Finished quilt will measure 36 inches square. Start by selecting a few different fabrics. My thought process is to choose one multi-colored print the large heather bailey floral in this case to start, and then to draw out coordinating colors from that fabric and select other prints that will complement it. Fiskars tools are so helpful in cutting fabric and constructing my quilt tops. Simply fold your fabric in half at the crease mark and the Fiskars ruler will then cover the length of the fabric. Use the 45 mm Comfort Grip Rotary Cutter to make straight edge cuts through 2 layers at a time trimming your fabric for the center blocks in this case down to 5. Then further trim each strip to 5. You will need 36 of these 5. Next assemble your squares 6 across, 6 down in a large open area, moving squares around until you create a pattern that is pleasing to your eye. After each of the six rows are seamed together, press seams on each row flat with an iron – all seams pressed in the same direction. After 36 squares are all joined, press seams that were just sewn all in the same direction. Trim four 5 inch wide strips of fabric so they will measure 5x Next repeat the process with the other two border strips, placing on top and bottom of the in progress quilt top. Press all border seams in one direction. Your quilt top is now complete! After this, lay your quilt top on top of the batting, right side up. Smooth to make sure that there are no wrinkles. Time to baste your quilt in preparation for machine quilting. Simply start at the center of your quilt and work your way outward, securing all layers of your quilt-sandwich by using one safety-pin per block and enough on the border to be sure that everything is safe and in place. And then cutting the edge off around the squared-off seams. After all strips are cut, machine stitch each together at right angles, with a diagonal straight stitch from corner to corner – as shown here: Repeat until all five strips are sewn together, and then unfold to create one continuous binding strip. Use your iron to press to crease binding strip, folding in half lengthwise. Use straight pins to pin binding on top side of quilt, rough side outward, folded side inward toward middle of quilt. Make sure to leave about a 8 inch tail hanging off quilt, unpinned at the point where you start pinning. When you get to a corner, make a little upwards folded triangle as shown here: Place pin in upwards triangle, and on either side. Fold left side strip down and trim as shown. Lay right side binding strip inside of folded strip piece as shown. Machine stitch again the walking foot works best for this! When you get to a corner, backstitch a bit to secure, then lift sewing foot, turn quilt, lower foot and start stitching that side of quilt. Fold binding over to backside of quilt, pin in place, and use a small sharp needle and thread to hand stitch binding to back of quilt. Use a thread that coordinates with your binding, and make the bulk length of your stitches through the interior of the quilt – so that stitches appear invisible. And when the binding is complete, you will have a beautiful and finished baby quilt completed all on your own! While I continue to learn more about quilting, and to find tips and tricks that work for me with each quilt that I create, one thing remains constant in the process:
