On top of your private lessons with David, tuition includes Lesson Material - Study songs, exercises, transcriptions This will give you an opportunity to meet other harmonica students? This gives you the opportunity to place what you? All you need are your harps commonly the A Harmonica to get started and the practice time to make it happen! The Early Years Having played saxophone and trumpet as a youth, David already had a solid musical foundation before playing the harmonica at age fourteen. At age sixteen local harmonica legend Gary Smith took David under his wing as a private student. Gary also introduced David to the local blues jam scene and even invited him to participate in some of the local harmonica blowouts. By age eighteen David was studying music theory in college and started teaching harmonica at local music stores and institutes. This book was the first serious blues harmonica method to be released in the market. David is also an active writer for various publications. Workshops David is the founder and head instructor of Harmonica Masterclass Workshops. Founded in , the focus of these workshops has been to make quality hands-on instruction available to the masses. Classes range in size from 20 participants to participants, depending on program type and location. David also employs the top educators in the world for these workshops, such as Joe Filisko and Dennis Gruenling, as well as top artists in today? David teaches on average fifty private students a month. David has recorded three CDs: David has Worked or Played with: On the other hand, finding a great musician who is also a gifted teacher is a rare gift. David Barrett is an outstanding teacher. He is able to describe corrective actions or new techniques in multiple ways, finding a way so that I will "get it". He is willing to adapt to my pace and style of learning. But he also provides the discipline and motivation I need to push myself, and to focus on a small number of challenges at one time. I look forward to each lesson. In just a few lessons David Barrett not only took me to the next level but gave me the ability, confidence, and understanding to take myself to even greater levels beyond my expectations. David Barrett put me on the right track and offered the feedback necessary to point me in the right direction. His teaching style makes it easy for anyone to understand the instrument and improve, regardless of what level they are currently at! I have now begun the long process of working on the ton of stuff you crammed in that two hours. I bet you saved me about 10 years or so. You have a real talent for communicating your vast knowledge. I appreciated his ability to teach the techniques required to play the blues in a systematic fashion that balanced a formal music background with the improvised style of the blues. I made very rapid progress with David and recommend him without reservation to anyone seeking to improve their tone and technical repertoire. His books are the best at incorporating music theory and blues and are for those seeking a rigorous approach to learning the harmonica as an instrument. Steven Scates "I use my journey into learning the harmonica as a metaphor for the learning process. I think it is good for my kids to watch me work at something, struggle, and then master it. I think that it helps my teaching of residents and medical students, reminding me what it is like to learn something that does not seem all that hard after you have mastered it. I know about good teaching and bad. You are a superb teacher. I, the student, am better for having spent time with you. The material is so clear and useful, especially for the advanced and intermediate student. No one has the material to the extent Dave has. I mean, he wrote the books, literally. My lessons at School of the Blues [with David Barrett] have changed my efforts to the highest possible efficiency, and improvements have exceeded my hopes. For a deceptively simple instrument, Dave has revealed intricacies of technique that I never knew existed, and in a short year has elevated my playing to new levels. He does it all with modesty and good humor, qualities not always associated with a great harp player! Since then a new world of harmonica playing has been opened up to me. What I once thought of as a cool, but limited instrument is now the means to the ultimate in musical expression. With Dave coaching you, the learning will never stop. Little time is wasted on areas of marginal benefit; conversely, the lessons tend to deal with the most important areas in need of improvement. In summary, the lessons are highly relevant. David has a clarity of expression characteristically absent from music teachers I have had.
