The Cinnamon Applesauce Heart Ornaments will make your house smell delicious! And if your little boy wants to make something nontraditional, check out the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle Christmas Ornaments: An easy DIY ornament, they just scream Christmas and I can only imagine how beautiful they would look hanging on the Christmas tree. All you have to do is melt some spare peppermint candies in fun Christmas shapes using metal cookie cutters! Be sure to save some candies for yourself too. You can buy them in big bundles at Target, Walmart, and nearly any dollar store around! After making your Christmas cookies this year, use the cookie cutters to make these beautiful cookie cutter ornaments. They would be great for personalized gifting as well! Now you can put them to good use with this wonderful tutorial for handmade jersey pom pom Christmas ornaments! These ornaments look great on the tree and make the perfect Christmas craft project for kids of all ages. It would be so fun to fill a mini tree with all pom pom ornaments. This project is fun. Instead of adding them to our growing landfills, turn them into festive snowman ornaments to keep or give as gifts! Simply paint the discarded keys all white and then add fun and festive decorations like pom-pom and pipe cleaner earmuffs, fabric scraps or yarn scarves, pink paint cheeks and a beaded string to hang on the Christmas tree. All you need is a recycled cork, some basic craft paint, a picture hanger from the hardware store and a length of twine or ribbon. A few crafty touches and you will have created this adorable Christmas ornament! I also think it would be beautiful to use as a gift tag on Christmas presents. A little craft paint, ball ornaments, a permanent marker and some tiny thumbs are all you need to help children make a keepsake ornament for recipients to enjoy for years to come. Any grandparent, teacher, or family friend would love being gifted this ornament around the holidays. Upgrade a Plain Glass Ornament.
