Trade discount[edit] Trade discounts, also called functional discounts, are payments to distribution channel members for performing some function. Examples of these functions are warehousing and shelf stocking. Trade discounts are most frequent in industries where retailers hold the majority of the power in the distribution channel referred to as channel captains. Trade discounts are given to try to increase the volume of sales being made by the supplier. The discount described as trade rate discount is sometimes called "trade discount". Trade discount is the discount allowed on retail price of a product or something. Trade rate discount [edit] A trade rate discount, sometimes also called "trade discount", is offered by a seller to a buyer for purposes of trade or reselling, rather than to an end user. Trade-in credit[edit] Trade-in credit, also called trade-up credit, is a discount or credit granted for the return of something. The returned item may have little monetary value, as an old version of newer item being bought, or may be worth reselling as second-hand. Buyers have the advantage of getting some value for something no longer used. Examples can be found in many industries. The rationale behind them is to obtain economies of scale and pass some or all of these savings on to the customer. In some industries, buyer groups and co-ops have formed to take advantage of these discounts. Generally there are two types: Cumulative quantity discount[edit] Cumulative quantity discounts, also called accumulation discounts, are price reductions based on the quantity purchased over a set period of time. The expectation is that they will impose an implied switching cost and thereby bond the purchaser to the seller. Non-cumulative quantity discount [edit] These are price reductions based on the quantity of a single order. The expectation is that they will encourage larger orders, thus reducing billing, order filling, shipping, and sales personnel expenses. Dependence of price on quantity [edit] An extreme form of quantity discount occurs when, within a quantity range, the price does not depend on quantity: If you want less than the minimum amount, you must pay the minimum amount anyway. If you want an amount between two of the fixed amounts offered, you must pay the higher amount. This also applies in the case of a service where the "quantity" is time. For example, an entrance ticket for a zoo is usually for a day. If you leave in the middle of the day, the price is the same. Other examples are multi-day passes to amusement parks or season tickets to sporting events. If one has to buy more than one wants, we can distinguish between the surplus just not being used, or the surplus being a nuisance, e. Dealing with customer characteristics[edit] The following discounts have to do with specific characteristics of the customer. A discount offered to customers with what is considered to be a disability. Educational or student discount[edit] These are price reductions given to members of educational institutions, usually students but possibly also to educators and to other institution staff. Providers also offer student discounts as means of offering a product within the budget of a student, which would otherwise be too expensive, thus gaining extra sales. Educational discounts may be given by merchants directly, or via a student discount program. Employee discount [edit] A discount offered by a company to employees who buy its products. In , the American automakers ran an "employee discount" for all customers promotional campaign in order to entice buyers, with some success. Military discount [edit] A discount offered to customers who are or were members of a military service. Types of military discounts include discounts for active duty military, veterans, retired military personnel, and military spouses or dependents. Eligibility for military discounts can also be verified online or via mobile by verification companies like SheerID. Age-related discounts[edit] Toddler discount, child discount, kid discount[edit] A discount, or free service, offered to children younger than a certain age, commonly for admission to entertainments and attractions, restaurants, and hotels. There may be a requirement that the child be accompanied by an adult paying full price. Small children often travel free on public transport , and older ones may pay a substantially discounted price; proof of age may be required. For the band, see Senior Discount band. A discount offered to customers who are above a certain relatively advanced age, typically a round number such as 50, 55, 60, 65, 70, and 75; the exact age varies in different cases. The rationale for a senior discount offered by companies is that the customer is assumed to be retired and living on a limited income, and unlikely to be willing to pay full price; sales at reduced price are better than no sales. Non-commercial organizations may offer concessionary prices as a matter of social policy. In United States most grocery stores offer senior discounts, starting for those age 50 or older, but most discounts are offered for those over 65. In German the term "Freundschaftspreis" is commonly used. Special prices offered to local residents [edit] Discounts are common in tourist destinations. Discount card Sometimes a document, typically a plastic card similar to a payment card , is issued as proof of eligibility for discounts. In other cases, existing documents proving status as student, disabled, resident, etc. Documentation may not be required, for example, for people who are obviously young or old enough to qualify for age-related discounts. In some cases, the card may be issued to anyone who asks. Coupon A discount, either of a certain specified amount or a percentage to the holder of a voucher , usually with certain terms. Commonly, there are restrictions as for other discounts, such as being valid only if a certain quantity is bought or only if the customer is older than a specified age. Coupons are often printed in newspapers, brochures, and magazines, or can be downloaded from the Internet. Rebate marketing A refund of part of sometimes the full price of the product following purchase, though some rebates are offered at the time of purchase. A particular case is the promise of a refund in full if applied for in a restricted date range some years in the future; the hope is that the promise will lure customers and increase sales, but that the majority will fail to meet the conditions for a valid claim. Other [edit] Promotional allowances - These are price reductions given to the buyer for performing some promotional activity. These include an allowance for creating and maintaining an in-store display or a co-op advertising allowance. Brokerage allowance - From the point of view of the manufacturer, any brokerage fee paid is similar to a promotional allowance. It is usually based on a percentage of the sales generated by the broker.

