December 1, by Elizabeth Bird The lists begin! However, I do like to distinguish between my age groups when I present this list. Those of us with babies know all too well the power your large-headed children wield. I once had about ten Katz books going in continuous rotation as my children circled through them again and again. Any kid would want to gum its corners and play with its elements. Katz, now and forever. Babies heck, I like to play with these tabs. Gotta beat and you can dance to it. The photography in all cases is excellent, however. Sometimes a board book with photos will feel as though someone took a bunch of stock images and then ascribed random words to them. A First Book of Emotions by Molly Magnuson There are two things that they will tell you about early cognitive development and board books. The first is that babies like high contrast books. A lot of black and white images. Well, weird as it may sound, I found almost none of those in With this book, mission accomplished! One of the best baby face books to come out in recent years. Corey Lunn When you have a baby of your very own, pulling tabs on a book becomes as cathartic to the parent as it is stimulating to the child. A parent has to read a board book repeatedly. And then, when the kid starts pulling them themselves? Your job on this world is done. Pat yourself on the back and enjoy this one in particular. Time for Bed by Thierry Bedouet Kooky that this book was created by someone entirely different from that previously mentioned Farm Day book. They pair so well together! What Does Baby Want? Or is it the breast? Right, right, I always get this one mixed up. What Is Baby Gorilla Doing? Very well then, I am biased. But you cannot deny that this gorilla is a star in the making. Love the photography that makes this fun for everyone to read. The book takes care to acknowledge letters that may not exist in one language or another. That said, I just love how this is done. Meet one of the few. Irene Chan I know. You thought the slot was going to go to Baby Loves Thermodynamics. Before and After by Jean Jullien Jean Jullien had a bit of a magical year when it came the American publishing scene. Black Bear, Red Fox: Colours in Cree by Julie Flett Flett makes a reappearance on our lists and well that she should. Check out her other books here if you get a chance. Not with all those tiny tabs and complexity. Yet when all is said and done, this is the Clive book nearest and dearest to my heart because in it Clive is once again breaking down gender stereotypes left, right, and central. By Chieu Anh Urban Now this is a bit of clever mechanical engineering not seen in a board book format before. In truth, what we have here is a straightforward display of color mixing but for very young children. You see, on the right-hand side there are two wheels of color this image does them a great disservice as they have very distinct hues. If you turn one of the wheels to blue and the other one to yellow, the inside of the flower will turn green. I was reminded of David Carter in his heyday as I read through this. Carter Again with the pop-ups! Flora and the Chicks: So on the one hand I wanted to just include one Flora title here, but then I was struck by the fact that choosing only one book would be a crime and a shame. How am I supposed to choose between counting and opposites? What cruel world would place such a choice upon me? In the end, I went with both. And, if Molly Idle is listening, I would like to request a kookaburra in a future Flora book. I absolutely adore kookaburras. Years ago he conquered the board book field with his magnificent Chronicle series Trains Go, and Trucks Go, etc. This oddly vertical board book may be the bane of your short little shelves, but for kids everywhere its tall stance will make grabby hands happy. In My Garden by Ruth A. Maddie Frost A sly little number. When you find those books, grab them. Hold them close and tight and never let them go because they are going to save your sanity when you have to read infinite numbers of titles on cold snowy days. And in , this is their natural born leader. Though not as large as a full-sized picture book, this title is bigger than most board books and could find a home with a wide range of types of readers. Lines by Sarvinder Naberhaus, ill. This book has aspirations to be more than just your average board book. I say you let it do its crazy thing. If all the kids that read it grow up to become astrophysicists, so much the better. The books are sturdy and you can always download the music that goes with the words. Other times that book will be seared into the very fabric of my soul. This looks suspiciously similar to those artsy board books museum shops like to carry, which please aesthetic adults and bore small children to tears. And actually there was a Matisse board book in the same series on the list last year that I thought was keen. But this numbers book? I just like how they play with colors and numbers all the way through. One Happy Tiger by Catherine Rayner And then there are those math books that are so deftly woven into the fabric of a story in this case, a lonely tiger looking to make friends that you forget all about those books where the numbers are shoehorned in. An Interactive Recipe Book which is also by Lotta Nieminen but of the two books I feel that this is the stronger contender. There are elements in this book that could be removed and never replaced. So buy it up, library systems! Your patrons will thank you for it. Rapunzel by Chloe Perkins, ill. Archana Sreenivasan Just me, or are the board books a little on the white side this year? Scroll through this and see how many brown faces you encounter. Not enough, is the clear answer. You could easily work it into a hibernation storytime with little effort. Saltzberg, I commend you. I mean it just makes good, clean sense. Don Clark Hope you like big! Hope you like bright! Hope you like eye-blindingly shiny! This book is all those things and much much more. Gorgeous little creature, this is. Interested in the other lists of the month?

