New Believers Guide to the Bible by Greg Laurie, Linda Chaffee Taylor This new book in the New Believer's Guides series, from well-known evangelist Greg Laurie, presents the basic essentials of Bible study in a refreshingly simple way.

Sometimes because of the years, I forget that people need to learn the first steps to take in their Christian walk. It is about a relationship with God, Jesus, and His people, the church. It comes from that perspective. The first time people were called Christians were in Antioch. Both of them stayed there with the church for a full year, teaching large crowds of people. It was at Antioch that the believers were first called Christians. So this book is geared towards that. When I gave my life to Jesus and made the decision to follow Him, I was ignorant about anything to do with the basics of Christianity and following Jesus. I grew up in a family that went to church only on holidays, and the church they went to was more religious than it was anything else. Absolutely everything I learned after I became a follower of Jesus was new to me. Today I see the process, and I am going to do my best to try to explain that process to you so that you too can become a follower of Jesus. What transpired for them was a three-year journey of getting to know Jesus, letting Jesus change their heart, and carrying on with the works of Jesus. Getting to know Jesus You cannot follow someone who you do not know. Following Jesus is more than just chasing after Him. It means that you are going to walk in the same footsteps and live the same way as He did. This takes a deep personal knowledge of who He is and what makes Him think and do the things He does. It takes a personal relationship with Him. Once you have started that personal relationship with Jesus, then you can start getting to know Him on an individual basis. The way you do that is by reading about Him and talking to Him. They are four accounts of the life of Jesus and have what you need to know to start learning about how He thought and acted. This is important because it leads you to the second ingredient in becoming a follower of Jesus. Letting Jesus change your heart Many people make the mistake that Christianity is just about following some creed or set of rules and regulations or some ancient traditions. It is a relationship that changes you from the inside out. Think about it this way. If you are from the west coast of America, you talk a certain way. You have a western accent that nobody hears because everyone talks like you. However, if you move to the deep south region of the US, all of a sudden everyone talks funny. To you, they speak with an accent, but to them, you are the one who has an accent. Over time and hanging around with your new friends, the way you talk begins to change and over time the way you speak and think adapts to your new environment. When you go back to the west coast to visit family or friends, you have an accent. The same is true with our relationship with Jesus only it is on a more personal and intimate level. When you start your relationship with Jesus, you move from one country to another. You move from the kingdom of darkness to the kingdom of light. As you spend time with Jesus, you start to change. You take on His values, His priorities, His way of thinking. You begin to act and talk like Him. The only difference is that it is not just language, but it changes who you are on the inside because now it is Him living through you. We have control of this process. If you are going to be a follower of Jesus, then you have to decide to press in and surrender to His leading in your life and the changes that He wants to make. It is not always fun or comfortable, but in the end, it is gratifying. Carrying on with the works of Jesus The Christian faith is not just a set of mental disciplines or beliefs. It is a lifestyle of doing the works that Jesus did. To only know Jesus but not walk as Jesus walked is incomplete. In following Jesus, a person has to be willing to do the things that the person they are following does or has done. This consists of doing the physical acts that Jesus did, such as laying down your life for your friends and having compassion on the poor and those trapped in sin. However, that is not the only supernatural work that we can do. The goal of the follower of Jesus is to be like his Master. That means that we need to allow God to use us to touch people as well supernaturally. There is a balance. We need to do the physical works and need to be open to letting Jesus do supernatural works through us. Final thoughts on being a follower of Jesus Finally, I want to encourage you that this process is not chronological. You do not have to learn everything there is to know about Jesus before you start letting Jesus change your heart, and you do not have to have a changed heart before you start doing the works of Jesus. Instead, I have found as I have followed Jesus these 33 years, that these things are progressive. I learn something about Jesus, and it changes my heart, as it changes my heart, then I start acting and behaving in ways that are more like Jesus, and I put into practice what I have learned and the change that has happened. Then I progress to something else. I learn something new about Jesus, and the process starts all over again. So, my dear brothers and sisters, I hope that this first chapter has helped you know how to start being a follower of Jesus and gets you on the path to a life that is rich with blessings that cannot be contained.
