

Chapter 1 : Julia Takes Her Chance by Concordia Merrel

Excerpt from Julia Takes Her Chance I just can 't realize it. But here it is in black and white. A letter from Pelman Barclay, the great actor manager, asking me to call on him at His Highness Theatre, on Friday at three.

Julia isolates Ilsa from the team and tries to kill her on a subway, telling Ilsa that she killed Marshall. Ilsa escapes but Julia returns to a rogue CIA agent, who infiltrates the teams office. Guerrero returns to the office to stop the CIA from hurting his son. Meanwhile, Chance, Ilsa, and Ames go to a hotel Marshall and Ilsa visited a lot and find evidence that could end the hostilities, but when Ilsa finds out that Julia is present, she takes her hostage to the roof. Chance and Ilsa jump off the building, but grab onto a gargoye to hold themselves up as Ames and Winston arrive and order the rogue SOG operatives to surrender, which they do. Guerrero kills the agent with a car bomb. Winston promises Ilsa to send the file she found to the appropriate parties. Ilsa once again tries to move back to London. Chastised by Winston, Chance drives to the airport and asks her to stay, but she had already cancelled her flight plans. She stays in San Francisco with the team. Forbidden love[edit] Even though Julia is the daughter of Arno Brandner , she believes for the first twenty years of her life that Christoph von Anstetten is her father and his son Henning her half-brother. After Julia returns from a trip in the abroad, the young countess returns home to celebrate her twentieth birthday with her family. On the airport, unknowingly to herself she meets her twin-brother Jan and starts to fall in love with him. Clarissa makes several attempts to reunite Julia with her former boyfriend Gero von Sterneck, who soon turns out to be gay before he and Julia can get married. Clarissa then has no other choice to come clean to Jan after he learned the truth from Fiona Beckmann. Jan promises to end things with Julia but stays furious with Clarissa. Julia is heartbroken when Jan leaves her and she tries to take her own life by almost freezing to death in a cold winter night; mourning the lost of her great love. Julia then is diagnosed with leukemia. The truth finally gets out and Julia is shocked by all the lies her mother told her for twenty years. Even though Julia wants to get to know Arno and her siblings, Florian and Susanne, she wants to stay close to Christoph, who keeps being her dad. After Julia knows the truth and Jan seems back in her life, she has a hard time dealing with it. She always tries to be close to him, which ends - more than once - almost in a kiss between brother and sister. Fighting the love[edit] With time Jan and Julia both try to move on with other people. Julia eventually meets Tim Sander and marries him sometime later. Tim gets mad and Julia leaves town to get a clear head. She decides to fly to Lanzarote. Jan follows her and they two have a wonderful time together. They enjoy the refound closeness between them and Julia realizes that she still loves Jan and always will. She decides to swimming, but never returns. The rest is part of a big partly uncovered mystery. Jan tries to find Julia night and day and is sure that she has to be alive, while parts of her friends and family believe she committed suicide out of her forbidden love for Jan. As he thinks that Julia really could have died, he starts a new life with girlfriend Kerstin Richter. Jan is happy that Julia is alive, but wants to spare his sister and himself with their forbidden feelings and decides to move to Paris with Kerstin. After she gives birth to her son Timo , she marries Dr. Ricardo Mendes and starts a new life with him on Mallorca. A very happy Arno takes the next flight and can finally put his arms around his daughter again. In the meanwhile, Clarissa is watching Julia with her family and tries to find out more about her life. She tells him what happened to her and wants him to reunite her with Julia. Arno is strictly against it after what Clarissa has done to her and wants Clarissa to leave as soon as possible. But when Arno talks to Julia about Clarissa, he feels that she has many unanswered questions. However, Julia and Clarissa met for the first time again by accident and Julia is everything but happy to see her mother. She wants Clarissa to stay away from her and specially away from Ricardo and Timo. Slowly, Julia thinks about her mother being alive that they maybe got a second chance since Clarissa seems to have changed. Julia grows closer to her parents again, while Jan has found out that Julia is living near by. Secrets always come out[edit] Clarissa and Arno eventually reunite with Jan and are afraid what Julia would do if she sees Jan