Discuss Little Kitten's Book of Colors (Wiggly Eye Board Books) on the - 'Cat Book Reviews' forum of I-Love-Cats. We are the place for all talk about 'Little Kitten's Book of Colors (Wiggly Eye Board Books)'.

We were MORE than excited to begin this row. We even made a crazy Pumpkins in Space sensory bin to represent our fall row of this book! I created a Bible verse printable pack for this row. Parker worked on his Bible verse all throughout this row. While Parker worked on his Bible verse puzzle, the older kids completed their tracing page. Goodnight Moon is such a comforting bedtime story, but nighttime can be a struggle for many kids. Everyone feels scared sometimes and we need to know how to handle our fears. This unit teaches children to focus on God rather than their fears. Have Courage Wands We kicked off our Bible unit with have courage wands. The kids painted their wands with glitter glue and set them aside to dry. They turned out totally adorable! Snuff Out Fear We used an object lesson with candles and an empty jar. We talked about fear, being afraid, and what happens when we feel scared. We lit our candles and watched the flame. When we focus on our fears, or whatever is making us feel afraid, our fear gets bigger like a fire. The more we focus in it, the more fuel it adds to the flame. This was a VERY effective object lesson. We did this several times and each time was as great as the first! Stories to Build Courage We read several stories about feeling scared, building courage, and keeping our eyes on Jesus. Studying that went right along with learning about having courage and trusting God. I found a really cute Armor of God craft from http: The kids put their soldiers together while we read our book. They turned out really cute. It a great way for Jordan to learn all the various parts of the armor of God and what they stand for. He was all set for the Harvest Festival. Nursery Rhymes There are so many references to nursery rhymes in the book. The kids gobbled their breakfast while watching the animated version on Epic. I prepped all the constructions paper pieces, foam letters, and art supplies and placed them on the table. The kids glued the moon pieces to a Phases of the Moon printable I found, printed at half the size. They glued this chart to half a sheet of pink construction paper. They glued on the kitten and moon, decorated with some glitter glue, drew a face on the cat, and added their foam letters.

Chapter 3 : Cats and Kittens Activities & Fun Ideas for Kids | ChildFun

For collectors wanting a complete list for collecting Little Golden Books. The list doesn't include the many educational workbooks and activity books, coloring books, video games, paper dolls and related Golden Book toys that are available online and at some retail stores.

