Christ the Redeemer Statue: A comprehensive guidebook to visiting the Rio de Janeiro landmark atop Corcovado Mountain. IMPORTANT UPDATE: I apologize but the sales of the e-books My Rio Travel Guide, Christ the Redeemer statue and Sugar Loaf has been indefinitely discontinued due to my lack of time to update the content.

Rio de Janeiro Brazil has many exciting cities, ranging from pretty colonial towns and coastal hideouts to hectic, lively metropolises; these are a few of the more prominent travel destinations: Noteworthy buildings include a basket-shaped cathedral, the beautiful Arches Palace seat of the Ministry of Justice and others. Major destination for Argentines during the summer months. Fortaleza -- The fifth biggest city in Brazil, blessed with beautiful beaches. Home of the Iracema Beach street market. A good base for exploring the beaches of the northeastern coast, including Jericoacoara. Manaus - Located in the heart of the Amazon, is the capital of Amazonas State and it is also the biggest city of the Amazon. The best place to go to visit the Amazon rainforest. Recife - A city in the Northeast region, originally settled by Dutch colonizers. Nicknamed "The Brazilian Venice", it is built on several islands linked by many bridges. Rich in history, art and folklore. Do not miss neighboring Olinda and Porto de Galinhas. The city is also a gateway to the amazing archipelago of Fernando de Noronha. Rio de Janeiro - World famous, beautiful city that welcomes visitors with a big statue of an open-armed Jesus atop Corcovado Hill. Salvador - The first capital of Brazil is home to a unique blend of indigenous, African and European cultures. Its Carnival fun is famous, and the influence of African culture and religion is remarkable. From there, two other islands can be reached: Venezuelan citizens may enter the country with a valid ID card and stay up to 60 days. No visa is required for stays of up to 90 days from holders of passports from these countries, unless otherwise indicated: Note that the immigration officer has the right to restrict your visa to less than 90 days, if he deems fit. This has been done routinely for lone male travellers arriving in Fortaleza, allegedly to combat prostitution tourism. He will then state the number of days e. Citizens from all other countries complete list [1] do require a visa. The fees vary depending on reciprocity: The reciprocity, however, also frequently applies to visa validity: US citizens can be granted visas valid up to 10 years and, likewise, Canadian citizens for up to 5. This electronic visa is valid for multiple entries within two years and stays of up to 90 days in a one-year period and costs USD The visa process is particularly tedious for US citizens, because Brazil has a reciprocal visa policy with all countries, and special attention should be paid. There are several consulates in the country but you MUST apply to the consulate that covers your jurisdiction. You must submit a copy of your ID or a utility bill as proof of residence even if that is not listed anywhere. Visa sections do not accept telephone calls and you may have to email them in advance to clarify any specific situation. For a tourist visa, you MUST submit a copy of your plane ticket or reservation, a photo, and your signature. As of Dec, you need to upload the photo and the signature online and the files must have specific sizes. The photo needs to have a 1. Each consulate will list the processing time, unless there is a life-or-death emergency, they would not process your application sooner than stated. The consulate would not even notify an applicant if documents are missing. If you do not have all the documents, your application will be denied, fee will be charged, and processing time starts from 0. Apply 2 to 3 months in advance or go in person if possible. Tourist visas including those granted on the spot in immigration control, as for most Europeans can be extended at any office of the Policia Federal. All state capitals, and most border towns and international ports have one. Tourist visas only be extended once, for a maximum of 90 days, and under no circumstances can you be granted more than days with a tourist visa for any day period. You should contact the federal police about 1 week before your visa expires. You may be asked for an outbound ticket book a fully refundable one on the internet, then cancel when your visa is extended, and a proof of subsistence for which your credit card is mostly accepted. Do not pay the fee until you have spoken with a federal police officer about your case. Failure to enter Brazil within 90 days will invalidate the visa, no matter how long it is otherwise valid for. Some federal police officers have mistakenly given foreigners the even number stamp upon entering. If you have the even number stamp and try to extend the visa in a city that is not your port of entry, you will be told to return to the city where you received the incorrect stamp so that it may be corrected before you can receive the extension. By law you are required to produce your outbound ticket upon entry, but this is only enforced in exceptional cases. You will be made to pay this at the border crossing. As this can take time, it could be wise to do it a few days up front at a federal police office, especially if you have a domestic to international flight connection. The federal police will then give you 8 days to get out of the country. When you are travelling from certain tropical regions to Brazil you need a yellow fever vaccination and the certificate showing you had this. Note that it is illegal to bring in animals, meat, dairy, seeds, plants, eggs, honey, fruit, or any kind of non-processed food without a permit. By plane[ edit ] Your legal rights and duties as an air passenger under Brazilian law Free check-in baggage allowance: On international flights departing from Brazil, all passengers are entitled to check-in at least 2 bags each weighing up to 32 kg free of charge. On domestic flights within Brazil on aircraft with more than 31 seats , all passengers are entitled to check-in bags that weigh up to 23kg in total free of charge. Assistance from your airline in the event of a flight delay, cancellation or refused boarding: Many undersubscribed flights within Brazil can be had for bargain prices. Other direct flights include: Taag Angola to Luanda about 3 times a week. From Oceania there are services available to Brazil through connections in intermediate stops: Sydney is also served by Ethiad Airways via Abu Dhabi. The Northeastern capitals have slightly shorter flying times to Europe and North America: TAP Portugal [5] is the foreign airline with most destinations in Brazil, from Lisbon and Porto , and provides extensive connection onwards to Europe and Africa. Air travel in Brazil has increased exponentially in the past few years, partly as a result of the poor condition of many Brazilian roads qv and the absence of any viable railroad network cf India. It is still relatively inexpensive with bargains sometimes available and easily the best option for long distance travel within the country. Some major airports, particularly those in Sao Paulo and Rio, are, however, becoming very congested. By car[ edit ] The main border crossings are at:

Praia da Moreninha on the Guanabara Bay, but often not clean enough for swimming Cariocas have a unique beach culture, with a code of customs which outlanders even Brazilians from other cities can misconstrue easily. The majority of females wear thong bikinis fio dental. Until the s, men and boys wore speedos, but then wearing bermuda shorts and baggy trunks became more common. Speedos "sungas" in Portuguese , especially with a square leg cut, have made a comeback. In contrast to women, it is not the cultural norm for men to wear thong swimwear in Rio, and the tiny minority who do so will feel conspicuous. Jammers are less common but still accepted. Walking vendors on the beach are often the best place to buy Brazilian swimwear with low prices and a wide choice. It is important to look after your possessions, particularly on the beaches most popular with tourists - Copacabana and Ipanema. If you do take valuables to the beach, keep them in front of you while sitting or under your head while lying down. You wait for the wave to come behind you then swim on top of it until it crumbles next to the sand. Some even accept credit cards. All along the beaches there are also permanent vendors who will sell you a beer and also rent you a beach chair and an umbrella for a few Reais. Corcovado[ edit ] Viewing Rio from top of the m high Corcovado meaning hunchback hill with its landmark statue of Cristo Redentor Christ the Redeemer is most impressive and a truly breathtaking experience. Pedro II ordered the construction of the railroad to Corcovado and, in , a steam train brought the first visitors up the steep mountainside. Some 50 years later, the elegant art deco statue of Cristo Redentor was assembled on site and opened on October 12, Ever since, Cristo Redentor on top of Corcovado hill is Rios ultimate symbol, receiving over one million visitors a year. Before going, check the weather, because sometimes the clouds envelop the peak, some days throughout the day and more often in the late afternoon. At dusk, enjoy watching as the city lights come on and the statue is bathed in golden lights. When there are low clouds, consider going to the Dona Marta lookout by taxi. At m the view is not bad either and there are no crowds. Get here by taxi or take the Metro-Onibus Expresso combination see above from Largo do Machado or bus lines , and from Leblon, Ipanema or Copacabana. From Downtown, take the lines , , and After reaching Cosme Velho, there are shuttle vans to bring you up to the entrance. The most popular way of reaching the top is the funicular train, ascending 20 minutes long through lush vegetation. The queue for the train, in Cosme Velho, can get rather long. Try going when the morning coach parties have already passed through and many tourists are having their lunch or in the afternoon. Going by Van The official van leaves from three points in the city which makes getting around that little bit easier. Picking up the van in: They leave every 15 minutes and the non-stop route takes about 45 minutes to arrive with usual traffic. The final trip back down Corcovado is between 6 pm and 6: It will take about 30 minutes in all to get from there to the entrance to the Christ. It takes about 50 minutes to get from the shopping mall to the top of the Corcovado. To take the van from the Visitors Center, the prices are as follows: The van leaves from the Visitor Center every day between 8 am and 6 pm with the final van leaving the top of Corcovado between 6 pm and 6: Along the way, views onto the city are better than from the funicular. Alternatively, you can hike but the last 3km from the funicular station Paineras on a picturesque trail that passes by several waterfalls and the Dona Marta lookout. Due to numerous robberies on the forest-trail up Corcovado, the path has been closed to the public in past and individuals should opt to take the bus or van up to the top. Going atop is one of the most popular activities in Rio and a definite must-do. Several vantage points offer magnificent views of the bay, the city center and west to the famous beaches and beyond, so that you will get a good idea of the layout of the Marvelous city. Do not make the mistake of thinking you have seen enough once you have seen the view from Corcovado. Try Sugar Loaf at sunset for a truly mind-blowing experience. The massif is endowed with lush vegetation, a remnant of the forest that once covered all of the bay area. The lucky ones can see toucans, parrots, monkeys and butterflies flitting through the trees. Access is by means of an aerial cable car offering magnificent views. Built in , the so-called Bondinho was one of the first cable cars of this type in the world. The Bondinho is used by people every day and has two sections: On top, there is well-developed infrastructure like cafes, restaurants, shops, a cinema and even a helipad. The gondolas, accommodating 64 passengers each, are in service between 08h10 and 20h00 way down until 20h40 and free from 19h00 [50]. There, you can stroll along the Atlantic shore or take an unsigned turnoff uphill to the middle station on Morro Urca. The trail starts on the northern end of Praia Vermelha and is open daily 08h00 to 18h00 for free. Prices if you combine the hike and the cable cart: Then, you would have to buy the ticket above to get from Morro da Urca to Praia Vermelha, or you could just hike back down. You can buy the tickets online or at the ticket centers next to Praia Vermelha beach. You can only buy tickets in these two places, so be careful if you hike to Morro da Urca and want to get a cable car back down – you will have to get a ticket at the bottom first lesson learned from personal experience! Debit card, credit card, and cash are all accepted. Lagoa Rodrigo de Freitas[ edit ] The Lagoa Rodrigo de Freitas is large lagoon in the middle of South Zone, with great views to Corcovado and Ipanema and Leblon beaches; you can jog or cycle all the way round; there are skating areas and you can hire little peddle-operated boats. It has recently been renovated for the World Cup. Inside is the Soccer Museum. Arpoador[ edit ] Arpoador, Barrio Arpoador , [1]. Consider the view from the top of the rocky point or terrace Arpoador Inn. This well kept, magnificent and very lush botanical garden [3] is both a park and a scientific laboratory. Situated east of the lagoon it is one of the most beautiful parks in Rio. Emperor John VI founded the Botanical Garden in as a nursery for herbs, teas and spices imported from Asia, exclusively for the royal family. In the garden was opened to the public, with the addition of ponds and scenic trails and the introduction of a wide range of plants. Today is one of the most important botanical gardens in the world, with species of plants growing in their natural habitats and in greenhouses. Highlights include orchids, bromeliads, ferns, splendid forests of giant bamboo, a collection of medicinal plants, stunning trees which red flowers perched on the same