again. Even though Clarissa would like to reunite the family, she and Arno also fear the feelings the twins once shared for each other. When Jan and Julia see each other for the first time since Lanzarote, they hug each other and are happy that the other is well. Julia wants Jan to stay away to not put the happiness of her family in danger. Jan even tries to leave the island several times, but is always hold back. First by his daughter Leonie Richter and then by Julia herself. As he sees the twins in a close moment, he gets jealous and thinks that Jan is after his wife. Julia has to explain that Jan is her brother. As Timo is asking after the man who created him, Julia lies to her son and tells him about a random guy she slept with. Timo is angry with his parents and is devastated to find out that Leonie, who he fell in love with, is his cousin. But she and Jan grow closer again and he soon has to promise her that he is strong enough for the both of them to keep their feelings under control. Julia is trying to enjoy the time with her brother, but as soon as the two get close, Julia feels that she still loves Jan with all her heart. Julia tells him the story of them being kept apart for the first twenty years of their lives, but holds back on how they met. As Ricardo sees for himself what is going on between the twins, he punches Jan and wants him far away from his family. At that time, Clarissa already paid a maid to seduce Ricardo and keep his fall on tape. As the twins are about to make love to each other, Timo walks in and sees his mother in bed with her brother. Julia also has to tell him that Tim died several years ago - saying he committed suicide, even though Julia mentioned in a conversation with Clarissa that she knows that Tanja von Anstetten murdered him. Arno arrives and finds his family in pieces as Ricardo knows everything and Timo is missing. Even though not knowing how to deal with the situation they all agree that they need to find Timo. This puts Jan on a search with Ricardo, where Jan tells him that he loves Julia. The two end up fighting and Jan falling over a cliff, holding onto a rock. Jan begs Ricardo for help, but he sees a chance to get rid of the man he hates. Timo arrives to the scene and tries to help Jan, eventually bringing Ricardo to help too. After Jan has been rescued, Clarissa and Arno want to talk with their children. But instead of realizing that things have gotten too far, Jan finally wants a life with Julia and asks her to go away with him. Arno is outraged and wants his son to be responsible, while Clarissa seems helpless in this situation. Jan tells his parents that he and Julia never really were brother and sister. Arno asks Jan what he expects and how a life with his sister would be possible in his mind, considering the two have children of their own now to think of. Jan tells his father that he once disappeared out of his life and could do this again. Arno takes his promise seriously and tells Julia that Clarissa is secretly working on causing trouble for Tanja. Julia is outraged since Clarissa promised that she has changed and that this time around family would be more important to her. In the end, Clarissa tells him to stay away from Tanja and that she is responsible for her ten years in prison. Timo moves out anyway and is planning to move in with Leonie. Julia is heartbroken and sits on the pool remembering Jan to a stone he gave her as a goodbye present. As the stone falls into the water, Julia wants to get it back and is stuck herself in the end; fighting for her life. Julia and Jan reunite and finally can start a life together in Lanzarote. Considered to be the first protagonist, the love story with her twin-brother Jan drew three million viewers in front of their TV on a daily basis. Even though their love is forbidden, fans found themselves rooting for Jan and Julia and wished for a happy ending. Fans were left with tears when Niehaus decided to leave the show in and Julia went missing after the famous vacation with Jan in Lanzarote, which was seen as "a classic end to a Romeo and Juliet -story". When Julia was recast in , fans had mixed feelings over new actress Nina Bott while critics saw Bott as a popular soap veteran and publicized much on the "scandalous story about an incestuous relationship between brother and sister". The character of Julia was criticized in its short run for her lying to her husband and son about basically her entire life, while the love story between Jan and Julia once again proved popular. It also met with some disgust to try to pair brother and sister. The majority however hoped that Jan and Julia would finally get her happy ending. Julia is one of the most remembered and recognized characters when it comes Verbotene Liebe.