Cat and Kitten Arts and Crafts Calico Cats Supply your students with large textured, striped, and patterned wallpaper pieces to make calico cats. Cut out of large construction paper a cat silhouette. Have each child place the cat on the wallpaper of their choice and trace around the cat shape. Glue eyes, nose, whiskers and a tail with construction paper, yarn, or curling ribbon. Pre-fold vellum paper in half lengthwise or draw line through center of paper. Demonstrate how to paint the bottom half of vellum green and the top half blue to the line. While paint is drying, demonstrate how to trace and cut out kitten pattern and then glue on picture. Tape divider is to separate materials. Marker is to draw face on kitten. Tray is to collect scraps from cutting. Cat Hand Print Use a wallpaper sample book to let the children cut out a rug for their cat to sit on. Add facial features, whiskers, etc. The Cat of Many Colors Read this poem while doing the activity below Once there was a cat all white Who wished that he were black as night. He was as thirsty as could be, And in the cupboard, what did he see? Grape juice right before his eyes! Then, to his surprise, He turned from white to something new: Deep dark purple was his hue. He peered into his little cup, Saw tomato juice, and lapped it up. He soon became the brightest red. He spied an orange on the floor, And pounced in it, and played some more. As he played this little game, Orange was what he became. He played with some blueberries, too, So suddenly the cat turned blue. A sour lime sat on the ground. The kitty licked it, and he found That he felt strange and not so keen, For he had turned the color green. Now he was a sad little fellow, So he ate a banana and turned bright yellow. Just then he saw a tasty treat, Another food he had to eat. A long black piece of licorice Gave the little cat his wish. He ate it all, and soon he was Black from his head down to his paws! Why did this happen? You guessed right, If you blamed it all on Halloween night. Cut a cat shape out of white, purple, red, orange, blue, green, yellow, and black construction paper. Cut out a shape for each of your children or if children are old enough have them do it and attach each shape to a craft stick to make a stick puppet. Give a stick puppet to each child. Before you read the poem, ask the children to listen carefully for the color of their cat puppet. When they hear the color, have them wave their puppet in the air. Cat Costumes Cut construction paper into strips and a variety of triangular and circular shapes. Invite each child to glue two ear shapes to a strip to make an ear headband. Help children use washable markers or eyebrow pencils to draw whiskers on their faces. Use safety pins to attach yarn tails to their clothing. Kitty Cat Yarn Designs Give each child a sheet of dark construction paper and several pieces of yarn in a variety of colors and sizes. Invite children to dip the yarn in the glue and place the yarn on the colored paper to make creative designs. Kitten Baskets Give each child a small cardboard box and a cat shape cut from posterboard or calendars to fit inside the box. Set out materials such as construction paper scraps, felt tip markers, cat stickers, cotton balls, fabric pieces and glue. Then let the children decorate their cardboard boxes and line them with soft materials to make sleeping baskets for their kittens. The Three Little Kittens a Using paper plates or paper bags, have the children make cat masks b Make a yarn collage, the older children may be able to manipulate the yarn to make pictures! If using wallpaper, play a form of Memory Game, having children try to remember which mittens match when placed face down on a playing surface Kitty Collage Let Children find and cut or tear out pictures of cats from greeting cards and magazines. Paste their cats on pieces of constructions paper. Cat Prints Make paw prints using a raw potato cut to resemble paw prints and tempera paints. Cat Puppets Make sock puppet cats using felt for ears and quilting or heavy thread for whiskers. Use marker pens for eyes and any other decorations. Cat Collage Have children make a cat collage from pictures cut from a magazine. Cover the shapes with clear self-stick paper and cut each one into several large interlocking puzzle pieces. This activity is perfect for small fingers. For older children, increase the difficulty by cutting each puzzle into smaller pieces. Yarn Balls Set up baskets at varying distances from a masking tape line on the floor. Toss yarn balls into the baskets. Bean Bag Toss Make a cat shape on plywood or a big piece of heavy cardboard, with holes of different sizes cut out. The children can try from varying distances to throw bean bags through the holes. CopyCat Have one child be the cat and clap a rhythm for the group. The other children listen and then be the copycats. They clap the same rhythm as he cat did. Another child now becomes the cat and creates a rhythm for the copycats to imitate. Cat and Mouse Cut and glue together a simple cat shape from black paper. Cover a coffee can- the mouse hole- with another piece of black paper. Make up enough small mice out of felt by cutting them out in teardrop shapes. Add a pompon and length of yarn for the tail. Glue sequins on for eyes or draw them on with markers. Next, turn a coffee can on its side and place it on top of a table. Place a dozen crackers leading up to the mouse hole. Have each child choose a mouse and the teacher picks the cat. Then let each child roll the die and move his or her mouse or cat that number of crackers. Let play continue, encouraging the children to try to move their mice into the mouse hole before the cat gets there. Game ends when the cat reaches the mouse hole or when all mice have safely entered. File Folder Games Make about 10 sets of cats and kitten pairs. Each pair should be a different color. For example a cat and kitten that are red and a cat and kitten that are blue, etc. Glue the cats to the file folder and laminate for durability. Have your children get on their hands and knees. Have them stretch like cats by leaning each shoulder one way, then the other. Cat Rhymes List rhyming words on a chart or chalkboard: Imitate the sounds a cat makes when happy, contented, angry, frightened, hungry. Act out cats as they might behave in these various moods. Point out that lions and tigers are members of the cat family. How would you feel if you met a hungry tiger? Introduce pet care items explaining or demonstrating how each item is used and allow the children to examine the items. Including the items above, have the children set up a cat care area using stuffed animals brought from home. The children will pretend to care for their kittens. Let all children pretend to be kittens and crawl to the play area. Animal Hospital The children can brainstorm ways to make the area look like an animal hospital. Let them make a sign and decorate the area themselves.

Continuing Accord's successful Eyeball Animation series, Ten Little Puppies is written in the same lyrical style as the popular "Ten in the Bed" childhood nursery rhyme; however, the sing-song narrative and full-color illustrations inside this title are even more engaging and entertaining.

For best results use only: Title, Author, Date Range, and Keywords. You will be able to limit your search further once you reach the results page. This is the best book search engine on the net, from a huge Canadian company originally started by booksellers. Millions of books of all kinds from dealers all over the world, some not found in libraries. Most of the English language books ever published: You should limit your search at least to Format: You can do this on the advanced search page or once you arrive at the results, using the left hand column, as with AbeBooks. Often you can find more about the content of a title by going to an individual library holding. Once you have narrowed down a possible title, try Amazon. The colour option on Google is working better and better. I have started using Images on Bing. Look in the left hand column to limit your search to these. A few words can help: If all you can remember is a few words, try Google. Put the words in quotes. Use only one or two, essential, easily-spelled, keywords. Try this sample Google search: Selling One or Two Books. Probably the easiest place for an individual to sell books like those above is on Amazon. Look up your book, click on the picture, then look in the blue box for "Have one to sell? If, and only if, Amazon has listed the book in the past, will you be able to list also. Ebay is also very easy and inexpensive to use for a few books and it allows you more room to describe the books. For pricing your book, it is easier and more accurate to use the AbeBooks. Then double check on Amazon because prices there are sometimes higher. The more care you put into describing your books, the more likely you are to sell them.
