The baptized Sikhs have a set of seven sikh prayers, called Nitnem, which they practise on a daily basis, this is mandatory. Social beliefs[edit] Sikhism has an ambivalent attitude towards miracles and rejects any form of discrimination within and against other religions. Apostasy[edit] Apostasy, that is abandonment of Islam by a Muslim and conversion to another religion or atheism, is a religious crime in Islam punishable with death. They keep their head hair long kesh and men wear turbans head hair cover Women may also wear a turban by their choice. They carry a wooden comb, wear an iron bracelet, wear a cotton underwear, and carry a kirpan steel sword. Sex segregation is not required in public places or Sikh temples by Sikhism. For Muslim women, it is highly recommended to cover their hair. Muslim women are required to cover body in public, [57] with some Islamic scholars stating that the Islamic Hadiths require covering the face too. Khitan circumcision and Religious views on female genital mutilation Sikhism does not require circumcision of either males or females, and criticizes the practice. This leads to death, through bleeding, of the animal. Sikhs are prohibited from eating Islamic halal or Jewish kosher style meat because to them, this manner of obtaining meat involves a ritualistic component and a slow death of the animal. This is known as Kutha meat. Baptized Sikhs are strict lacto-vegetarians. Dhimmis were excluded from having to pay Islamic religious tax such as zakat and excluded from observing other Islamic religious obligations. The Golden Temple Harmandir Sahib in Amritsar, India is not only a central religious place of the Sikhs, but also a symbol of human brotherhood and equality. The four entrances of this holy shrine from all four directions, signify that people belonging to every walk of life are equally welcome. The Golden Temple is a holy site for Sikhs and is welcome to people of any faith. Mecca in Saudi Arabia is the central religious place in Islam. Non-Muslims are prohibited from entering the city. Guru Arjan was tortured and executed by Mughal emperor Jahangir. Guru Hargobind , sixth Guru of the Sikhs , after the martyrdom of Guru Arjan saw that it would no longer be possible to protect the Sikh community without the aid of arms. Banda Singh captured Sirhind and laid the foundation of Sikh empire. This is considered as a reason by many historians due to which Malerkotla was the only city not harmed by Banda Singh Bahadur during his military campaign. Ranjit Singh declared during his coronation that Muslims would be governed under Islamic law and appointed many of them in important official positions. The Muslim religious leadership and mosques continuously received state support under Sikh rule. High taxes, according to some contemporary accounts, had depopulated large tracts of the countryside. The two teen converted fire extinguishers into an explosive device. The devices detonated after a wedding party had left for the reception. A gurdwara priest was injured seriously, while two others were treated for minor injuries. The gurdwara building was damaged severely. One of the teens was in deradicalization program.
