the same time, if I had an offer where I had to be away from him, I wouldn't take it unless it was something extremely important to me, like a once in the life time, job of my.

But now you must be holy in everything you do, just as God who chose you is holy. When people do what is right, it shows that they are righteous, even as Christ is righteous. I have told you these things so that you will be filled with my joy. Yes, your joy will overflow! This is my commandment: Love each other in the same way I have loved you. You are my friends if you do what I command. For our benefit God made him to be wisdom itself. Christ made us right with God; he made us pure and holy, and he freed us from sin. Instead, she will be holy and without fault. And the world hates them because they do not belong to the world, just as I do not belong to the world. They do not belong to this world any more than I do. Let them be a living and holy sacrifice—the kind he will find acceptable. This is truly the way to worship him. I say it again: If you want to be a friend of the world, you make yourself an enemy of God. And just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glorious power of the Father, now we also may live new lives. Since we have been united with him in his death, we will also be raised to life as he was. We know that our old sinful selves were crucified with Christ so that sin might lose its power in our lives. We are no longer slaves to sin. For when we died with Christ we were set free from the power of sin. And since we died with Christ, we know we will also live with him. We are sure of this because Christ was raised from the dead, and he will never die again. Death no longer has any power over him. When he died, he died once to break the power of sin. But now that he lives, he lives for the glory of God. So you also should consider yourselves to be dead to the power of sin and alive to God through Christ Jesus. Do not let sin control the way you live; do not give in to sinful desires. Do not let any part of your body become an instrument of evil to serve sin. Instead, give yourselves completely to God, for you were dead, but now you have new life. So use your whole body as an instrument to do what is right for the glory of God. Sin is no longer your master, for you no longer live under the requirements of the law. It is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me. So I live in this earthly body by trusting in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. For what profit is it to a man if he gains the whole world, and is himself destroyed or lost? Let me tell you again, as I have before, that anyone living that sort of life will not inherit the Kingdom of God. But the Holy Spirit produces this kind of fruit in our lives: There is no law against these things! Those who belong to Christ Jesus have nailed the passions and desires of their sinful nature to his cross and crucified them there. Let us not become conceited, or provoke one another, or be jealous of one another. We will not be influenced when people try to trick us with lies so clever they sound like the truth. Instead, we will speak the truth in love, growing in every way more and more like Christ, who is the head of his body, the church. He makes the whole body fit together perfectly. As each part does its own special work, it helps the other parts grow, so that the whole body is healthy and growing and full of love. Live no longer as the Gentiles do, for they are hopelessly confused. Their minds are full of darkness; they wander far from the life God gives because they have closed their minds and hardened their hearts against him. They have no sense of shame. They live for lustful pleasure and eagerly practice every kind of impurity. Since you have heard about Jesus and have learned the truth that comes from him, throw off your old sinful nature and your former way of life, which is corrupted by lust and deception. And since I, the master of the household, have been called the prince of demons, the members of my household will be called by even worse names! The world would love you as one of its own if you belonged to it, but you are no longer part of the world. I chose you to come out of the world, so it hates you. Do you remember what I told you? And if they had listened to me, they would listen to you. And in the world to come that person will have eternal life. Phil Johnson is a Pastor along with: Can that kind of faith save anyone? What good does that do? Unless it produces good deeds, it is dead and useless. I will show you my faith by my good deeds. Even the demons believe this, and they tremble in terror. You see, his faith and his actions worked together. His actions made his faith complete. And so it happened just as the Scriptures say: So you see, we are shown to be right with God by what we do, not by faith alone. Rahab the prostitute is another example. She was shown to be right with God by her actions when she hid those messengers and sent them safely away by a different road. Just as the body is dead without breath, so also faith is dead without good works. Just as I have loved you, you should love each other. After all, the Father set me apart and sent me into the world. Your Word is Truth. As the Father has sent me, so I am sending you. Holy Father, you have given me your name; now protect them by the power of your name so that they will be united just as we are. And may they be in us so that the world will believe you sent me. I am in them and you are in me. May they experience such perfect unity that the world will know that you sent me and that you love them as much as you love me. He is your example, and you must follow in his steps. He never sinned, nor ever deceived anyone. He did not retaliate when he was insulted, nor threaten revenge when he suffered. He left his case in the hands of God, who always judges fairly. He never sinned, but he died for sinners to bring you safely home to God. He suffered physical death, but he was raised to life in the Spirit. So he went and preached to the spirits in prison—those who disobeyed God long ago when God waited patiently while Noah was building his boat. Only eight people were saved from drowning in that terrible flood. And that water is a picture of baptism, which now saves you, not by removing dirt from your body, but as a response to God from a clean conscience. It is effective because of the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Now Christ has gone to heaven. He is seated in the place of honor next to God, and all the angels and authorities and powers accept his authority. So then, since Christ suffered physical pain, you must arm yourselves with the same attitude he had, and be ready to suffer, too. For if you have suffered physically for Christ, you have finished with sin. So we will not be afraid on the Day of Judgment, but we can face him with confidence because we live like Jesus here in this world. This High Priest of ours understands our weaknesses, for he faced all of the same testings we do, yet he did not sin. So let us come boldly to the throne of our gracious God. There we will receive his mercy, and we will find grace to help us when we need it most. Afterward they will receive the crown of life that God has promised to those who love him. Anyone who believes in me may come and drink! But the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet entered into his glory. Then you will be made complete with all the fullness of life and power that comes from God.

Chapter 9 : 14 WAYS WE ARE TO BE LIKE JESUS CHRIST | LIST OF WAYS WE ARE TO BE LIKE JESUS

When we yield to the Spirit, we become fruit-bearing Christians, yielding a harvest with which God is well pleased (Galatians). On the other hand, when we suppress the work of the Holy Spirit by rebelling against His will for us, we stifle the design of God, sabotage our own spiritual growth, and grieve the Holy Spirit (Ephesians).