When justice is at stake, artists historically have spearheaded challenging conversations. The work in this book bears witness to stories and identities that challenge dominant paradigms. Introduction by Judi Chicago. This book explores the form of the ziggurat a rectangular stepped structure as a motif in the work of General Idea, the artist collective active between and For 14 Rooms, curators Klaus Biesenbach and Hans Ulrich Obrist invited artists to each activate a room and explore the relationship between space, time and physicality with an artwork whose "material" is the human being. The s were a groundbreaking decade for contemporary art in the United Arab Emirates, a radical moment when artists in the UAE explored experimental new formats, formed art collectives and founded journals. Text by Christian Egger, et al. This volume looks at artworks situated between photography and sculpture. Text by Sandy Nairne, Sarah Howgate. Since its inception in , the Berlin Biennale has developed into a primary forum for contemporary art. This sixth Biennale is curated by Kathrin Rhomberg and is themed around the idea of contemporaneity itself. In the s, a group of artists in New York began developing new forms of art that extended beyond the object. This cultural reader, edited by Creative Time curator Nato Thompson, gathers more than artists, thinkers and activists to reflect on the historical roots and current manifestations of democracy in the United States. The second half of the twentieth century witnessed a quite dramatic shift in the nature of white collar employment, from lifetime tenure, often in a very hierarchical work structure, to a new model defined by flatter organizations, job insecurity, shorter tenures, declining attachment between employer and employee, and contingent work.

It is a privilege to have the opportunity to write a foreword to help introduce the history of the College of Business Administration, University of Rhode Island. The timing of this history, which is being published in to help honor the centennial of URI, is most fortuitous because the opportunity to record many of these interviews would have been lost forever within a few short years. Dick has helped document these numerous leadership contributions, and I am very grateful for his effort. There were a number of reasons why I volunteered to research the history of the College. My major academic area is the history of accounting and accounting thought. I have also done a number of projects in "Celebration Accounting" for various accounting groups wanting to publicize their anniversaries. I have these further advantages for doing this project: These four celebrations would require some historical backdrop. The first publication from this historical research was a brief history of the College prepared as a part of the souvenir program of the URI Foundation Ball honoring both the College and Vin Sarni on June 3, The positive responses to the program encouraged me to do the booklet, "The College of Business Administration of the University of Rhode Island: Its Early Years, The booklet was sent to about of our graduates from those years. A number of these graduates commented on the booklet and these comments are included in this book. I have received excellent support from five former and current Deans of the College: The first booklet was published partially through funding raised by Jack Temkin. Contributions were received from: Pat Weeden is thanked for providing memorabilia about her father, George Ballentine. All through these publications, as well as through almost 20 years of other projects, Lois Pazienza, B. Lois is the Secretary of the Accounting Department Laurie Bouthillier has been invaluable in getting the manuscript into its publishing format. Thanks Kevin and Dave. I hope you enjoy this book. Carothers Letter from Sydney V. Robert Hamilton Frederick P. Bradford Reed Boss Robert L. Vigliotti George Smith Robert S. Hence, this history should be more interesting to our students than would be a more administratively oriented history. I hope that our current and past administrators will write their reflections and those could be added to a possible book in celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the College. I also hope the readers will write me their reflections so that these can be included in the book. These items are shown after each interview and should provide some pleasant memories for you. Another important source was Herman F. I urge you to read this book to give a broader background of the history of URI. The second section is a chronology of major events for the College. This provides a more administrative type setting in which to place the interviews and also gives a good picture of where we are today and how we got there. This section is divided into four parts: The interviews are grouped by the last three time spans. It is important to note that the College did start from a good base as the "Prior to the Founding Years" included many business oriented courses. The third section features the graduates of our programs through the years. The Commencement programs until did not list graduates by College. For those reasons, both the list of B. However, the graduation lists from the Commencement programs from were photocopied and presented in the format or very close to it in these programs. I hope that you will like the "more festive" presentation of our graduates. The next two sections list our faculty and our administrators through the years. The appendix includes a copy of the address of Dean A sa Knowles for the dedication of Ballentine Hall in and excerpts from the dedication program. Hitler failed in his Beer Hall Putsch. Mussolini started his fascist dictatorship. The "Charleston" was first introduced. I was a freshman majoring in the General curriculum, when President Howard Edwards announced the program," Mr. I switched my major because I was convinced my family and I did not have the economic resources to pennit me to become a doctor. There was no financial help those days for students, except for a loan fund for seniors. It took three years for Mr. Holt to discover the required courses, as the
