Are you sure you want to delete this answer? Yes Sorry, something has gone wrong. The secret with being "easy to remember" is actually understanding the passage, know what is being said and say it from your heart. Choosing a passage might depend if you are male or female. My favorite passage is from Act 2, Scene 2. This is where Juliet is standing at her window and Romeo sees her from afar. This is a great passage that is often overlooked as it comes right before the famous "Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou, Romeo. It is the east, and Juliet is the sun. Arise, fair sun, and kill the envious moon, Who is already sick and pale with grief, That thou her maid art far more fair than she: Be not her maid, since she is envious; Her vestal livery is but sick and green And none but fools do wear it; cast it off. It is my lady, O, it is my love! O, that she knew she were! She speaks yet she says nothing: Her eye discourses; I will answer it. Two of the fairest stars in all the heaven, Having some business, do entreat her eyes To twinkle in their spheres till they return. What if her eyes were there, they in her head? The brightness of her cheek would shame those stars, As daylight doth a lamp; her eyes in heaven Would through the airy region stream so bright That birds would sing and think it were not night. See, how she leans her cheek upon her hand! O, that I were a glove upon that hand, That I might touch that cheek! O, speak again, bright angel! I am a high school English teacher.

What, an exclamation of impatience at not finding her; so why frequently in the same way: This is the matter, this is what I want to speak to you about: Faith, in faith, assuredly: Lammas-tide, "a name for the first of August Thus, for Christmas, Hallowmass, Lammas, they said Christ-tide, Hallow-tide, Lamb-tide," Lammas being in those days popularly supposed to be derived from lamb and tide. Susan, her own daughter. She was too good for me, I did not deserve so good a child, and therefore she was taken from me It has been supposed by some that Shakespeare is here alluding to the earthquake that took place in England in , and that therefore the play was written in ; by others that he alludes to the far more serious earthquake in Italy in The word is from the A. Skeat has shown that the word has really nothing to do with either worm or wood, but is from the A. His Birthplace and its Neighbourhood, p. It is universally applied to inanimate things: Heywood, The Fair Maid of the West, iv. See note on i. May God set the mark of his favour upon you, show that He loves you! As Shakespeare makes his heroine only fourteen, Lady Capulet would be twenty-eight; while her husband, having done masking some thirty years, must be at least three score [60 years old]. Knight veils the disparity, and perhaps improves the passage [by reading a for your], but we believe without authority" Staunton. It could not better be proportioned. In old books the text was illustrated by comments in the margin, to which the reader was often directed by an index finger. For other instances in Shakespeare of a face compared to a book, cp. These two lines summarize the whole passage from "This precious book" to "golden story," and are entirely opposed to the interpretations of How to cite the explanatory notes:

Chapter 3 : Quotations - Romeo and Juliet - William Shakespeare

One of the best scene of Final Season's Lost. See other scene on my channel.

Tension between the Montague and Capulet families has been mounting until a fight erupts in the streets. Mercutio is stabbed by Tybalt, who runs away. Mercutio curses both families in his final words, wishing a plague on both families. Romeo is discreetly referencing the prologue, where the audience learns that Romeo and Juliet are fated for misfortune. But Romeo also feels Fortune is being especially cruel; he just got married, and he might be put to death. In the last two lines of the play, Prince Escalus remarks on the lives of Juliet and Romeo. Their classic love story has been told and retold to every generation since first hitting the stage in Romeo and Juliet. Some of the most quoted lines from Shakespeare are from this scene "But, soft! It is the east, and Juliet is the sun! Romeo, our young hero, already loves Juliet. In his words of adoration, he compares Juliet to a sunrise. He finds her love to be bright, sunny, and warm. Juliet is thinking about Romeo and his family ties. In Shakespearean times, "wherefore" meant "why". Juliet is asking why Romeo is a Montague. That which we call a rose, By any other word would smell as sweet. Still thinking about names, Juliet expresses a very modern idea. Your name does not define you. In her world, your name or the family that you come from sets out how people view you. Parting is such sweet sorrow, that I shall say good night till it be morrow. In her farewell, Juliet expresses her sorrow about being away from her love, Romeo. But their parting is sweet, because the next time they meet, their wedding will take place.