tree and giant cacti. Colorful parrots, hummingbirds, butterflies and monkeys live in the vegetation. A good place to start your visit is the Grotto Kar Glasl, where you see the giant water lilies in the pond adjacent and can see the statue of Christ the Redeemer in the distance. Best-known is the Avenida das Palmas Imperiais, a long central avenue shaded by imperial palms, huge trees descended from a single planted in early nineteenth century. They retain some of the original buildings of the garden, the Interpretive Center is located in an old sugar mill. There is also a Japanese Garden and two restaurants with terraces that allow to prolong your visit. Not far from the cafe, you may hear swooshing sounds - look up and you can see small monkeys swinging from tree to tree. If you take the bus, note that Jardim Botânico is also the name of a neighborhood, so make sure you get off at the right spot for the entrance. This white modern building houses an important collection of Brazilian art, Roberto Burle Marx designed the courtyard and the mural. The foundation created by the wealthy banker occupies the old home of the family clan. Perspectives and refined materials, the building was designed by Olavo Redig, the garden by Burle Marx. It has the best private collection of photography in Brazil Marc Ferrez. It also holds exhibitions of painting and sculpture. Temporary exhibition hall, always of great interest. Displays a large collection of photographs of the city of Rio de Janeiro. It also has cinema, library and cafeteria.. This small park attracts by its history and romance of the place. Acquired by an English lord in it was transformed into a landscaped park, then it changed of owner a wealthy industrialist. To the joy of his wife, the singer Gabriella Bezanoni Lage, he built a beautiful mansion that today is the school of fine arts. Concerts and shows are organized regularly. The courtyard houses a coffee, there are strange concrete structures to entertain kids and the park has remnants of Atlantic Forest with some interesting sub-tropical rain forest plants and wildlife. The museum occupies one of the most impressive and best known buildings by famous architect Oscar Niemeyer. This amazing seventeenth century Benedictine monastery and its church stands on a hill in the center of the city. Despite the simple exterior of the church, its interior is filled with extravagant gold leaf.. Founded in by a group of Portuguese immigrants, this gem neogothic surprised by the elegance of its facade and its high altitude room full of thousands of books. With a church atmosphere, where the light is filtered by a colorful stained glass windows, readers try to study interrupted by a fleet of onlookers. Founded by Portuguese immigrants in , the Manueline style building. The interior is a wood library with coffered ceilings and carved columns. It is the most modern neighborhood of Rio beach since , when Morales Vinicius wrote The Girl From Ipanema about a beautiful woman he saw on the beach. The beautiful people still frequenting the stylish bars and clubs ipanema.

Here are my favorites! The most common dish in Brazil is the side dish- rice and beans. Many times the beans are cooked with meat! So you always have to make sure you ask for the vegetarian version. Rio de Janeiro is also unique because of the vegan events held every other week. These fairs are so much fun! Cheeses, classic Brazilian dishes like Coxinhas, icecreams, and more. Teva- the best vegan food in Rio This upscale plant-based restaurant and bar is not only the best vegan place in Rio but probably in Brazil. Their appetizers as well are made with fresh veggies and have great flavor combinations. Something difficult to find in Latin America Price: The place is strictly vegetarian and has many vegan items. In addition of their Latin cuisine, they also have many middle eastern dishes. In this store in Ipanema, you can find practically all the vegan products Brazil has to offer. They also some food that you can buy frozen and make at home. Meat ones or Vegan. But this place got me to love them! They have several vegan options that are marked in the menu alongside other dishes. Hareburger can be found in several locations but I always ate at the mall Rio Sul when I was escaping the heat of Rio. The place is located in the center, downtown and you would have to really look at the street numbers in order to find it. Once you get the number right you will have to go up the stairs and then just let your nose lead you. The food there is Brazilian food, simple and good local food. All in all this place is a good solution for a lunch after spending the morning at Copacabana beach. Otherwise, you can just ask for sushi with veggies at other restaurants.