Volume 2, Book 21, Number Narrated Samura bin Jundab: The Prophet said in his narration of a dream that he saw, "He whose head was being crushed with a stone was one who learnt the Quran but never acted on it, and slept ignoring the compulsory prayers. A person was mentioned before the Prophet p. The Prophet said, "Satan urinated in his ears. Is there anyone to ask Me, so that I may grant him his request? Is there anyone seeking My forgiveness, so that I may forgive him? When the Muadh-dhin pronounced the Adhan, he would get up. If he was in need of a bath he would take it; otherwise he would perform ablution and then go out for the prayer. Do you sleep before offering the Witr prayer? I did not see the Prophet reciting the Quran in the night prayer while sitting except when he became old; when he used to recite while sitting, and when thirty or forty verses remained from the Sura, he would get up and recite them and then bow. At the time of the Fajr prayer the Prophet asked Bilal, "Tell me of the best deed you did after embracing Islam, for I heard your footsteps in front of me in Paradise. Narrated Anas bin Malik Once the Prophet p. He said, "What is this rope? You should pray as long as you feel active, and when you get tired, sit down. She does not sleep at night because she is engaged in prayer. Do good deeds which is within your capacity as Allah never gets tired of giving rewards till you get tired of doing good deeds. Do not be like so and so who used to pray at night and then stopped the night prayer. The Prophet "Whoever gets up at night and says: Alhamdu lil-lahi wa subhanal-lahi wa la-ilaha il-lal-lah wa-l-lahu akbar wa la hawla Wala Quwata il-la-bil-lah. He is the Only One and has no partners. For Him is the Kingdom and all the praises are due for Him. All the praises are for Allah. All the glories are for Allah. Or invokes Allah , he will be responded to and if he performs ablution and prays , his prayer will be accepted. He showed us the guidance, after we were blind. We believe that whatever he says will come true. And he spends his nights in such a way as his sides do not touch his bed. While the pagans were deeply asleep. I also saw as if two persons i. Then an angel met us and told me not to be afraid. He then told them to leave me. Hafsa narrated one of my dreams to the Prophet and the Prophet said, "Abdullah is a good man. Would that he offer the night prayer Tahajjud! The companions of the Prophet p. The Prophet said, "I see that your dreams agree on the last ten nights of Ramadan and so whoever is in search of it should seek it in the last ten nights of Ramadan. He then offered two Rakat in between the Adhan and Iqama of the Fajr prayer and he never missed them. The Prophet used to lie down on his right side, after offering two Rakat Sunna of the Fajr prayer. After offering the Sunna of the Fajr prayer, the Prophet used to talk to me, if I happen to be awake; otherwise he would lie down till the Iqama call was proclaimed for the Fajr prayer. After offering the two Rakat Sunna the Prophet p. The Prophet was never more regular and particular in offering any Nawafil than the two Rakat Sunna of the Fajr prayer. He said, "If anyone of you thinks of doing any job he should offer a two Rakat prayer other than the compulsory ones and say after the prayer: Waqdir li al-khaira haithu kana Thumma ardini bihi. You are capable and I am not. You know and I do not and You know the unseen. If You know that this job is good for my religion and my subsistence and in my Hereafter-- or said: If it is better for my present and later needs --Then You ordain it for me and make it easy for me to get, And then bless me in it, and if You know that this job is harmful to me In my religion and subsistence and in the Hereafter-- or said: If it is worse for my present and later needs --Then keep it away from me and let me be away from it. And ordain for me whatever is good for me, And make me satisfied with it. The Prophet added that then the person should name mention his need.
