The Longarm books are a series of western novels featuring the character of Custis Long, who is nicknamed Longarm, a U. Deputy Marshal based in Denver, Colorado in the s. The series is written by "Tabor Evans", a house pseudonym used by a number of authors at Jove Books. Lou Cameron helped create the character and wrote a number of the early books in the series. The first book was published in and new ones are still being added at a rate of approximately one a month, totalling over books in the series. In addition to the regular series, there is a series of "giant editions" which are longer novels. The Longarm series is a mainstay of the "adult western" genre which arose in the s. These books are distinguished from classical westerns by the inclusion of more explicit sex and violence. In addition to Cameron, other authors known to have written books in the series include Melvin Marshall , Will C. Wallmann , Peter Brandvold and Harry Whittington.

February Learn how and when to remove this template message Lou Cameron June 20, 1911 – November 25, 1987, was an American writer [1] and a comic book artist. Before becoming a writer, Cameron illustrated comics such as Classics Illustrated and miscellaneous horror comics. One of his first written stories, "The Last G. It appeared in Real War volume 2 number 2, October His work usually boasted muscular, no-nonsense prose through a prism of wry cynicism, sharp observation, and a signature combination of gusto with pulp-style gritty realism; he was also expert at devising unexpected, 11th hour plot twists. Fantastically versatile and prolific, his work ran the gamut in quality from inspired artistry, to for-the-buck shock sensationalism. But his style remained individual and unmistakable. Lueddecke , a bestseller in Europe, had not been published in English before work began on the film. The translation, by H. Noerdlinger , had been commissioned by 20th Century Fox for in-studio use only. It was probably deemed unfit for commercial publication on its own terms. Thus, the movie tie-in paperback novel that hit the book racks in , copyright to the publisher, Fawcett, contains, on its title page, the by-lines of author and translator, and under that, "Edited for Gold Medal Books by Lou Cameron. He also wrote two novels based on TV series: The three other books in that series were written, also as Howard Lee, by Barry N. Maltzberg and Ron Goulart. Cameron also created the character Longarm whose adventures, starting in the late s, pretty much defined the then-new sex-and-sagebrush subgenre of the "adult" Western under the house name "Tabor Evans" and wrote at least 52 of the more-than books in the series. He wrote the Renegade series as "Ramsay Thorne", and the Stringer series under his own name. He wrote in estimate over books, including titles below compiled from copyright records at the Library of Congress.
